Sir
Gilewintown, July 4th 1788

I have some very troublesome men in my Regiment who are always doing everything in their power to discourage men from enlisting in the service and the officers have seen fit to draught some of them, and they have deserted now I would wish to know the pleasure of the Committee of safety what I shall do with those men in case they can be found after the soldiers are all marched if those men should escape without Punishment I shall find it very difficult if not impossible ever to raise my Quota of men again I beg you be kind enough to communicate this to the Committee of safety and should take it as a great favour if I might have some order from that Honble Body how to proceed

I am fr with great respect yr Honrs most ob^d Hum^l serv^t
