Tuesday: 10.³⁰ P.M.

Your letter, my beloved, was most welcome and reassuring, and I am happy that you found everything and everybody so congenial. Now, perhaps, you will be able to relax, in every sense of the word, and stop worrying about the rest of the world.

Has your cecum been completely cured? Is your ear still annoying you? Have you a comfortable room? and don't worry about the cost, we will manage, somehow; and besides anything that will help restore the sparkle to the eyes of my beloved is worth more than money. Glad that Al and Diesel are kind to you. Are they both well and happy? Is Diesel knocking himself out? What are Al's prospects for the summer? Are you smiling and happy? Despite my absence, today the weather is so unpleasant, but it has been fair and moderately warm here, with but a slight shower, Monday night.

I will mail your rain coat and woasties, in a day or so, but I think you will get little chance to use them from now on.

There is quite a lack of news or excitement to-day. Lunched alone, and had dinner with my mother and father. Ate enough "Kungen and beher" stew to last me a year. Heard from Bob who intends coming home this week-end; and expect him to stay over with me - will probably go to a picture with him or my parents on Saturday night. I feel uselessly healthy, and thinking of you, my pretty lady. Business is as usual, but it is beginning to look better for the British, so thumbs up, dearest.

Tomorrow night (Wednesday) I am going to the Brompton to visit some Hairs, may even buy something there. Using this stationery because I am running short of my regular sheets. I hope you don't mind, and don't show it around. Tell Al I wrote Civil Service Comm. as he requested me to, but have no reply yet. Received my draft rating to-day, (3A) so I guess you get me instead of the army. Am having your watch repaired and will enclose it the woasties.
So please be careful in opening the package.

Will write as usual tomorrow, so until then you find me, adoring you, as ever,

Ry.
