Tuesday 10 P.M.

My love, it hardly seems possible but this is the last letter I shall send you on this vacation. All that I cared, or wanted to say to you, has been put in to writing. I hope that you have not been disappointed, because I have treasured every thing you wrote me. It has been fun penning my most intransigent thoughts in to letters, and hoping that I expressed clearly all that I had in my heart. But now that is done with, tomorrow instead of the written word, the writer will visit you in person. Ah, my dearest, time surely will select its slowest pace to travel the course of the remaining few hours - but it is inevitable - Friday is the genesis of a new and happier life for both of us. Keep smiling, precious, and we will always be happy.

Kay advised me to-day that they are going with me, as did Eleanor and Maxine. Giving me plenty of company, and relief at the wheel for the trip.
We will leave early Friday morning, and I hope to be there in time for lunch 1 P.M. About money - all will be well.

The heat is terrific, the humidity something terrible - but as I write this to you, darling, the goose-pimples are playing tag with each other -

Be careful, be happy, and before long you will be in my arms where you belong always, until then you find me in love with you

As ever

J.G.

Regards to Al - kisses!
