BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

Saturday night.
Dec. 4th 1943.

Dearest George,

Your voice is still music to my ears no matter where you are, my love.

It was such a grand sensation to hear you again and I felt so happy for the remainder of the day - also light hearted. Even our little Jimmie seemed to be walking on air - and does he walk Buddy, dear. You're in for some great thrills when you do see the "little fellow".

Mom and Pop left a short while ago, after giving me the forms to fill out and they're both well and glad to know you are in a good location. They'll be here again to-morrow.

Funny things happen as a result of war, as shall I say I'm already seeing the humorous side. Fran is writing letters to you - for your mother and Father - Who'd have "thanked" it?

When I finished the P.O. business, Baby and I did some shopping for the week-end - then lunchtime when our James had his first lamb chop. He liked it, Daddy, and is looking forward to his first steak dinner. We'll all be able to have it soon, I hope.

During the afternoon, Kayser called, also Mr. Pinus and Harry later in the day. I phoned Kessler, thanked him and inquired about his family, also gave him your address.

Winnie, Betty, myself and maybe one or two other women are planning to spend a night at the opera sometime real soon. I'll make sure to get tickets for one which is colorful and in the lighter vein. Jimmie will be taken care of for the we, so don't worry.

Please let me know what you'd like for Xmas - because I must send you something and Jimmie insists that I send Daddy a package real soon. I also asked Bob but perhaps you can find out what he needs and let me know.

This afternoon I had an urge to change around the mirrors and some pictures in the living room - with great results. I had Sam, the shaft, help me put the mirror over the couch and I arranged a new setting of the ivory miniatures (bedroom) and the two wall portraits above the credenza.

It's quite effective and I've a stronger urge to beautify the room even more - with very little expense involved. Just flowers. The best thing for the room would be to have you in it - Wee's hoping it'll be soon, my beloved one.

All baby and I really want for Christmas is Daddy - but if that can't be - send a good photo of yourself - You're handsome as could be and tell the photo grapher so.

Good night, Daddy, until to-morrow.

Jimmie and I send all our love, hugs and kisses to you.

Sincerely,
Florence

P.S. I filled the pen.
