Sunday eve - Nov 2nd

My darling,

Since I haven't heard from you to-day, I hope that all is well and pray that I'll have some good news to-morrow.

My last letter to you, I now realize, was a little depressing and I'll try to write more cheerful ones in the future, ~~Full~~ of Jamie and his cute little tricks. He could fill up some books with all the new sounds and actions he gives out with every few minutes. Is I a doting mommy or is I not?

Last night we slept much better, baby not arousing until 7.45 this morn.

It was a mild, sunny day, so I got through quickly with my duties and was out with baby by 10.15. Mom and Pop spent most of ^{the} day with us and sure got a great kick out of that Grand son of yours. You know he's you in miniature and that makes us all believe we see you each moment baby is around us.

My very dear friend Florence came up to see me this afternoon and was surprised to know about you. She said she knows how I feel because that's the way she felt when Sam left for Wisconsin. Ha. ha. ha. (that also was the wine I had for dinner). Is muscatel good to drink with a meat dinner? Whether its the right kind doesn't really matter because it sure makes me feel just a little lighter even for a short spell. That's quite important right now.

While walking around the campus with Mom and baby (Pop decided to nap) we met Janny, who was going toward our place. She sends her best regards as does Florence. We talked for about $1\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. - while the kids slept - and jerked ourselves on the steps of one of the college buildings near Bedford Avenue. No more rumors about the army taking over the College, some soldiers are already there and are living in the basement of the Library.
No more outsiders are allowed on the grounds on Sunday - only soldiers. That sounds like a kind of a relief. Love.

Our dear friend Danny called this afternoon to find out what's what.

Mom and Pop left us at 4.45, I suggested they eat here, but Mom already prepared dinner and they're taking in a movie to-night. They got a letter from Bob yesterday - the last one from Kentucky.

My day is almost done and I hope my dreams are of you - my dearest one - I'm alone now but thinking only of you.

Sincerely,
Florence

Jimmy sends all his da-da's and dote-dote to you Daddy - Keep well
