

GEORGE STOFF
3021 AVENUE I
BROOKLYN, N. Y.
NAVARRE 8-1376

Monday 10¹⁵ P.M.

Well, darling, my first complete day since our wedding day that I have not seen you, talked to you, or even kissed you; but it is with deep feeling in my heart that all is well with you, and that, although physically we are not together, mentally and spiritually nothing can separate us. You know, my darling, I had begun to accept you like a habit, almost like a second nature, like breathing and eating. Now I suddenly realize that you are even more important to me than those. That you supplied the extra something that makes breathing and eating so necessary; you know what I mean, the urge to live, the desire to do things, the will to accomplish. Say, I must not swell your head, but then, you, only you deserve it.

The day and evening passed quickly, the weather is moderately warm, a light shower around five o'clock, breaking the monotony of the day. Pete Cohn visited me at the office in an endeavor to borrow five dollars, but

I did not give it to him. He sure has plenty of gall - lunched with Danny - a little busy at the office - no mail - except a letter from Bob, who is well physically and mentally. Danny insisted that I dine at his house at dinner - so I did. Dinner was excellent, consisting of

Chicken salad,

Vegetable soup.

Lamb chops, calf stew, french fried onions, potato knishes (delicious)

Jello (with real fruit - no cream)

Home-made apple pie and tea.

They treated me like another son, and I had a delightful evening; although I would rather have had franks and beans with you. All the kiddies send their kindest to you, you pretty lady.

When I arrived I attended to my various chores, and am ready to go to bed, and maybe even dream of you. Tuesday and Friday, I am dining at my mother's; and although Jules & Min want me to dine with them this week, I think I am all booked up.

Take good care of yourself, and give my best to our dear friends, Al - Helen. So, until to-morrow, and with all my love, You find me, as ever,

Send all mail to the office -

Ag.

GEORGE STOFF
3021 AVENUE I
BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Mrs. Florence Stoff.
% Echo Lake Lodge.
Echo Lake,
Wassensburg,
New York.

