

Who Needs YOU?

There is a feeling of closeness and unity in being at a small college. This is an advantage over the larger colleges and universities. The unity of the college is reflected through its spirit.

The enthusiasm generated at this college in the election of class officers and the successful Greek weekend sponsored by the fraternities adds greatly to the college spirit. The keen participation in intramural football is another example of spirit. Does all of the spirit end when the weekend or the "big game" is over? Why is there such high spirit in these events and yet so little unity in the student body in attending or participating in college varsity sports? Do you know that you have a winning soccer team that any college would be proud of, Record 6-2? At our college's home soccer games, the team is lucky to have fifty to one hundred students watching them play.

In addition it seems that a college with over 700 men can turn out more than eleven men for the second day of basketball practice. This doesn't give the new basketball coach much of a vote of confidence.

It would seem appropriate that the students should encourage the better athletes to go out for the varsity teams. It is reasonable to want to be able to put your best foot forward when fielding a team that represents your college.

Did you know that the new basketball coach Ken Jones, before becoming head basketball coach of Keene State College, was a successful coach at McQuaid High School in Rochester, New York, winning 62 games while losing only 14. During this period his team won 4 championships and many of his players have gone on to be college basketball stars, including two All Americans. Coach Jones who directs his own basketball day camp has been a lecturing coach and staff member at several basketball camps and clinics. He runs his own set of defensive drills that have been filmed and admired by many great defensive players such as K. C. Jones of the Boston Celtics.

So why not become involved in your college sports. If you cannot play ball, become an enthusiastic observer. Who needs you? Coach Jones needs you, Keene State College needs you, the basketball team needs you, the Soccer team needs you.

The Inies

by Carol W. Johnson

It took me a day in Harvard Square, Cambridge, (after not having been there for a month) to become aware of the principle stated below.

During the week, the principle inhabitants of the Square are students of the colleges and universities in that vicinity such as Harvard, M.I.T., Boston University, Tufts and Jackson, Boston College, and many others. On Saturday, however, the Square attracts many who don't go to any of these. (Many of them buy a Harvard sweatshirt at the COOP.) I've noticed that the immigrants on the weekends try to look the way they think Harvard students look. A very funny situation results to the one who has a general idea of the appearance of the student body of some of these institutions. For example, most of the students at Harvard are seriously involved in some form of learning and people of this sort seem to be less concerned with the importance of appearance and dress. They do not all wear metal-rimmed glasses, by the way. On the other hand, the "imports" look as though they spend hours on themselves before they made their debut on the pavement of Brattle Street.

The immigrants have imagined THE IN LOOK to be one of long, stringy hair; tight jeans of only the painted, patched variety; psychedelic glasses (that look like mirrors); etc., etc., and they are careful to paint themselves up (the girls, that is) so that they look like little painted dolls. And they end by conforming to that which they thought was nonconformity.

mites become mired down in routine and housekeeping and "innovation in the curriculum will require careful, long-time analysis of objectives, a study of terminal behavior," Dale argues.

There are also no rigorous analyses of objectives of instruction. The high-down general objectives that may be stated in the college catalogue may not be carried out in general practice, he says, because the most common learning on campuses is memorization.

It is a fact that evaluating progress is easiest when memorization is the act. It is more difficult to test critical thinking and analysis, but "the wide-spread cheating on examination occurs when the goal is primarily that of memorizing," Dale asserts.

"The typical professor is an entertainer of ideas, but not an applier. He is long on content and short on action. The application of his ideas is considered a mere detail, something for a handyman or technician to put into effect, a service function. Actually good ideas in many fields are not in short supply, but the engineering of applications is," he adds.

Despite these criticisms, Dale thinks the situation is changing. Increased funds for innovation are available, but leadership is still lacking. There are some innovations already in effect that do not trespass on professors' sovereignty. Dale notes, such as Ohio State's Listening Center, which provides dial access to tape-recorded programs in music, foreign languages, and lectures in varied fields.

There are other examples elsewhere, but "if we want continuing innovation, we must build an adequate program of research and development into the structure of the university or the college," Dale says.

"Given our present rate of change... any massive, overall, generative change will come later rather than sooner. We look forward to the day when we have a vice president in charge of revolution."

KAPPA

by Clyde Lower

Greek Weekend was a great success this year, and as everyone knows, Brother Chris Papaoglou was elected Greek God and reigned over the festivities.

Congratulations go out to all the brothers who participated in the olympic games held last Saturday.

We must make mention of the astute dexterity portrayed by the spectators who were forced to catapult their bodies over the closed entrance gate which so conveniently blocked easy access to the A Field.

Kappa held its initial open house Saturday for the brothers of Alpha and Theta.

The brothers of Gamma Chapter were proved to be a part of the M.S. Drive held in Keene last Friday evening. For collecting the most donations of any participant, brother Ken Wood received a free LUNCCch at Nate and Ginny's sub and sandwichshop.

The only unfortunate occurrence was a punctured patella received by brother Tom Burns during Greek Weekend.

Dialogue Committee Created

Hartford, Conn.—(I.P.)—The Board of Trustees of Trinity College has unanimously approved the creation of a committee composed of three undergraduates, a trustee, a faculty member and an administrator "to conduct a continuing dialogue within the college community."

This group will become a subcommittee of the Joint (Faculty-Trustee) Committee on Educational Policy. The Trustees also endorsed student participation in the revision of the curriculum and asked a newly-formed six-man faculty committee on curricular revision to "work out with care and discretion the mechanics for meaningful student participation."

Dr. Richard Lee, an assistant professor of philosophy and a member of the special curricular revision committee of the faculty, praised the Trustees for a "well balanced, tempered and judicious decision regarding student involvement in the shaping of the curriculum."

"Beyond that decision, however, I am heartened by the wisdom of the Board in setting up a means for an effective and progressive discussion between the various parts of the campus community."

Dean Robert M. Vogel termed the response to the Student Senate request for participation on the Curriculum Committee as one of the most potentially significant actions in the interest of improved student-faculty and student-administration relations.

Soccer

A combination of a Gating gun front line, a brick wall defense, and well-oiled teamwork was too much for Keene's soccer team as it lost to Castleton on the 18th, 7 to 0.

But the Owls screeched back last Saturday in spite of a cold drizzle and a humorously hostile crowd to shut out Johnson State 3-0.

Johnson controlled the ball through most of the game but the Keene front line cashed in on the all important breaks while goalie Brian Richardson did the rest, blocking all 18 of Johnson's scoring attempts.

Ron Dias booted Keene's first goal unassisted late in the second period, and two back-to-back goals late in the 3rd period cinched the victory for KSC. The first was set up by Terry Moore and driven home from close quarters by Wally Dwinells. Two minutes later Chuck Stone used his talented red head to bank a Dias feed into the net for the final score of the game. Stone suffered a slight back injury in the play and set out the remaining minutes.

Skiing

Mr. Keith King has announced the first meeting of the Ski Team and the Ski Club to be held next Wednesday, Nov. 1st, at 7:00 p.m. in Belknap House. Anyone interested in joining either the team or the club is asked to attend. Also invited are any good skiers who would like to assist in Keene's ski instructional program this winter.

Bids Requested

UNION BOARD OF CONTROL ANNOUNCES THE SALE.

Sealed bids are requested for the sale of a used pocket billiard table, approximately 4 1/2 ft. x 9 ft. in size. The table is presently dismantled; however, the parts may be inspected upon request of Mrs. Wagner or Mr. Campbell in the Student Union.

In February 1966, this table was reconditioned by the Tri-State Amusement Co., Inc. of Manchester. The reconditioning included new rubbers and banks and a new felt top.

Included in this sale of a 4 1/2 ft. x 9 ft. pocket billiard table are one set of used billiard balls and 3 used pool sticks.

The purchaser of this equipment will bear the cost of moving and re-constructing the table for proper use. The equipment must be removed from the Student Union no later than Wednesday, November 22, 1967.

The sealed bids must be given to Mrs. Wagner at the Union Desk by no later than 4:00 p.m., Wednesday, November 15, 1967. An announcement concerning the bids will be made following the scheduled Union Board meeting on the evening of November 15.

Each bid must have the following information:

- (1) Name of the organization making the bid.
- (2) Signature of the President, Treasurer, and a faculty adviser to the organization.
- (3) Amount of the bid—full amount must be paid before the table is removed from the Student Union.
- (4) Location of where the table is to be placed. The Union Board of Control has stipulated that, if at all possible, the table should be sold to an organization which will keep the table at a location on campus.

Any or all bids may be accepted or rejected by the Union Board of Control.

50 Volunteers wanted for Archaeology "digs" in England in 1968.

A new and exciting opportunity in England is now offered to College students wanting to spend next summer in Europe in an interesting way.

You may help to reveal the secrets of a Roman villa, an iron-age hill fort or the structure of a medieval town or Anglo-Saxon cathedral before they disappear, perhaps for ever. Expanding housing programs, city centre redevelopment and new highway projects in Britain to-day have opened up many new possibilities for archaeological investigation.

Insane Cast For Marat-Sade

In an interview Friday, Mr. William Beard, K.S.C. drama instructor, announced the cast for his production of Marat-Sade, to be held December 7th, 8th, and 9th.

The cast is as follows:

Jean Paul Marat—Jeffery Crane Parsons
Marquis de Sade—Gary French
Charlotte Corday—Jeanne Clougherty
Simone Evrard—Sue Duncan
Roux—Bob Higgins
Herald—Dan Bean
Coulmier—Tom Belski
4 Singers—Niel Howard, Barbara Lawless, Cynthia Graham, Mike Margolis
Assistants to the Director—Pat Griffen, Beth Larden, Kitty Galecki

Beard said that the play called for inmates and assistants of the asylum whose credibility of characterization was essential to the outcome of the play. "It is up to them to create the mood of the play," he said.

The full title of the play (The persecution and assassination of Jean-Paul Marat as performed by the inmates of Charenton under the direction of the Marquis de Sade) is not a gimmick, Beard said. It is the only title that author Peter Weiss could have used in order to be historically accurate. He added, also, that the play requires this title in respect to what the play covers.

The "gimmick" that is used in this production is the old idea of a "play within a play," which, Beard said, gives the author a chance to expound his philosophies more completely. The characters of the play within a play are portrayed by the inmates of the insane asylum at Charenton. The only sane characters in the script are Coulmier, the director of the asylum, and the attendants.

When asked why he chose this play, Beard stated that he wanted to do "something different... and believe me, this is different!" He said it is not the type of play that has been seen by a K.S.C. audience before.

PARIS (CPS)—Being small, compact, and relatively stupid, Europe has always trusted international opinion to be strong enough to change any country's unpopular policy.

So Europeans are now a little confused when they see almost the entire world protesting American involvement in Vietnam, and the war widening anyway.

Two recent speeches accented this growing isolation of the U.S. from the world's good graces. The first, in the United Nations, was made by Sardar Swaran Singh, the Indian Defense Minister. The second was in Paris, made by Pierre Mendes-France, the former chairman of the French Assembly.

It certainly wasn't the first speech in the U.N. demanding an unconditional end to the bombing of North Vietnam. But it's significant, in that Singh adds his protest to those of a number of other countries considered friends if not allies of the United States.

Holland, Denmark, Norway, and France—all NATO members—have bitterly attacked Johnson's Vietnam policies. Canada, Indonesia, Sweden, and Ethiopia have taken similar positions: that the U.S. must take the first step toward peace.

Mr. Mendes-France said pretty much the same thing, but his tone was much sharper than Mr. Singh's. He called the bombing "absolutely unjustifiable," and gave homage to "the proud people of (North) Vietnam."

His unequivocal language will no doubt be received with a heavy heart in Washington, where the State Department types predict an "après-Gaullisme" controlled by the Federation of the Left, whom Mendes-France represents.

At this writing there are only three countries left in Western Europe who haven't formally protested the U.S. conduct of the war. Ireland, whose Foreign Minister, Mr. Frank Aiken, has always acquiesced to anything the U.S. did; Moro's Italy, for whom NATO is "a way of life"; and finally Great Britain.

Of these three "silences," Washington is undoubtedly happiest about Britain's. But last week, the Labor Party began to lean on the Wilson government to "dissociate itself completely" from America's war. The same day, National Opinion Polls of Britain said that the Wilson government's popularity was at its lowest since the last general election in March, 1966. NOP said that if there were an election tomorrow, the Wilson regime would get whipped.

Maybe Wilson will continue his support. He ignored last year's Labor call to "bring all pressures to bear on the U.S.A. to end the war." But significantly, this week, Foreign Secretary George Brown said the British Government "detests what is happening in Vietnam." He added, no doubt for Washington's benefit, that he didn't feel Hanoi had indicated that it would respond to a bombing halt.

Despite his stolid silence now, it is obvious that if Wilson is going to lose the election on the Vietnam issue—an issue that doesn't even belong to him—he will change his stand.

Europe and Vietnam

As for Hanoi, it seems clear that they won't "indicate" anything until the American elections are over in November, 1968. If they agree to negotiate before that election, and talks begin, President Johnson is sure to win by running on a "don't-switch-negotiators-in-midstream" platform. This must be intolerable to Hanoi, which trusts Johnson as much as he trusts "nervous Nellies."

Glancing at the rest of the world: one student killed, 745 injured, in an anti-war demonstration in Japan; U.S. Navy ship quarantined in Turkish port for fear of anti-U.S. rioting; 70 Italian Communists defect to pro-Chinese party because their pro-Soviet party isn't stiff enough with the U.S. on Vietnam; a second Buddhist nun burns herself to death in Sa Dec, Vietnam. This kind of stuff doesn't raise an eyebrow any more.

Well, OK, so the foreigners don't like the U.S. What about them red-blooded Americans, who fought two wars in defense of peace?

A New York Times survey this week says, "Public support for the Administration's conduct of the war in Vietnam has declined measurably in recent weeks, with College students of this area, as well as others who may be interested, will have an opportunity to learn about the Extension Society Volunteer movement of the Catholic Church on Wednesday, November 8, at 7:00 p.m.

At that time, a team of "recruiters" from the Volunteers—all veterans of the field program—will be at Newman Center.

The Extension Society Volunteer movement, now in its seventh year, has provided more than 1400 young people for one to two years of field work virtually throughout the nation. The work encompasses areas of effort as aides in inner city neighborhoods, as Newman center workers, teaching in high grade and high school, and as nurses, both registered and practical.

The recruiting group which will visit here is made up of Rev. Wally Ellinger, of the Springfield-

Cape Girardeau, Mo., diocese; Mary Supple, of Wrentham, Mass., who last year was a parish worker in Violet, La.; Judy Colvin, of Buffalo, N.Y., former teacher in Durango, Colo.; and Betsy Cronin, of Troy, N.Y., a teacher in Caruthersville, Mo.

Those who join the Volunteers receive an intensive six-weeks training course in all aspects of their work as well as "practice" work in the field prior to going to their assignments. They are paid $50 a month and provided with suitable living accommodations, an allowance for food, plus health and life insurance and necessary travel expenses.

At the sessions here, anyone interested in the Volunteer movement will have an opportunity to hear the complete story of the program, what the individuals do in the field, and can get answers to any question they may have about the Volunteer effort.

EDIFY, EDIFY

The main purpose of the Campus Dialogue Series (the latest of which was held Wednesday, October 25, and attended by—alas—only eleven students) is, as we see it, to promote closer and clearer student-administration communication. However, when a question was raised concerning an expansion of inter-collegiate exchange on the level (mainly) of public speakers, clarity rapidly fogged.

To exchange attendance privileges with area colleges and permit interested students, of the academic communities concerned, to hear speakers of note who will appear only at one of these schools is to further enlighten these students, to broaden their education, and to allow them to be exposed to various areas of vital interest.

Admittedly, when people of different communities gather together, various problems may arise. President Zorn is well aware of this fact and very much concerned. He does not want to jeopardize the reputation of Keene State College any more than the presidents of other schools want to harm their realms of responsibility.

We believe it is safe to assume that some of these problems concern the possibility of high-school-level type thinking which unfortunately can lead to inter-school brawls, the question of responsibility concerning safe transportation, gentlemanly conduct, and the increasing problem of drugs and marijuana.

The president is constantly aware of the pressure exerted on him by the ancients in the New Hampshire legislature, the various older (in many respects) alumni, and the parents of students. Many of these are definitely staunch backers of the status quo.

What is the answer to the problem and how can an inter-collegiate exchange program be successfully realized? Through education of all concerned—students, parents, and interested citizens.

The students must learn how to exercise, competently, value judgments.

The parents must be made aware of the reality of the combination of youth and new ideas. The parents must not be allowed to lie fallow, mentally. They also must continue learning in order to cope with the new.

The interested citizens (which easily and necessarily includes the members of the legislature, the board of trustees, the alumni, and the editor of New Hampshire's only state-wide newspaper, among others) must be made cognizant of what is happening now and why. They, too, must learn to think questioningly rather than in a manner which is not educationally constructive. Only with progressive education, rather than restrictive education, will all sides at least begin to communicate with more lucidity.

The students at Keene State College are being prepared to enter a world of hard fact and responsibility. If Keene State is to follow a course of social-isolationism with only local enlightenment, the "outside" may well flatten many of the unprepared. In a time of disjointedness this can ill be afforded.

It is strongly suggested that the Student Senate, which holds the potential energy for socio-educational expansion, begin to activate and allow this energy to kineticize all about us.

GUEST EDITORIAL

Reprinted from the Stanford Observer . . . from an address by Student Body President Peter Lyman.

EDITORIAL

"If you are going to be a student, to seek an education, your first commitment must be to question everything. The purpose of an education is self-knowledge; because you alone have the potential to know yourself, only you can answer the questions which will tell you who you are, and what kind of a world will meet your needs.

Yet your society, up to this moment, has been giving you answers. Your education has given you opinion and called it truth; your newspapers have given you opinion and called it fact; television has given you war and called it peace. While these answers serve the purpose of the institutions which give them, none of them serves the purpose of education, to free you to answer for yourselves.

The purpose of a College or University is to provide a place where you can ask any question, without fear, in a community not dedicated to any particular answer. Yet most schools serve the vested interests of our society before they serve the needs of education.

The necessity to act on the basis of your personal awareness is the reason students have become participants in political issues such as civil rights and the peace movements, not to mention educational reform in the Universities.

If the world as it is offered to us does not contain the potential for living a creative life, we must change it."

LETTERS to the Editor

To M. Treat, J. Parsons, and the Editors:

I am concerned about the lack of direction in which the Monadnock seems to be (or not to be) heading. I frankly see the Paper as a vessel with many captains and too few crew. In fact, I think that the craft is still in port and conditions are so cloudy that no one knows where the water is. May I offer some comments on some of your previous, and I think abortive, launchings? I direct my remarks now to Miss Treat.

I have been impressed with your notes about the possibilities of student participation in the selection of subject matter at Keene State College. I don't, however, think that you are helping your own cause. I ask you, girl, how in the name of heaven, hell, or Keene can you expect to be given the response you seek when you show your other self in the guise of those childish and pointless cartoons? How can you possibly expect such progressive administrative changes, which come from a mutual respect between administration and students, when you resort to such contradictory methods? You have some wonderful ideas but some immature techniques which leads me to my next comment. Enter please, Mr. Parsons.

To begin, I will admit that I am not sure what you are trying to do, or say, but you are not saying it with the response you seek when you show your other self in the guise of those childish and pointless cartoons? How can you possibly expect such progressive administrative changes, which come from a mutual respect between administration and students, when you resort to such contradictory methods? You have some wonderful ideas but some immature techniques which leads me to my next comment. Enter please, Mr. Parsons.

I would like to ask the editors who think the Monadnock is for. An honest answer would tell us who as well as what the Paper is for. It is a pity that you don't place the same consideration on the Paper that the Journal editors place on their publication; i.e., quality. If you did, gentlemen, then I fail to see how you could possibly place such a word as PEACE, with its importance today, in the various "filler" positions that you have in the past. (Monadnock 10/26/67 and 10/19/67) With this lack of concern about a powerful and important word, according to Mr. Parsons, I'm surprised that you didn't spell the word with an "ie" instead of "ea". Please place more emphasis on the good points of this campus and build on, not over, these past successes. No one with any intelligence can ignore the bad aspects but a consistently negative viewpoint tends to dishearten those who do try to see the good and bad in proper perspective.

Sincerely,

Lawton P. Bourn, Jr.

ATTENTION!!! To all those who infest the cosmos of Keene People's, etc. Copy Deadline for this paper which you are now spilling your coffee on is Tuesday at 10 P.M. Erotic photos must be turned in no later than the following Wednesday, by 10 again. (note internal rhyme)

We, the editors, ask with humble heart and hat in hand (note crumpled alteration) that all copy be typed, in order to preserve our sanity.

We, the editors.

To the editor:

As you've probably noticed, the campus is up to overflowing with construction of all sorts. Among this is the landscaping of the quadrangle (between Parker, Fiske, and the tennis courts), in front of Randall and Monadnock halls, as well as along Appian Way from the library to the bookstore to the Commons. All very nice except that trees in this day and age happen to cost an awful lot of money, and if there is one thing that this college doesn't have too much of it is just that . . . money.

I was inquisitive about where the funds were coming from, so I went to see Mr. Mallat, the director of the physical plant. After finding him hard at work (?) and an hour late for an appointment, I questioned him about the amount of the funds available for the landscaping program. He told me it was in the vicinity of $7000 for the entire job including the plants, labor, and related needs. This struck me as rather a low figure considering that at the Convocation President Zorn quoted approximately $25,000. Maybe Mr. Mallat was too busy to attend the Convocation or just didn't bother to listen. I don't know but there seems to be some what of a credibility gap here. Considering that it is Mr. Mallat's job to know these facts I was rather aghast at this matter. So later that morning I spoke to President Zorn to confirm my belief that the figure he quoted was correct. It was.

My complaint is that we are now in a period of transition, the school attempting to raise the academic level to a par with some of the finest schools in the country and it has $25,000 to spend on trees! Maybe this could be rationalized by saying that these plants would be beneficial to the Biology Department but as one member said, "What do we need with crab-apple trees?"

Last year President Zorn along with the rest of the university system was put out by the cutting of the budget, yet we have this sum to spend on landscaping. It is President Zorn's contention that this money was contained in the cost of the buildings and that if it is not spent in conjunction with the buildings it will revert back to the state. This is not necessarily true because to reallocate moneys all that must be done is to present it to the governor and his council for reconsideration. Granted this process does not always work but in this case it has a good chance. Certainly a better use can be found for this money than the planting of trees on a campus that has so many other inadequacies. I am not against beautifying the campus but I do feel that at this time a secondary goal such as this should not be put ahead of the academic problems that surround us.

Planning today for tomorrow is a hard thing and is something that will eventually be done, but not now, not at the time when we must first become academically sound. How about putting some clocks in the classrooms in the Science and Arts Building or maybe even a buzzer system so we have an idea of time in the "fortress". Maybe they could get some chairs in the classrooms so that we can come to class and not have to scavenge around the other rooms for seats because the administration does not like to put seats of two different colors in the same room. Color coordination plus.

So why not look to these problems instead of a secondary goal such as the landscaping of the campus.

Sincerely,

Souf

England: A Sentimental Journey Home

(Editor's note: Robert Duhaime travelled rather extensively throughout Europe during this last summer. This is the second article of a series in which he will relate his travels, observations, and general experiences while visiting Scotland, England, Greece, and other countries.)

Each year, more than a half million Americans visit England. A trip to a "foreign country"—for this is a land of castles, knights, and a Queen who can trace her ancestry back to the early Saxon kings.

For me, a journey to England turned out to be a sentimental journey home. This royal land is a part of our heritage. Ten of her reigning kings and queens were our monarchs as well. Crammed into a country no larger than the State of Wisconsin, are many things that tie two great nations together.

Travelling in England I encountered the following comment, which seems to be a favorite expression among the English: "Are you really American? You seem just like an Englishman, one of us." When you hear that, you know that you have arrived in England. And you will have a further insight into the British character, for this supreme accolade is delivered with the best intentions, and the Englishman would be stunned to have it taken with ill grace.

Perhaps the perfect rejoinder might be: "How amusing! I was just about to say that you don't seem at all English; I thought you were American." You can try that if you like, but in the interest of Anglo-American relations and hands across the sea, it is perhaps better to remain silent!

Coming from Scotland, my first stop in England was Hadrian's Wall, the incredible barrier that Romans built from sea to sea against the barbarous Picts. This was the farthest, loneliest frontier of the ancient Roman empire. Here, eighteen centuries ago, a garrison army ate, slept, grew corn, worshipped their gods, sweated the rheumatism from their limbs in hot steam baths—and kept a constant vigil against attacks from the wild northlands beyond the wall.

Almost two thousand years have passed since the Twentieth Roman Legion chose as the site for its fortress a low sandstone hill at the head of the estuary of the River Dee. This was the beginning of Chester.

Chester is the only city in England that still possesses its walls perfect in their entire circuit of two miles. Only by walking around this two mile circuit, did I feel the impact of courage these inhabitants must have had. Fires, floods, plagues, and the constant raids of the Welsh failed to mar their prosperity for many centuries.

Daresbury, a unique little village, is where Lewis Carroll wrote Alice in Wonderland. Like the Scottish people, the English are also proud of their men. The townspeople of Daresbury renamed their only church the Lewis Carroll Church. It was only a few years ago, that the people of Daresbury erected a stained-glass window in the church, honoring Carroll by portraying the characters in Alice in Wonderland in the window.

Probably the best way to meet and understand the people is to visit one of England's numerous pubs, for here the native folk reminisce events that have made England what it is today. Englishmen enjoy telling stories of fierce battles with the Scots. As it might be expected, these stories take on a different point of view than the same stories I once heard in Scotland! Nevertheless, no matter what point of view is voiced, both peoples are proud of their heritage which plays an important role in their lives.

"This is, indeed, an inheritance, not of the Empire alone, but of the whole world, wherever there is cultivation, wherever there is value of the beautiful." Lord Hugh Cecil's words on Oxford must surely echo the sentiments of countless scholars, who have passed through this ancient seat of learning.

Poets and writers galore have studied here. Perhaps more widely read today are the writings of a member of Oxford's faculty in the 19th century, a mathematics lecturer named Charles Lutwidge Dodgson. To please the daughter of his dean, he wrote two books which have become classics.

However, in order not to tarnish his reputation as a mathematician, Dodgson assumed the pen name Lewis Carroll. Thus he is remembered as the author of Alice in Wonderland and Through the Looking-Glass. It is one of the quirks of time and fate that Carroll, the author, is world-renowned; Dodgson, the mathematician, has long since been forgotten!

There could have been no more fitting place for the greatest writer in the world to have been born in than Stratford-on-Avon. It stands right in the heart of England. Shakespeare's birthplace is a small room on the first floor of an attractive little house in Henley Street.

My next visit was Canterbury Cathedral, stormy site of clashes between church and crown. In the cathedral, one night in 1170, four knights of Henry II assassinated Archbishop Thomas à Becket. Christendom stood aghast; papal wrath stirred. In the end, a penitent Henry, clad in sackcloth, walked barefoot to Thomas à Becket's bier for a flogging by some eighty monks.

I left England thinking that one cannot interpret British reserve as unfriendliness, British shyness as coldness, the relative British reluctance to exteriorize emotion a poverty of spirit. "Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale her infinite variety," Shakespeare was talking of Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt; no less fittingly might his famous words be applied to England.

I had visited the operations of George Kingsbury Ltd. in Gosport, licensed to build machines of our local Kingsbury Machine Tool Corp. in Keene. Late in the afternoon I travelled Northeast for several hours, when suddenly I heard the booming voice of Big Ben in the dead of night. I had arrived in London.

Don't Call The Police

WASHINGTON (CPS) — The unrestrained and brutal use of police to disperse campus demonstrations may be the cause of the most serious crisis higher education has faced in this century, according to Ed Schwartz, president of the National Student Association.

Schwartz predicted this week that at least 25 major protests will be held this year on college campuses across the country, and he warned college administrators against calling the cops.

NSA will "support and assist student strikes growing out of the unwarranted use of police to bludgeon demonstrators," Schwartz said.

His remarks came in the wake of major student strikes at the University of Wisconsin and Brooklyn College. In both cases, the strikes were called after police were ordered onto the campuses to break up student demonstrations. Police also broke up a demonstration at Princeton University this week.

The initial demonstrations at Wisconsin and Brooklyn—which brought in the police were against unpopular campus recruiters. "Information we have received during the past few days indicates protests against campus recruiters will not end with Brooklyn and Wisconsin—they will spread," Schwartz said.

"The reckless use of police on campuses last week has merely highlighted the lack of concern that administrators feel toward students and has lent new urgency for our drive to encourage student power on campuses," he added.

He predicted that a confrontation between Central Intelligence Agency recruiters and demonstrators may occur at Brandeis between now and mid-November. He also mentioned Fordham, Chicago, Columbia, Michigan, Wayne State, the City College of New York, and Oberlin as institutions where major student protests may take place.

Schwartz announced NSA is sending a list of guidelines to student governments across the country to be used when confrontations are expected on their campuses. Demonstrations reach serious proportions "because student government leaders frequently fail to play a creative role before the incidents occur," he said. He emphasized that NSA does not support attempts to block students from attending job interviews, for example, but "this does not mean that student leaders should sit on their hands until a group of students is beaten by police."

NSA will assist student governments to insure that they obtain a voice over policies affecting recruiters and that they exercise a constructive role during the demonstrations themselves, Schwartz said.

He announced that NSA will sponsor a national student conference on student power at the University of Minnesota Nov. 17-19. The conference will not center on resolutions, he said, but will be a planning session for direct campus action.

The guidelines being sent to student governments were written by about 10 NSA staff members. The guidelines "are not the policy decisions and are not mandatory; they are just advice on tactics," Schwartz said.

Although Schwartz spoke mainly of campus demonstrations against recruiters, he said the same policies about police invasion of campuses would apply to protests against classified research. "We are not concerning ourselves so much with what the demonstrations are for or against; we are concerned about police being called to break up protests," he said.

Asked if NSA involvement in campus protests is restricted because many of its programs are funded by the government, Schwartz said, "These demonstrations are directed at university policy, not legislative policy."

"Tidewater Trials," the second in the Audubon Lecture Series narrated films, will come the week after next, Monday, November 13, 1967, to K.S.C. Naturalist Mark Catesby's life work in Tidewater Virginia is put into movie form and narrated by Charles T. Hotchkiss.

increased sentiment for less military action and more negotiation." Gallup polls continually show Mr. Johnson slipping because of his conduct of the war.

On a given day you can get one-half million people around the country to demonstrate against the war (like this April 15). The number of draft dodgers in the States, as well as the number of deserters in Europe and Vietnam, is rising sharply. Walter Lippmann and the New York Times are against the war.

Mr. Johnson says the nation backs his war effort.

"Mr. Johnson is wrong. The U.S. has lost the support of NATO, it may lose Britain's support soon, it has lost the support of Senators Fulbright, Gruening, Morse, Mansfield, Church, McGovern, Morton, Kennedy, Cooper, Case, Percy, Javits and Symington, with more to come. Dozens of Congressmen oppose the war vociferously. The U.S. has been attacked in the United Nations by Communist and non-Communist, friend and foe alike. It is not winning the war. It may be the Year of the Goat in Vietnam, but it's the Year of the Mule in the White House.

Garden Grass

BERKELEY, Calif. (CPS) — The official residence of the chancellor of the University of California at Berkeley is one of those super-stately mansions set on a little hill and surrounded by meticulously manicured shrubbery. The unique feature of the house is an outdoor clock that lies in the middle of a beautiful garden area. Various flowers make up the face of the clock.

On Monday a new flower was discovered in the garden, a flower called "cannabis sativa," occasionally known as marijuana.

Said Mrs. Roger Heyns, the chancellor's wife, "I don't think I'd know it if I saw it."

Said campus police Sergeant Joseph Halloran, "It wasn't blown in by the breeze."

ALPHA

By Ron Neronsky

The Brothers of Alpha Pi Tau were honored this past weekend by a visit from Brother Leo Coter. Leo, past president of Alpha, is a graduate student at Indiana State University at Terre Haute. Upon his arrival, Leo issued the following statement: "Due to the clemency and vicissitudes, it is indeed a pleasure that I should be here, and I so declare it."

A hayride is planned for this weekend, to be held at Silver Ranch in Jaffrey. This hayride was planned under the direction of Brother Bob "Frenchy" Cloutier and his social committee, Brother Brian "Muncher" Maynard, and Brother Steve "Bod" Bodnar.

Preparations have started for the writing of the 1968 Alpha Opera. The Opera, an Alpha tradition dating back to 1936, is an annual event. It began as a satire on campus life at KSC. Each and every member of the faculty and administration is under constant surveillance for the starring role in the '68 Opera. BEWARE! THE ALPHA DUCK IS WATCHING YOU!

Other activities at Alpha House, including bull sessions in Brother Bob Baines' room, and drinking sessions in Brother Ron Neronsky's room, have resulted in solutions to many problems. We are looking forward with great anticipation, to continuing these sessions. In case you haven't guessed the drinking sessions usually follow the bull sessions.

This week the Alpha Duck would like to salute whoever is responsible for restoring forks to the Commons.

The Brothers cordially extend their congratulations to Dean and Mrs. Ernest Gendron on the arrival of their new daughter.

KAPPA

by Clyde Lower

Kappa held its 46th annual Halloween Costume Party last Saturday evening. Prizes were awarded for the most humorous attire worn by couples. Judging the humorous concoctions worn by the contestants were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Simons. First prize went to the couple of Brother Lenny Hebert and Annette Walker for their costumes portraying Charlie Chaplin and Phyllis Diller respectively. Second prize was awarded to Dave Brown and Pam Moore. Brother Brown made his appearance as the resplendent King Arthur, and his date appeared as Lady Godiva.

The brothers of Kappa again donated their time for a worthy cause last Tuesday to sell light bulbs for the Lion's Club. The leading salesman for the event among the brothers was Paul Prebble.

Brother Joe Rodrigues would like to apologize to all the coeds with whom he has had dates recently. Really, girls, he is basically of a good sort.

Ones Shock Theta

The Ones did it again as they tied previously unbeaten, untied Theta 6-6. The Ones possess one of the poorest offenses yet best defenses in the league and they showed it by intercepting 6 Rick Dimeco passes. Their only score came on one of these interceptions as Pete Benson picked it off and galloped into the end zone. This was only the second score against Theta in 3 years, but again the tally came on a pass interception leaving their defense unblemished.

Being down 6-0 Theta worked desperately to salvage the game. On second down at midfield Dimeco uncorked a bomb to end Mike Nankowski who was all alone. Nankowski went in for the score but the conversion failed and left the game tied 6-6.

Defensive standouts for the Ones were Doug Wakeman, Kevin Rafferty and Pete Benson.

For Theta, Ken "the Snake" Leafle played well both ways.

Roughriders Down George's Gym 6-0

With Jocko Landry at quarterback the Roughriders are a different team. Landry's scrambling was the key to the Roughrider win as he set up their lone score on a 50-yard jaunt down to the George's Gym 3. On 4th down Landry pitched to his right end for the TD.

With 2 minutes left in the game, George's Gym quarterback, Ed Olsen, threw to left end Fred Bramante who was caught from behind on a game-saving dive by speedy Paul Vachon inside the Roughrider 10. The play went for 40 yards but that was as far as George's Gym got. The Roughrider defense stiffened and held off the George's Gym threat to salvage the victory.

One's Revenge Fails vs. Minimen

The One's seeking revenge for their only defeat this season, managed only a 6-6 tie with the Manchester Minimen.

The One's scored first on a pass play from Joe Hill to Kevin Rafferty. This was only the 2nd score the One's offense has chalked up all season.

But the One's lead was short lived as Minimen quarterback threw deep to end George Skiloganis who outran everyone to tie the game. The conversion failed and the score remained 6-6.

Skiers Meet

By Jim Hicks

The first meeting of the Keene Ski Team and Ski Club was held last Wednesday and Coach King announced plans for the coming winter season.

"The men on the team can look forward to several meets in the Intermediate division of the E. I. S. C.," Mr. King stated, "and we are lining up some exciting meets for the women too."

In addition to competitive practice Mr. King said that instruction in basic and advanced skiing will be offered to members of the Ski Club.

"We hope to be skiing on the new Pinnacle Mountain by early December," coach King said, "and in the meantime the Team and any interested members of the Club will be participating in a conditioning program."

The workouts sessions will begin next Monday, according to coach King, and will be geared to individual abilities. Unless there is rain the workouts will be held near the woods at the south end of the athletic field at 4:00. All skiers who are interested in joining the Team and who missed the organizational meeting are invited to this first conditioning session.

Campus Dialogue

At the Campus Dialogue on the 25th President Zorn outlined plans for the proposed new Student Union to be constructed within and adjacent to the present Spaulding Gymnasium.

In addition to complete renovation of Spaulding proper, a new two-story wing will be constructed on the present location of Alpha Pi Tau fraternity.

According to President Zorn, the first floor of the new Union will accommodate a large bookstore, a new snack bar serving 350, and several offices.

The second floor of Spaulding (the present gym floor) will be completely renovated—a new floor put down, the balcony removed, and beams covered by a false ceiling. The gym floor will be left unpartitioned to accommodate dances as well as concerts and lectures. A utility room for student activities will replace the present physical education offices.

The corresponding floor on the new addition will contain extensive commuter facilities including lockers. "We want to go out of our way to serve the commuters because they really don't have any other facility on campus," Dr. Zorn stated.

The second floor of the new section will also have a recreation room complete with pool and ping pong tables; and a large meeting room divided by movable partitions.

The upper floor on the eastern and western ends of Spaulding proper will be rebuilt providing facilities for student publications including darkroom space.

After a final conference with the architect the plans will go to bid, according to Dr. Zorn.

"We must emphasize," President Zorn said, "that this building must be self-amortizing. This will have to come through 1) the bookstore, 2) the snack bar, and 3) student financing, perhaps by means of an increased student activity fee."

First construction will begin in Spaulding itself as soon as the Physical Education Department can be transferred to the new gym. The President stated that, if possible, the Alpha house will not

Soccer

Coach Joyce's Owls rolled over two more opponents last week, increasing their season record to a laudable 8-3.

In the first game of the week KSC shut out Fitchburg here 2 to 0. The second period was the bewitching time for the Owls while Wally Dwinells and Ron Dias performed the magic. Dwinells booted the first unassisted at 6:05 of that period and Dias took a Rit Swain feed five minutes later to insure the victory. The front line, with a fine wind at their backs, boomed 19 shots at the Fitchburg goalie while Keene's blonde backstop, Brian Richardson, was called upon only 9 times.

Saturday the Owls did a repeat performance beating Gorham State here 4 to 1. KSC bombed Gorham's goalie constantly, scoring in each of the first three periods. Chuck Stone started it off for Keene early in the game and Wally Dwinells followed in the second period booting in a Terry Moore pass to make the halftime score 2 to 0.

be disturbed until after graduation next June.

Work on the new wing should begin about the middle of June and if construction goes as planned the entire building should be open by the end of summer or early next fall, according to Dr. Zorn.

Asked about the fate of the old bookstore, President Zorn replied, "It doesn't look good but it's difficult to eliminate a $35,000 building. As long as we're in a bind for campus space it cannot be sacrificed." The President added "... at the time the present bookstore was built we did not have a campus plan as we do now."

Also discussed at the Dialogue session was the possible extension of library hours. Dr. Zorn agreed that there was room for improvement but added that the problem was "partly a matter of staffing. The library is so designed," he said, "that it can't be closed down except for one room. In addition, one professional is required on duty at all times and we simply don't have the staff at the present time." The President suggested it is apparent that students aren't making effective use of the library hours now available.

Behind The Seen

by Larry Colby

"Students are expected to attend all scheduled class meetings of any course in which they are enrolled."

This is a quote from the K.S.C. Student Handbook. Now, if this is the policy of this school, I would like to know why. I assume it is to help the average student. If he has to go to class, he will, and absorb things that will help him in the course. If this is the right assumption, all well and good. But I think the average student is mature enough to decide if he'd like to absorb or not. I think he should have a choice as to whether or not he'd care to go. And, if I may be so bold, I would like to see the question of mandatory class attendance put before the student body and the faculty. We could have a little ballot made up that has two choices—

I support _____
I oppose _____ the present system of mandatory class attendance.

and any member of the faculty or student body could vote. That way the administration would know how we feel, because it is us that it affects.

I assume that most people would be opposed. Perhaps that is why the administration hesitates to put it to a general vote. We ought to try it. This way we could all express our opinion.

Want to know what's Keene this week? Well, I'm going to tell you anyway. The fence between Theta parking lot and Costin houses. It seems that some ratty girls keep cutting it. But now the fence has been chained, and wire cutters won't touch it. It is so KEENE when, in this day of student rebellion, the power of mature people can be seen ... and felt!

STRIKE AT NEW KSC GYM SITE

COMMENTS ON STRIKE
by Bev Anderson

Comments on the strike were few. Inquiring as to what is at stake, there doesn't appear to be any effect at all on the continuing progress of the building.

In talking with President Zorn he feels that the strike doesn't include all of the workmen on the project. Most of the tradesmen are continuing with their job responsibility. He stated, "Unless the strike expands to cover all aspects so that it would halt and produce a long term interruption we don't believe it will substantially effect the schedule of completion."

Right now all the college can do is sit tight and wait and see what the construction company will do about the situation. It is their employers that are on strike. As President Zorn said, he does not think the strike will affect the progress of the building. What is at stake and how serious it is is too early to say.

In an interview with Mr. Mallat, director of Physical Plan Development, he feels that as long as the major trades are working and the work is not being delayed there is nothing to worry about.

Strike at KSC Gym Site
by Janet Bogart and Bob Anderson

Wednesday work on the new gym slowed down as laborers employed by the Bennett Construction Co. went on strike. The laborers, represented by the Upholsterer's Union of North America AFI-CIO (Labor Division), went on strike because several workers were laid off.

Clarence B. Ewins, Vice President of the Upholsterer's Union, was called in to represent the position of the laborers in the dispute. He explained that most of the workers on the project, such as the plumbers and electricians were members of their respective unions and therefore eligible for union benefits.

The Bennett Co. laborers chose to organize too. At a meeting last Friday, they requested that the company recognize their efforts. The company gave no answer. Immediately afterward, the company fired six laborers. "These may or may not have been the instigators for the unionization," he added.

Mr. Ewin stated also that at the Keene site laborers were being paid $2.50/hr., whereas workers in surrounding areas are being paid $3.00 and over. He said that the Union will file charges with the National Labor Relations Board on behalf of the workers.

Later in the day the I.B.W.E. (electrical workers union) walked off the job in support of the strike. At the same time, a union truck driver refrained from crossing the picket lines while waiting for word from his representative.

Other unionized workers are now awaiting word from their locals in regards to their backing of the strike. The other unions involve plumbers, carpenters, steelworkers, and heavy-equipment operators.

The state representative at the construction site refused entrance to strikers attempting to use toilet facilities, but refused to comment. Mr. Joseph Lamber, company superintendent, also refused to comment.

"FINANCIAL AID OFFICER ABSCONDS WITH $200,000"

By Judy Wood

remarked Fred L. Barry, Director of Financial Aid at Keene State College.

"I can hardly believe it, myself, but it is a fact that during this 1967-68 college year, financial assistance to KSC students in the forms of loans, tuition—scholarships, and work opportunities will go over the $200,000 mark," continued Mr. Barry. "This aid will go to over 400 students, representing 24% of the 1650 student body. This figure is in line with the national figure of 23%."

The details of voluminous record-keeping, disbursing of funds and credits; sending of notices, and collecting of installments due from borrowers are performed by Mrs. Mary Walker in the Office of Financial Aids on the third floor of Hale Building. It is here also, that students may secure information and application forms for the available financial aid programs.

Soon after the end of World War II, the New Hampshire state legislature instituted the Tuition Scholarship program to encourage New Hampshire young people to enter the teaching profession. This scholarship grant program was the primary, and about the only type of aid available. In 1958, the National Defense Act provided the opportunity for students to secure National Defense Student Loans. The Higher Education Act of 1965 has added other programs to which the college and the federal government contribute funds each year.

Keene State is lacking in endowed funds. These are funds which are of appreciable amounts that may be invested. The returns therefore could be awarded as outright scholarships. It is hoped that graduates and friends in the future will see to it that endowed funds are provided. At present the Alumni Association is ready to begin the second year of a two year campaign to raise $25,000 for financial aid to students.

The forms of financial aid available at Keene are as follows:

New Hampshire State Tuition Scholarship.

In return for a tuition grant, the student agrees to teach a year in New Hampshire for each year he or she receives the grant, or pay it back.

National Defense Student Loan.

The Loan is interest and payment-free during the time the student attends college. 3% interest begins upon his leaving or graduating. Part or all of the loan may be cancelled in return for variously defined types of teaching.

Educational Opportunity Grant. A program of direct awards to students with exceptional financial need.

Work-Study Program

A program of employment for students, particularly from low income families.

Guaranteed Loans

This program actually begins at the participating bank. The student may borrow without furnishing collateral or parents' signatures. The loan is guaranteed by the state agency, and the interest is paid by the federal government while the student is in college, if the family income is under $15,000, and one-half of the interest after the student leaves college. Undergraduates may borrow up to $1,000 a year.

Keene Endowment Association Loans

The Keene Endowment Association is a holding and investing organization chartered to administer funds which have been given as memorials and bequests for use at the college.

Short and long term loans are provided from these funds. One of these funds is the Maxfield Young small-loans fund administered in the Office of Financial Aids. Another is the Alumni Loan Fund which has recently become a long-term loan program.

Miscellaneous

Keene Women's Club Scholarships

Rainbow Scholarship for Freshmen Rainbow Girls

Jeanne Pearson Loan Funds for Seniors

Today, most of the financial aid to students is based upon computed financial need as determined after consideration of the family income and resources. As indicated above, Keene is especially lacking in funds available as outright grants for excellent scholarship.

Along with about 800 other colleges and universities, Keene State participates in the program of the College Scholarship in Princeton, New Jersey. The procedure requires the parents of the applicant for financial aid to complete and send a Parents' Confidential Statement form to Princeton. The parents' financial resources are analyzed, and a copy of this analyses is sent to the Office of Financial Aids. This report is used as a guide in determining the eligibility of the applicant, and how much aid he requires. The Director of Financial Aids is available to discuss with the applicant and/or the parents any unusual circumstances that could not be included in the form sent to Princeton.

It is important to remember the following: Any first time applicant must have the Parents Confidential Statement filed. This form is available at the high school or at the college Office of Financial Aids.

In succeeding years after the first, the applicant secures a Renewal PCS from the Office of Financial Aids and has his parents complete and send it to Princeton.

In each of most recent years there have been applications for more

Audobon Series

The second in the Audobon Series presentations will be given on Monday, November 13, 1967, "Tide-water Trails": The wild beauty of Tidewater, Virginia, as it appeared to Colonial naturalist Mark Catesby is the subject of this film story by Charles T. Hotchkiss. Many of the sights that inspired Catesby in his life's work of recording the natural history of North America remain unchanged. Nesting orchard orioles, an amusing opossum family, and courting wood ducks inhabit this scenic area, along with clapper rails and snapping turtles. An up-to-date look at the natural heritage of an historic part of America.

This function is a part of the increasing role that your Tri-Beta and Biology Club is playing in our school. The presentation is produced in conjunction with the National Audubon Society.
