

wednesday

Dear George.

I am writing this while eating supper just after having left the draft board.

It seems the questionnaire did not prove sufficient reason for a dependency classification. Therefore, it was necessary for me to appear on the scene once more and give, on a separate piece of paper, a more detailed report. Pop's owning a store came out; also I stated that

This seems to differ a little from what I gave the draft board. In any event, it totaled $1275 a year, proving that Mom & Pop did ~~not~~ need my aid.

There is nothing to do now, but hope and pray.

Everything else is under control.

Received word today that I would probably leave for Phillipshurst in approximately 3 weeks.

Felt fine and dandy. Hope you and Florence give the same.

As ever,
Bob.

you were earning from $1500 to $1750 a year.

I gave a detailed report showing a minimum amount which would be sufficient for Mom & Pop to live on. This was stated to show that this would cover only the base necessities of life. Also, it was brought out that they were both quite old and very ill.

Following is this report.

- $420 - rent
- 60 - gas & electric
- 50 - carfare
- 175 - doctor bills
- 175 - clothes
- 420 - food -
