Darling:

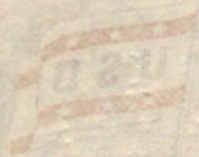

Have spent the past few hours strolling about the old French Quarter of N.O. This section of town is akin to our Greenwich Village section, only older, dirtier, and contains 10 times as many chip joints. There are many antique joints, but all closed after 6 P.M. They contain many interesting looking articles, and closely resemble the same type shop found on Madison Ave in the fifties.

Still love you; enclosing a pin which is the official insignia of the Transportation Corps, only cost 35¢ so don't worry about it too much; love you a little more now - Hope we have a Happy New Year
as ever

Court of the Two Sisters

613-15 ROYAL ST.
NEW ORLEANS

*The Romantic Rendezvous
for lovers of Famous New Orleans Creole and French Dishes in the Vieux Carre's Largest and most Beautiful Patio.*

The Court of the Two Sisters. The name was gained from the fact that two sisters, members of an aristocratic family of Old New Orleans, here conducted a fancy and variety store for a period of years. The present structure, three stories and attic, was erected in 1832 by Zenon Cavalier, financier of note in the early days of Louisiana history, and a Colonel in the American forces in the War of 1812. Prior to this, the site was occupied as the residence of Sieur Etienne De Perier, Governor of the French Colonial period—1725-1733, succeeding Bienville, Governor General, founder of New Orleans (1718). De Perier was a tireless and energetic administrator and was noted for distributing rewards and punishment with equal impartiality. Of particular interest and charm is the picturesque courtyard, the most spacious patio in the historic center of the Old French Quarter. During the earlier days this courtyard was a pleasant retreat for family privacy and also served as a delightful cooling system that was ideally adapted to a warm, moist climate.

Darling:

One of the places we visited to-night, had a drink here. ate fried chicken in the saw at another restaurant. Many, many thoughts of you all the time. Love

George
