

Complaints about Mallat, Ticket system

Stephen Gordon

Complaints about the way the parking ticket system was run under Physical Plant Director Robert L. Mallat were lodged recently.

Mallat was in charge of the parking office until it was returned to the care of William Bullough, assistant business administrator, two weeks ago.

Terry Clark, a selectman and member of the Equinox staff, said today that in early October, he was riding with one of the tagging officers, Robert Kenny. About 2 p.m., Clark said, Kenny began writing tickets and marking them "5 p.m."

"He said he wanted to get off duty early," Clark said, adding that timing the tickets later could prove to the college that he had been on until at least 5 p.m.

"I know of at least five or six cases in which this happened," Clark added.

Kenny denied all of the allegations, explaining that "it wouldn't have been too cool."

"I didn't do that," he said. "I would have lost my job. Although, I imagine it has been done."

Bullough—had "some general complaints" about ticketers.

Kenny did say that there was one circumstance under which he did push up the time. When he worked his six hour day (once a week), he would push some of the times ahead a half hour so that he could go to lunch. This way, he said, the tickets had "some

Udall takes a stand on major issues

Jim Picton
Equinox Staff

Morris K. Udall voiced a popular opinion in his brief visit to Keene State College November 21 when he said, "We have reached the end of an era."

The future, he said, requires that we adapt to a new reality.

"I hope, looking back, that the American people will call 1976 an age when we got our heads on straight," said Udall, adding that it is going to be up to the Democratic Party to do it.

Udall is, as he puts it, the last surviving democrat in Arizona. He is also a democratic hopeful for the presidential nomination. Although inclement weather caused him to arrive two hours late in Keene, he was able to stay on campus long enough to voice his stand on a number of issues.

"The majority of you will see burned up in lifetime most of the oil and gas on this planet," he said, and the 70's and 80's will be eras of expensive resources. In the next ten years, Udall said, he sees two ways to go. We can conserve, and we can switch to coal and learn how to burn it cleanly. In the longer haul, he said, we must direct our attention away from nuclear power. We do not have to stop the 35 nuclear power plants presently in operation, he said, nor the 65 which are still under construction; but we should reconsider existing plans for some 200 additional plants, because we don't know enough about nuclear energy. Instead, said Udall, we ought to go gun-ho on developing non-nuclear energy sources the so-called inexhaustible supplies such as the earth's core, the sun, the tides, and the wind. "We ought to fund every scientist with any kind of 'backyard laboratory' who is doing research in these fields, he declared. Nuclear energy can help to get us through this crunch, but Udall warned against America getting "hooked" on nuclear resources before knowing their full effects and the dangers extant.

Highway Trusts

Udall said he has spent five years trying to bust the highway trust funds so that the money can be sunk into improving mass transportation. He suggested a goal for the next 20 years: build a mass transit system for America's 100 biggest cities, and organize an efficient interstate railroad system.

"We're going to have to get more economic justice into our system," Udall said, and he indicated that that might involve breaking up some of the large corporations which dominate our economy. Again, he said, existing programs may have worked in the past, but new ones need to be developed for the present and the future. As an example, Udall cited anti-trust lawsuits, which take forever to accomplish anything. Udall said if he is elected, he will institute a "one-shot ad hoc commission," which would write a prescription for each major industry. Specifically, he would recommend a law which required doctors to prescribe drugs by generic names instead of brand name, thus encouraging competition and lower prices in that industry, an law which would limit the interests of each corporation to only one area, discouraging large scale monopolies.

Regarding clandestine activities, Udall acknowledged a need for "clean espionage;" we need a conventional intelligence apparatus in the world today, he said. We need to know how many weapons Russia has, and what people have found out in their travels through other countries; what we don't need, said Udall, is a CIA that spies on Americans and opens personal mail.

Speaking on busing, Udall called the issue tough, divisive problem, and one which has been ducked by the last two presidents and the courts. We need to deal with this problem now, he said, suggesting the possible alternative of improving and specializing the poor schools so that they will attract people of various races who are interested in what a school has to offer.

Higher education, he said, should be available to all who are seriously interested in college; the scholarship program should be beefed up, and the government should help. But Udall expressed disapproval of the "liberal arts standard" which has arisen with the increased availability of college education; not everybody needs it, and Udall called for an increased respect for specialized areas of knowledge in all fields, adding that this is where the demand will be as resources get tighter.

Udall considers his chances for winning a

Tonight another chapter of Keene State Basketball unfolds when the Owls host New Hampshire College at 8 p.m. Coach Glenn Theulen is optimistic that this story will have a happy ending. The Owl mentor, in his eighth season, is hoping to rebound from last year's 11-15 mark and return to the form that sent the Owls to the Nationals in '72 and '73.

"This is the first class that I've actively recruited since '72 Theulen said. That year's newcomers included George Roy, Sterling Symonette and Al Hicks, important cogs in teams that went on to the Nationals.

Milani must be two in one

Maura Morrison
Equinox Staff

Jim Milani was a busy person in the capacity of Student Union Director. It appears he will now be even busier in the position(s) of Housing Director as well as Student Union Director.

Since his transfer leaves the position of Student Union Director open, Milani himself could oversee the vacancy until it is filled. The result is that Milani will be in the Housing Office on Monday and Thursday and in the Student Union on Tuesday and Wednesday, with a staff meeting thrown in on Friday.

"It's definitely not an optimum situation," Milani remarked. However, whenever there is an empty position, he added, "it must be supervised, and who better than"

Although it appears that Milani is playing two roles, it will actually be three. Milani explained that an assistant position to the Student Union Director is supposed to be funded, but to save money, the assistantship was never realized. "I've been working both to keep costs down," Milani explained.

Dean Gendron, Acting Dean of Student Affairs, doesn't foresee any problem in filling the vacancy. With the job market the way it is, we should have many applicants to choose from," he said, but added that the choosing and hiring may be a lengthy process.

Milani "I've been working both"

It was decided that any action would be postponed until Dean Walter Babb, replacing Dean Aceto, took office, which was Monday, December 1. Dean Gendron said that Dean Babb will make the final decision, but it is likely that a search committee will be formed much like that which hired Dean Babb. President Redfern has issued a memorandum which outlines past procedures and requests suggestions from anyone in the college community.

The month of December will most likely be spent in determining what the procedure will be. Because of the semester break, further action will have to be delayed until February. Hopes are that one month will be sufficient to hire Milani's replacement, so March 1 is that date on which it is hoped that a fulltime replacement can begin duties.

The beginning of Spring semester is a slow time for the Student Union Director. The Student Union Director's duties include the operation and maintenance of the Student Union, the supervision of Student Government and Student Activities Council, the coordination of events on campus, the Concert and Lecture Series, the Student Union film series, fiscal operations of the athletics events, orientation, etc. etc.

Insane? Yes, but he said most of these duties should be taken care of by Spring semester Milani is busy. The duties will be mostly routine until about the time a new person is found.

Jazz Ensemble Opens Season

The Keene State College Jazz Ensemble will present its first on-campus concert of the season on Wednesday, December 10 at 8:00 p.m. in the Brown Room of the Student Union.

The 20-member group, directed by William D. Pardus, associate professor of music, specializes in contemporary, big-band jazz-rock.

Selections for the concert include works from the Maynard Ferguson, Buddy Rich, and Stan Kenton libraries as well as other selections—some written especially for the group.

Fourth this year

Mohr resigns as selectman

Janet Moran
Equinox Staff

The Board of Selectmen was faced with the fourth resignation this year Monday night at a regular meeting. Wayne Mohr, a junior, read aloud his resignation addressed to the board and the student body. (see the editorial page.) Mohr said that his decision was without malice towards the board; he was just plain bored with his position. With his lack of interest, he said, he couldn't possibly do as good a job as someone else who was genuinely interested.

Also at the meeting, it was moved that the procedures for organizational funding are to be brought to the student body for a vote at the next meeting in March. This bill includes procedures in budgeting for student organizations such as rules for expenditures and reporting budgets. It will effect all organizations on campus that are funded by the Student Government. Pam Sanderson, president of the Student Activities Council, (S.A.C.), warned the selectmen that they "are going to get some flack" on section three of the bill.

Section three requires approval of the Board of Selectmen's treasurer of any change in line

KSCPA Announce Scholarship Grants

The Keene State College Parents Association (KSCPA) has announced that Scholarship Grants totalling $4000 will be given to needy and worthy Keene State students during 1976. These grants will be more than double the amount which KSCPA was able to give to four Keene State students during 1975. Interested students in need of financial aid, who have previously filled out the KSC Financial Aid Form, should get the simplified KSCPA Scholarship Grant form from Dean Ernest Gendron's office. This form should be submitted by December 10 so that grants can be awarded for the Spring term before students leave for the Christmas recess.

item expenditures up to and including $200.00, and the approval of the Board of Selectmen in any change of over $200.00.

Sanderson argued with the example of S.A.C. She said in an emergency monetary situation, the potential slowness of this section could stunt an activity. Sanderson added that this emergency condition doesn't only apply to her own organization.

"It can happen in any other organizations."

Moderator Terry Wiggin was appointed Chairman for the Ad-hoc Bicentennial Committee. According to Wiggin, this committee will coordinate activities in lieu of the upcoming Bicentennial. Among other activities, Wiggin hopes to have speakers to help Keene State celebrate 1976, and "possibly plant a tree for Arbor Day."

The Board of Selectmen moved and passed a constitution opening a new organization for the National Association for Concerned Veterans, (NACV).

There is hope for a mailbox in the Carle Hall-Owls Nest vicinity. The Student Life Committee intends to have one in that area by next semester.

Bach's work performed

Choir will perform tonight

Johann Sebastian Bach's 'Wachet Auf' Cantata BWV 140, will be the major work on the program when the Keene State College Choir performs in concert tonight at Saint Bernard's Church, 173 Main Street. The concert will begin at 8:00 p.m.

Compositions by William Walton, Ralph Vaughan Williams, and Francis Poulenc will also be on the program. The concert will be conducted by Dr. Terrance Anderson, associate professor of music.

A chamber orchestra of 16 string and wind instruments will assist the 80-member choir, accompanying the Bach cantata. Soloists for this composition are Brenda Fairaday, soprano, Hubert Bird, tenor, and Rodney Gisick, bass-baritone. David Brandes, organist, will accompany the choir in William Walton's 'Missa Brevis' (1966).

Missa Fairaday, an adjunct instructor of voice at the college, was soprano soloist with the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and has been a member of the Roger Wagner Chorale and the Norman Luboff Choir. She is presently director of the New York Tudor Consort, which specializes in the performance of early music.

Mr. Bird, an assistant professor of music theory and composition, conducts the college orchestra. He has appeared as a tenor soloist with many choral societies throughout the greater New England region and has recently won several national competitions for his compositions.

Mr. Gisick is a professor of voice at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He has made frequent solo appearances with university and college choirs throughout New England. Mr. Brandes, a professor of music at Franklin Pierce College, Rindge, is the director of Choral Activities at FPC. Also, he serves as the organist and choirmaster at the First United Church of Christ in Peterborough.

Living Jungle comes to KSC

Tonight at 7:30, the second Audubon wildlife film of the year will be shown at the Waltz Lecture Hall of the Science Building. 'The Living Jungle', narrated by Greg McMillan, is about Barro Colorado Island, a research center and wildlife sanctuary in the American Tropics. The variety of life forms in this jungle is incredible, from the ever-present horde of insects to the jeweled birds, the canopy dwellers that only a telephoto lens can 'see.' Not simply a picture-book of wildlife, this film is a special and beautiful study of the life styles of various Barro Colorado inhabitants, of survival and death, of continuation and growth.

The 'Living Jungle' is free of charge to those with K.S.C. ID's; for all other students - 50 cents; and for the general public - $2.00. After the film there will be a reception for the speaker and all interested persons. Come and bring a friend.

The film is sponsored by the Biology Club and Tri Beta.

Meet Live

Live and learn

All students are invited to write an informal letter of application for living and learning at the 'LIVE HOUSE' for second semester 1975-76.

State the reason you are interested in this venture. Include your name, school, home address and a short summary of your standing and status at KSC. Bring this statement to a meeting Wednesday, December 10, 1975 at 4 p.m. in the LIVE Room (114). At that time we will answer any questions and make an appointment for an interview with you before the end of the semester. We hope that at this time you are willing to make the following commitment:

"After reading through the project outline and talking with various people connected with it, I am ready to make a temporary but well thought out decision to further involve myself with an interview. The purpose of this interaction is to better understand the project and to give you a chance to better understand and to know me."

Pinnacle starts ski instructors clinic tonight

Pinnacle Mountain will hold its alpine ski instructors clinic for the coming season at the Pinnacle Mountain Lodge Wednesday, December 3rd and Thursday, December 4th at 7:00 p.m. Theory and method will be taught and discussed on these two days while a third time will be set for training on snow. The cross country clinic will be held at a later date.

A fee of $5 will be charged for the clinic, which will be directed by Klaus Bayr.

People interested should call Pinnacle Mountain at 352-9882.

'Antonia' shows tonight

The award winning documentary film, 'Antonia: A Portrait of a Woman,' will be shown at 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., tonight in the Mabel Brown Room.

'Antonia' is the story of Antonia Brico, pianist and symphony conductor, and her determination to conduct a major symphony orchestra and not be humbled by the problems of being a woman musician. An internationally recognized musician, she founded the first all woman symphony orchestra in 1938. Now 73 years old, she teaches piano and directs the Brico Symphony in Denver, Colorado.

Written and directed by singer/composer Judy Collins, a pupil of Brico, the film is an affectionate portrayal of an extraordinary woman and the spirit and determination she shows in her indomitable quest. Collins captures the charm, wit and love of music of her mentor.

The film is sponsored by the KSC Women's Council, the Women's Information Service (WISE) and the KSC Film Society. An hour long film it will be open to the public. Donations of 50 cents will be accepted.

Jazz Ensemble, Hockey Club have non-student members

Recent disclosures have brought to light two rather interesting facts that the students should have known some time ago.

The Keene State Jazz Ensemble has three members that are not students. And the KSC Hockey Club has at least three players that are not students.

At first, these facts are not overly startling. But they become an object for concern when you consider that the Hockey Club received $900 from the students for this year, and the Jazz Ensemble was recently granted $750 to go on a rather prestigious trip to New Jersey this March.

In the case of the ensemble, one of the members is a KSC graduate, one dropped out last year, and one is a high school student. Ensemble director William Pardus intends to go around ~~any controversy~~ by having all three enroll in Continuing Education, and thus be students.

First of all, I question the sense in having someone register for school, pay their registration fees, their activities fees, the $30 per credit, and attend classes for a whole semester just to go on one trip.

But more importantly, I would question the ethics of such finagling. Is it right for these people to be pulled into a system they wouldn't ordinarily be in, take advantage of student monies, go to New Jersey, and then leave KSC at the end of the semester? I don't think so. As our new Housing Director and still kinda Student Union Director Jim Milani said, the ethics are "shady."

The Hockey club has at least three or four members who are not students. They are from the Keene Community. And yet they each receive a good-sized portion of that $900 without even the pretense of being students.

There is no doubt that the Hockey Club has the best looking team it has had yet. And the ensemble is also looking terrific. There were very few schools chosen to attend this national conference, and we are one of them. But there is still that one question: Does any organization

Pink Flamingos is reckoned to be the grossest thing to hit Keene State College in recent years, with the possible exception of a Wiggan-moderated Student Body Meeting.

It was announced shortly after Wayne Mohr announced his resignation from the Board of Selectmen (the fourth this year) that the student body will award full tuition to any school to any selectmen that make it until the end of the year.

And finally, thanks for reading this far into your Manchester Union—uh—that is, your Equinox.

Campus Residents Council covers housing policies

To all on campus students who feel the need for input into the current housing policies there exists The Campus Residents Council, (CRC). This council has been in existence since 1970. Its main purpose has been the channeling of ideas of Dorm Councils and student residents to the College Senate for their approval. Examples of these ideas are, parietals, the alcohol policies, student parking regulations, living conditions in the dorms, and any changes or modifications that need to take place.

The council consists of three members from each dorm. The vice-presidents of each residence hall, two students representing all residence houses, the Director of Housing and two representatives from the student government.

bernie mclaughlin

One of the regular functions of the council is to review and submit to the Director of Housing alcohol party proposals that would take place in the residence halls. More importantly, the current issues before the council are: the need for an improved mail system for Fiske Hall, the plumbing at Owls Nest 6, the need of a U.S. mailbox located near Carle Hall and the Owls Nests, and a possible reviewing of the current alcohol policy.

The need for this council is very clear. CRC has been instrumental in achieving its objective in the past and will continue to do so in the future. It has a wide range of possibilities for the residents at Keene State. It would require that each student who has ideas for the betterment of their living conditions bring them to the CRC. Students could do this by either attending their Dorm Council meetings, or the Campus Residence Council meetings.

If you have suggestions, get in touch with your Dorm Council and find out when their next meeting is, or go to the December 8th meeting of CRC in conference rooms A-B in the Student Union, Monday at 6:30.

Remember your participation is important. No one knows more about dorm policy effectiveness than you.

Selectman Mohr resigns because of lack of interest

To the Board of Selectmen and the student body,
Effective immediately, I hereby resign my position as a member of the Keene State College Board of Selectmen. In justifying such an action it would be most convenient and easy for me to plead a severe case of personal problems or general lack of time to perform the duties expected of me. However, although consideration of these factors has contributed to my ultimate decision, they by no means express the most important aspect of this action.

Quite simply, I have a general and obvious lack of interest in the everyday machinations of student government which constitute the primary responsibility of a member of the board. Motion, amendments, parliamentary rules, constitutions, budgets and bleachers bore me. I also have a very specific disdain for those peripheral duties, including marshalling and cleaning up after those inebriating horror shows we have come to know as beer dances, which also accrue to the conscientious board member.

That I was so naive as to think I could become interested in the workings of student politics is regrettable. That I have, in the very short time I have been associated with the board, failed to conscientiously discharge the responsibilities entrusted to me and that I am now inconveniencing those remaining members of the board is equally regrettable. Therefore, I apologize to both the student government and the student body.

It is neither with malice nor approbation toward the board that I publish this decision.

Sincerely,
Wayne C. Mohr

Volunteer tutors needed for Adult Reading Program

An Open Letter to All KSC Students,

A New Adult Reading Program has been started in the Cheshire County Area. Posters proclaiming "Some Adults Can't Read This" are displayed throughout the Keene Community. I am the coordinator of the program and am looking for volunteer tutors. If you have two hours a week to spare, you could be a big help to the program. You and your student will decide when and where you will meet. The program is one-to-one oriented so you would be assigned a special student

The Adult Tutorial Program is designed to identify illiterate adults living in the Cheshire County Area. Many of these people are "functionally illiterate" and are unable to read the labels on foods that they buy, cannot fill out tax forms, cannot complete job application forms and are unable to help their children with homework. They have either never attended school or if they have, they may have had an undiagnosed learning disability.

I really think the college is an excellent source of volunteer tutors. It's only two hours a week and may be one of the most satisfying things you do at KSC.

You need no special abilities to be able to tutor except patience and understanding. There will be workshops that you must attend that will introduce you to methods of teaching reading. These workshops will be held throughout the year so you can volunteer at any time.

I will be waiting for your call! We need volunteers - get involved. Help someone learn to read!

It won't take long for the Owls to find out just how good

Playing the point on the 1-3-1 will be sophomore guard Kevin Savage from Litchfield, New Hampshire. Savage's replacement will be Eugene White, a junior college transfer from New York City.

On the wings of the 1-3-1 will be Mark Yeaton and Al Hicks. Yeaton is a Junior from Suncook. Last year Yeaton averaged 11.8 points per game with his fine perimeter shooting. Hicks is a senior and a two-time Owl MVP. The Trenton, New Jersey native had his finest season last year when he averaged 25.2 points and 12.3 rebounds a game. He was selected as an NAIA All-American. Waiting in the wings are Charles Battle, a freshman from Peekskill, N.Y. and Mike Thuelen, Coach Theulen's son, a freshman from Keene.

In the pivot the Owls will have newcomers Bob Duffy and Joe Yaris; they will alternate between the high and low posts. Yaris is a 6-7 transfer from Alfred (N.Y.) Tech where he was an outstanding junior college performer. Duffy is a 6-6 junior from Rochester, N.Y. Reserve pivotmen are Rene Williams and Tom Cairns. New skiers high hopes for ski team

Bernie McLaughlin
Equinox Staff

This year's Keene State College Ski team should be vastly improved over a year ago. This improvement is the result of new skiers, the new practice hill in Swanzy, and most importantly, the return of the entire squad from last year.

"It should be the best season yet," stated coach George Libel. "We have more veterans this year than we did last year, so we will improve."

Last year's fifth place finish in the NCAA championship meet could have been better if Keene's Alpine competition was stronger. This year however, the team has a very good chance to finish higher. A welcome addition to this year's squad is Timothy Hancock. He is a transfer from Castleton State College who is expected to bolster Keene's Alpine competition. The experienced veterans returning, will also be a plus in that category.

The newly completed ski hill in Swanzy will enable the team to practice after school instead of having to leave for the entire day to travel to a large ski area. With the closer practice slope, the team can practice more. They can leave after classes and practice in the afternoon, and not have to compete with anyone for the hill.

The Alumni Association gave 2,000 dollars to buy a used rope tow, which has enabled the skiers to get more runs in during the practice sessions.

Some veterans who will be returning this year are: Chuck Broomhall, junior; Steve Skilton, senior; Ron Peterson, junior; Keith Woodward, senior; Rick Paul, senior, Kevin

Hockey team scores five goals in third period to win opener

The KSC Hockey team started their season off Monday night in a hard hitting contest against Worcester Junior College. They finished the night as victors by a score of 8-4.

In the first period Harvey Couch carried the team with two goals; the first one at 9:50 followed 53 seconds later by a Worcester goal, and Couch's second goal at 18:06.

Penalties hurt KSC in the first period with Shank, Lawson, Roloff, and Ray all getting minor penalties. The goalie "Lucky" Pierre LaBlanc was charged with one major penalty.

In the beginning of the second period Mark Olsiewski picked up the rebound of Don Roloff's slapshot to score. Worcester then scored two goals to tie it up. Also in the second period Roloff received a minor, double minor, and misconduct penalty to give him a grand total of five penalties for the night.

In the third period Worcester scored first but KSC broke it wide open scoring five in a row.

Women's volleyball team learns a lot but loses season finale to Vermont

The women's volleyball team finished their first season Saturday in a tri-meet against Castleton State College and the University of Vermont.

The meet started out with UVM playing Castleton. UVM won the match winning the first and third games. In the second match Castleton played KSC. The Owls A team blew Castleton off the court winning the first two games 15-1 and 15-11. The B team defeated Castleton in two games, the score was 15-4 in both games.

In the last match of the day the B team overran UVM 15-1 and 15-12. The A team won its first game against UVM 15-13, but lost the match by losing the second and third games 15-13 and 15-9.

The UVM coach Cathy Schiller said "the reason the Owls lost to us is that KSC and UVM have a tradition of splitting victories during the season. KSC defeated UVM earlier in the season. Coach Daisy Herndon said the reason we lost is that we didn't play good ball.

Outstanding players for the A team were Gail Burgess and Lorri Levi, for the B team Judy Cramer was the most outstanding player of the day.

Speaking on next season Coach Herndon said "we learned a lot. Next year looks good. We will be trying for post season play next year."

Assistant Coach Red Carpenter said the reason the B team did so well is that they had team work. All season they played team ball."

The A team's record for the season is 6-9. The B team's is 9-4.

McKinley, junior, and Dave Wenmark, junior. There are 21 skiers vying for 12 positions. These 12 positions may be cut to eight, depending on the NCAA rulings for this year. The team carried 12 last year.

The schedule for this year calls for five regular season meets, two championship meets, and two post season meets. In order to enter the two post season meets, the skiers must qualify to the NCAA standards.

The first meet of the season is scheduled for January 16th-17th at Haystack Mountain, with Windham College as the host entry. The next meet will be at Madonna Mountain, and the hosts for that competition are Saint Michaels and Johnson Colleges, January 23-24.

Hawthorne hockey here today

Couch scored first for a hat trick. Tower then scored because of a misjudgement by the Worcester goalie. Olsiewski was next scoring with a backhand shot with an assist by Steve Hobart. This gave Olsiewski a hat trick also. Candello scored his first goal with an assist from Couch. Rounding out the scoring was Olsiewski scoring on the power play with the assist from Couch.

The only fight was in the third period between KSC's Ray Bretton and Worcester's Boyer. Boyer was put to rest with a misconduct penalty.

KSC's goalies LaBlanc and Hanson saved 23 of 27 shots on goal and Worcester saved 24 of 32 shots on goal.

Coach Robert Couttes said, "KSC played excellent position hockey with a lot of hustle."

The next game will be home against Nathaniel Hawthorne, today. The game will be played at the Cheshire Ice Arena. For any students interested in going to the game there will be a bus leaving the Student Union at 6:30. Students may ride the bus to the game for a fee of 25 cents.

competed. The Keene swimmers looked extremely good, placing second to Coast Guard in the 300 yd butterfly and 400 yd free style contests, while finishing fourth in the 800 yd free style relay. The highlight of the meet, however, had to be the 400 yd medley relay. Keene's relay is the finest in years, and may be good enough for All American honors. The Coast Guard Academy, however, is also a powerhouse, and the meeting shaped up as a classic battle. Not only did the Keene swimmers win, but they won convincingly, with a time of 3:49.3, good enough to qualify for the nationals.

squad at 6-8, was an all-state performer last year at Fairbury (Nebraska) Junior College.

Rounding out the squad are sophomore Bill Bristoll from Brooklyn, N.Y., freshman wingman Paul Trocki from Pelham, and Warren Marshall. Marshall, a 6-5 wingman, was the top junior college performer in the state of Rhode Island last season. (Marshall was stricken with an emergency appendectomy over the Thanksgiving break. He'll probably be out of action until February.)

On defense the Owls will use a pressure man-to-man. The idea of this defense is to pressure the man before he gets the ball and it relies on quickness and a lot of switching. It is a good defense when played well, as witnessed by Indiana's drubbing of UCLA last Saturday. When played poorly it can result in a lot of easy baskets. Coach Theulen believes he has the personnel to play this team oriented defense.

After Merrimac the Owls will play Eastern Connecticut Saturday night in Willimantic, Conn. The next home game will be Tuesday night when they host Husson. The Husson game will start at 6:30 rather than the usual 8 p.m. starting time.

presidential election good. He pointed out that he was a trial lawyer able to relate ideas in terms which ordinary people can understand. Complaint registered of false hours at least that he had seen, and while he was in charge of the operation, he "had no knowledge of it."

False Hours

There was also another complaint registered against Mallat's office recently. Carrol King, a student who has worked with the parking office up until recently, said earlier this week that Mallat was signing the worksheet of a girl who was not working the hours she was scheduled for. The girl worked in the parking office with King. She was "often late," and in general did not work what she was supposed to, King said.

King said she called Mallat's office several times, and talked to his secretary, but "they wouldn't do anything."

After getting no results from her calls, King explained that she and another girl (who also worked in the office) went to Mallat. They showed him the worksheets, and told him about the girl not working her hours, she said, "but he signed her worksheet."

Mallat responded to King yesterday.

"Any (workstudy) timesheet, signed by three student, that is presented to me, I sign. I happen to have a little faith and confidence in young people.

"Carrol's going around making a lot of allegations. She had better be prepared to be responsible for them," Mallat added.

He accused King of "doing a lot of talking," and hiding behind a "cloak of innuendo."

"She's off on a mission," Mallat said. "I just hope she doesn't hurt someone."

King said the reason she quit working in the parking office was Mallat.

"He doesn't care about the students," she said.

Student funds for non-students?

taking advantage of STUDENT funds have the right to be excellent at the expense of those students? No.

These are not the first examples of this happening. The former KSC Rugby Club had non-student members. In fact, the Fine Film Society still allows them.

What I suggest is that the Board of Selectmen look into this situation, and hold all organizations responsible for spending student funds on students, at the risk of losing said funds. This has already been started. I hope it follows through.

I also suggest that the students as a whole, at the next town meeting, discuss and form a policy that will be adhered to always. After all, (and this bears repeating for the 100th time this year) it is their money.

PEOPLES BICENTENNIAL COMMISSION

When Rifkin began the People's Bicentennial Commission in 1971, the movement was in tatters, Richard Nixon seemed more powerful than ever and the bicentennial was just a logo on some graphic designer's desk.

COMMON SENSE

It's subversive stuff, but at the same time patriotic. Arch Booth, former head of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, has written of FBC literature. "It is propaganda as skillful as any I've seen. So well done is the material that if one of your children brought it home from school and you just glance at it, you probably would notice nothing wrong."
