Wednesday morn,

George darling,

Just a few minutes ago I had the thrill of hearing completely again with my left ear. Camphorated oil did the trick. My weed will be completely gone in another day.

Both your letters to me are beautiful and as you know I cannot convey to you, and as you to me, what's in my heart. I do love you so much that every moment I'm awake I keep on doing things so as not to think of you too much, although I mention your name to all about me many, many times during the day.

Monday afternoon Liesel and I went canoeing after dinner and spent about 2 hours on the lake. Later we both took a nap and felt refreshed for the evening. After supper all the guests congregated in Mrs. Rudells room and we all played a game called charades. It was very enjoyable and I did have a good time. Then to bed and I slept well all night.

Tuesday the sun finally came out for just half a day. After breakfast we sunbathed in the cabana completely b. a. The word cabana sounds romantic but it's only a tiny solarium with walls of canvas and cot like tables all jumbled into a heap. The weeds are all over and the place needs a good cleaning up. We stayed there for $1\frac{1}{2}$ hours, then showered and shampooed my hair. We both set our hair into anchories. Later Liesel and I got into a canoe and she paddled me all over the lake. She looked adorable in a white turban really a ("shmotée") and I nicknamed her Sabu, the elephant boy. In the evening, after supper, we had a poetic evening. The social stuff read different poems, one of which was "Come Live with me and Be my Love" and of course, my darling,

I only thought of you. To bed at 10.30 and this morn I awakened real early and was down to breakfast the first one.

Al and Lisel are just a little indifferent to one another and I just listen to each one. She's so grand and he's knocking himself out for the few smelly, stingy honey mooners that are

⁶ here now. They wack into town $1\frac{1}{4}$ m. to buy cigarettes for 2 cents cheaper and then ask all for matches. And the good natured slob gives them.

The weather isn't too nice right now, so I think I'll sew up my playsuit and get up a new outfit.

Best regards to my family and yours and all my love to you.

Your loving wife,
Florence

P.S. So glad you're "hooked" and eating well.
