SIGMA NEWS

The Brothers of Sigma Delta Chi met on Tuesday April 8, 1969 for their regular meeting of the month. New charter members were welcomed to the first meeting. The Brotherhood now stands at 32 members, and looks forward to larger membership next year. Housing contracts were reviewed for the occupancy of Winchester House next fall. The new "Sigma House", as it will be called, is a recently renovated structure and a pride of Sigma Delta Chi. Doctor Goder attended this meeting in his new role as house director. Plans are also under way for next year's social and community activities and a calendar will be set up under the direction of Alan Cohen, chairman of this committee.

The Brothers entertained on Saturday, April 12, 1969, the Province Collaborator of Phi Mu Delta Fraternity Dick Holoff. Mr. Holoff was impressed with the campus and Sigma's gain in establishing a fourth social service fraternity at Keene State College. Sigma Delta Chi has long been interested in a national fraternal organization and Phi Mu Delta is one fraternity under consideration.

Sigma's two softball teams are looking forward to a successful season in intramural competition. Our competition will learn through sad experience the nefarious nature of such all time greats as "The Mad Russian" Olen tak on third, "prk Chop" Provencher, behind the plate and "Hollywood" Al Cohen on the mound. The Sigma Delta Chi line is usually pugnacious as the teams who play Sigma A and Sigma B will soon prove. Our best wishes to the sluggers of Sigma A and Sigma B in the coming season.

In the IFC league and final playoff is on Thurs. April 17, 1969 at 7 p.m. The Brothers of Sigma, realizing the merits of membership on the IFC, have made application to this organization and it is our serious hope that we become a member. Problems in the interpretation of Sigma's constitution have led to joint talks and the success of these will be demonstrated on Thursday. Our belief in the democratic process of the IFC has led us to petition for admission and, we, the Brothers of Sigma Delta Chi, hope for the benefits of this democracy in the consideration of our case.

KAPPA NEWS

Last Wednesday night marked the finish of Kappa's initiation for 1969. The third degree banquet was held at the Black Lantern Restaurant after which the final oaths of the brotherhood were administered. This year's initiation was run very smoothly, under the direction of Degree Master Dave Brown. He was assisted by a committee consisting of brothers George Manekas, Tom Burns, Neil Gallagher, Glenn Page, Jack Carey, and Marty Kadel. Brother Brown turned in a phenomenal job which was most certainly appreciated and enjoyed by the pledges.

Through our careful selection process and vigorous initiation, we have maintained our brotherhood position as the smallest and tightest knit organization on campus.

The annual Kappa Kapers, a one night show featuring skits on a variety of subjects, is once again in the stages of preparation. Brothers Steve Stefanik, Marty Kadel, and Dan Dal Pra are in charge. This year's production promises to be another scandalous affair which will stick in the curried, compared to the substantial number of negotiations that have been concluded peacefully throughout the nation, reveals that the strikes usually resulted from refusal of the school boards to consider reasonable solutions to the disputes.

"When an obstinate school board knows that its position will be sustained by an injunction, there is little motivation for it to try to negotiate a compromise settlement. By giving that small minority of school boards a feeling of uncertainty as to whether an injunction would be issued, the proposed bill would encourage peaceful settlement of disagreements."

The bill provides that the organization representing the majority of the professional employees in a school system be designated as exclusive representative of all such employees in negotiating with the school board.

One important advantage of a federal statute, Mr. Chanin pointed out, is that it would make possible the establishment of national legal precedents in the negotiation field. Presently,

ALPHA NEWS

The arrival of the spring season, the brothers of Alpha are looking forward to the intramural softball games. Both old and new brothers have displayed a substantial amount of spirit with 62 brothers signing the roster. Last year, Alpha went undefeated, and their victory in the fraternity championship game won the house the Inter-fraternity Athletic Award. The brotherhood this year is hoping for a repeat performance which would net us the athletic trophy again.

The brothers were paid a visit recently by alumni Brother Charlie Colcord, from the pledge class of 1956. Charlie is a brother whom no one has seen for a long time, but one whom no one will forget for a long time either. He was passing through, and as he did, he left us with a sizeable donation towards our new house and many interesting stories about several professors and other alumni brothers.

For all of those students who allowed us to exhibit their works this year, we say thank you. There were a large number of exhibitors this year compared to last which was the reason for its popularity and success. Hopefully, it will be an even bigger event next year.

The exhibit was dismantled this past weekend and most of the works are in Mr. Moore's office where they can be picked up any weekday from 9 am to 5 pm.

States having negotiation statutes essentially like the federal one could operate under their own law, while states with laws that did not meet federal standards could either strengthen them or come directly under the federal act. More than 15 states have some type of negotiation law - although some are very weak - and nearly as many others are developing bills or have ones pending.

Starting point in implementing the federal legislation on the local level would be a teacher organization's request for official school board recognition as exclusive representative for negotiation. However, a competing organization could intervene by presenting a verified membership list containing at least 30 per cent of the professional employees in the negotiating unit. In cases of doubt as to the teachers' organizational preference, a secret ballot election would be held to determine the representative.

In general, the law would cover public school professional staff at the elementary, secondary, and higher education levels, but would specifically exclude superintendents and assistant superintendents - representatives of management in the day-to-day operation of the schools. Whether such persons as guidance counselors, librarians, psychologists, and social workers, as well as principals, vice principals, and other first line supervisors, would be included with class

THE CASE FOR A UNICAMERAL GOVERNMENT

DURHAM, N.H. -- After ten months' study and work a committee here proposed March 6 that the University of New Hampshire's present form of government be abolished. "What we are suggesting is a single-body governing system not modeled after anything," said R. Stephen Jenks, chairman of the Committee on Government Organization and an assistant professor in the Whittemore School of Business and Economics. "We believe students are responsible, are capable of representing the best interests of the university, and need to be heard on all matters affecting the life of the university."

The University Senate-appointed committee of 13 students, administrators and faculty members presented its proposal for a unique unicameral system of government Thursday at a university convocation. Public hearings and several discussion meetings will be held before the fate of the proposal is decided by a campus-wide referendum. Balloting by students and faculty will be completed March 18.

EQUAL NUMBER OF STUDENTS, FACULTY
If the committee's proposal is adopted -- and indications are that it will be approved by this community -- it would replace the present bicameral system of a Student Senate and University Senate (composed of faculty, administrators and students) with a single voting body to deal with university-wide policy, backed by supporting student and faculty caucuses.

Composition of the new University Senate would include equal numbers of students and faculty, said Jenks. "Our proposal is put into effect, to the best of my knowledge UNH will be the first university in the United States to go this way."

"A true reorganization of university government has been undertaken by few schools," he added, "and none have come out with plans as bold as to have students represented in equal numbers with faculty at the highest legislative level."

Proposed is a senate composed of 30 students, 30 faculty, 12 administrators and five graduate students, which would replace New Hampshire's present ratio of 27 students, 50 faculty and 13 administrators. All student and faculty members would be nominated and elected on a "district" basis.

SMALLER BODY, LARGER PARTICIPATION
Senators representing faculty and undergraduates would respectively constitute a Faculty Caucus and Student Caucus of the University Senate, according to the proposal, and each group would meet monthly with its "forum."

The Faculty Forum and Student Forum would respectively consist of all faculty and all students at the University of New Hampshire, with members of each being completely free to speak, initiate resolutions and vote. Resolutions or other expressions of opinion of the forums would be advisory, according to Jenks, and would be transmitted to the Senate by members of the caucuses. The plan calls for monthly forum meetings before the regularly scheduled monthly meeting of the University Senate.

Under this system, Jenks' committee feels, there is an opportunity for much larger participation by students and faculty in the decision-making process, although the actual number of senators will be reduced.

Today there are approximately 100 members of the Student Senate plus 91 University Senate members; with the proposed re-organization there would be 77 senators. "If there is objection to the smaller size of the Senate," Jenks said in reference to the reduction, "we could increase the numbers slightly. But we don't want to change the student-faculty ratio."

ADVANTAGES OF UNICAMERAL SYSTEM
The Jenks committee unanimously approved the unicameral proposal and sees three basic advantages for the new government system. In addition to greater participation by students and faculty the committee feels students will have gained a much stronger voice in campus decision-making. Second, states the report, the proposed unicameral system is much more efficient than the present structure, allowing debate and decision on an issue "in a single University Senate meeting, rather than being debated at least twice as is now the case."

Additionally, the report states, a unicameral system should allow a reduced committee structure in the university, replacing "the present tangle of overlapping committees with a unified structure representing all members of the university community."

ALTERNATIVES CONSIDERED
According to John T. Christie of Dover, N.H., a committee member and managing editor of the UNH student newspaper, more than 300 colleges and universities were surveyed by the committee before its final proposal was drafted. "At almost every school we surveyed that had done things in the past five years to involve students in the governing process, virtually all had simply added students to existing structures," he said. "In many cases what they already had were inequities, inefficiency and unrepresentative government."

Until recently several committee members were still considering a tricameral system (with three separate senates -- student, faculty and university) but, said Jenks, dropped the idea in favor of a unicameral plan after attempting to work hypothetical problems through it. "The system was inefficient," said Jenks, "even more so than our present bicameral system. But the absolute number of voting people is larger and I suppose this could be used as an argument against the unicameral idea."

He said several UNH faculty and an ad hoc committee of students are urging further consideration of a tricameral system as an alternative to his committee's proposal.

"Superficially," he added, "the tricameral system seems to offer more. After study, however, we feel the unicameral system is more liberal despite appearances, and we're pushing for the form we're unanimously in favor of."

WHAT LIES AHEAD?
The Committee on Government Organization presented its report and proposal to students and faculty March 6, and its ultimate adoption will hinge on favorable referendum results after March 18. Before that time a series of information and discussion meetings are planned and afterwards, assuming a "yes" vote, the proposal will be reviewed by New Hampshire's board of trustees.

If the proposal is adopted, says Jenks, elections will be held in late April and the new system will be in full operation next September.

"Since last May when we began work," said Jenks, "the committee has had four criteria in mind. We have been attempting to create a system of government which is fair to all and more efficient in operation. It must also allow more participation and finally, we've attempted to create a government which draws the university together and gets everyone more involved."

"We know we've met the first three," he said, "and we're certainly hopeful for the fourth."

American Cablevision distributed the program over Channel 12, the weather station. Fred Zecker and his crew transported the equipment to and from the church. They also adapted the program to their modulator.

The Audio-Visual Center provided the cameras, equipment, and personnel. The three cameras were operated by Professor Sherman Lovering, Clayton Keith, Jr., special engineer; and Harold C. Colburn, technician. The program consisted of the 9 a.m. service and lasted

Students Get More Representation
Whitewater, Wis.- (I.P.)- Student representation on the allocations committee at Wisconsin State University at Whitewater will be increased next fall to two students for every faculty member represented.

According to Ginny Helvill, committee member, this latest move, approved by the administration, places faculty members to a greater extent in an advisory position and allows more student say in determining how they as students want their money spent. She further stated that other Wisconsin State Universities have recently staffed their allocations committees with students only, thereby giving students the complete responsibility in handing out budgeted money.

All concerned with the production felt that the first try of the joint KSC-TV Cablevision effort was a complete success. A fine choice of scenes were chosen by Clayton Keith and the cameramen showed their finesse in their shots.

This program was approved by a newly formed committee consisting of Dean Pierce, Dean Davis, Mr. Lyle, Dr. Cunningham, Dean Campbell, and Mr. Lovering.

Professor Lovering said, "The T.V. Committee felt that such an experiment was necessary in order to evaluate the potential of cable casting at KSC. I hope it is the first of many. The possibilities are limited only by our imagination."

Dishonesty vs. Dishonesty

We asked for increased representation on the College Senate. 15 students, half of what the UNH student body will have next year.

Opposition came and was incomprehensible; the responsibility of students was challenged by faculty senators who, by their own actions proved themselves irresponsible, undemocratic, and grossly dishonest.

A letter was sent to selected faculty members prior to the voting last Thursday. It read as follows:

"If we can vote by secret ballot (I understand someone will move), we have the votes to block the increase in student representation at this time.

"Let's do it! There are a total of 32 votes. We the minority, can muster at least 12 of these leaving 20 for the majority, whereas they need 3/4 of 32 or 24 votes to pass the proposed amendment.

Yours for faculty strength,
Ann C. Peters"

There was no reason for blocking the increased representation, and the letter was not sent to all members of the senate.

The letter said that a secret ballot should defeat the proposal. The letter then, should have read "If we can sneak behind the curtain of a secret ballot, we've got it made, but if we have to vote right out loud and in public, we've lost, for as we all know, none of us wants anyone to know what we think . . ."

The most amusing, or, depending on your sense of humor, perhaps disgusting, thing about the letter is the signature, "Yours for faculty strength". If to support, tolerate or cause the division of a faculty into we, they groups in strength, it is best that students are not added to the senate. . . they would be lost in this defective logic.

But the students are faced with a much bigger problem than just this letter. The problem has become one of atmosphere more than individual cases; an atmosphere of dishonesty fought with dishonesty.

While we may single out individuals as blatant examples of what is wrong here, we must at the same time realize KSC will not be cured over night.

We have witnessed a student and faculty request and demand almost ignored by the Trustees. If preponderance of college opinion fully supports a man, how can a board, of men and women who have no direct contact with the campus, act to the total exclusion of those who live on the campus?

Is the student senate to be nothing more than a red tape organization serving only to appease students by making them feel they are listened to?

When will faculty opinion become worth anything? We cannot be expected to exist in a community that will allow no challenge, and we cannot afford to tolerate any attitude of likening administrative heads to gods.

GUEST EDITORIAL

by Frank L'Hommedieu

In regards to innovation and experimentation, it is becoming almost axiomatic that Keene State must languish twenty to thirty years behind other institutions of its kind, and still farther behind private institutions. The defeat of a motion last week to expand student representation on the College Senate from three to fifteen, was indicative of this continuing trend. As an advocate and supporter of this motion, I was embittered and disappointed by this action. It was further angered by the spineless collusion evidenced by Dr. Peters' now infamous letter. I was especially upset since talking with her the day before the Senate meeting, she assured me that she could see no reason for keeping students off the College Senate.

Another issue, perhaps more intolerable, is the unethical coercion of a College Senate member by a senior administrator. The spectre of beady, cold eyes glaring at senate meetings has influenced more than one vote.

These instances, as one faculty member put it, are symptoms of a basically sick and corrupt atmosphere at Keene which exudes from the top echelons of the administration and filters down through the brown-nosing chain of command in the faculty rat-race. Shooting on other faculty, back stabbing, selling out, and fear induced inaction, are the basis for merit increments, "re-adjustments," and administrative accolades. Can we continue to tolerate such conditions at Keene?

I must make it clear that this letter is not intended to attack those faculty who voted against increased student representation openly because of their sincere beliefs. Rather, it is aimed at the several reactionary and paranoid "teachers" who embraced for "faculty strength."

From my many observations at College-Senate meetings I have seen exploded before me the myth of the competent professional perceptively handling the problems of the college. I have seen a significant number of insecure and backward-looking individuals, for whom I have little respect as senators. They are Hamlets sans tragic dimensions; Professional Prufrocks wondering, "Do I dare?"

Roman fiddled while Keene burned. Will the faculty vacillate until it explodes?

LETTERS

A Letter to the Editor and the Members of this Campus Community:

The events surrounding the Constitution Change before the College Senate concerning fifteen students as delegates to the Senate are particularly upsetting to me.

When students are called upon by the college to use rationality and then are foisted by unethical tactics they are naturally alienated.

The letter circulated by Ann C. Peters, department head and a member of the Academic Advisory Council, can only be a giant step in the separation of students from faculty in general and the extinction of the respect that the students of this campus once held for "due process" and "proper channels."

This woman who likes to call herself conservative and considerate (she is very considerate of incoming presidents), has turned a sizeable number of students against her tactics and her only hope is to make amends immediately.

The integrity of the College Senate is being smirched by the presence of this woman on its roster. I am also deeply upset at the circumstances concerning the activities of a well known administrator on this campus.

Well substantiated reports are reaching students and faculty alike that this man used the power of his key position in the administration to influence the vote on the student representation issue in the College Senate.

To threaten anyone by virtue of his dependency is unethical and immoral. Such practices must be condemned by the whole student body of this college.

We, the students, are being used in a servile manner while men of this caliber are allowed to run rampant and destroy the morals of this college with subversive activities.

The responsibility of controlling this man lies with his peers in administration and with the Board of Trustees. Apparently both groups hold this man in great esteem or they are afraid of him.

The problem now comes to this: if the powers of this college refuse to take action on this and other matters, the students and faculty of this college will take the lead, as they have done in the past and work to solve the problems that this institution suffers. The administration and the Board of Trustees have been given enough time -- it is now the hour for other "channels".

Dear Editor:

Sometime in the month of April or May all higher learning veteran students will receive, as in the past, the Certification of Attendance Card (VA Form 21E-6553).

Until the card has been signed by the veteran and returned to this office the money for this last full month and partial month of educational allowance will not be released. In addition, a bar to all future payments will be established and educational allowances for ensuing periods of enrollment may not be released until the certification requirement for the present period of enrollment has been satisfied.

If the veteran plans to reenroll for the 1969 - 70 school year it is most important that he indicate his reenrollment plans in the space provided on the card. This will then generate the preprinted enrollment form that expedites the processing of his award for the next school year.

Prompt submission of enrollment forms for the summer session will result in the early processing and payment of allowance to the veteran. It is most important that the beginning and ending dates of the summer sessions be shown, the actual credit hours earned per session and the number of class sessions of attendance per week (item 8 on VA Form 21E-1999). A class session represents each 50 minutes of attendance per week - 700 minutes per week is the equivalent to 14 class sessions.

The hours shown on the veteran's Certification of Attendance Card for the summer session will reflect the credit hours earned NOT the class sessions of attendance, even though payment of allowance may be based upon class sessions reported.

If the veteran attends less than 7 class sessions tuition and fees must be shown on the appropriate blocks on the enrollment document. A Certification of Attendance Card for the summer period will be furnished the veteran student, and the requirements set out above similarly apply.

For enrolled graduate students the credit hours to be earned should be reported in item 7 and the rate of pursuit indicated in Block 10. If less than one half time, tuition and fees are to be entered in Block 9.

On Saturday, April 5, the KSC chapter of Alpha Omega sponsored a car wash at St. Bernard's church, where Fr. Horan donated the space and water without charge.

The fraternity realized a profit of $50 and would like to thank all who participated. The next fraternity meeting is in the Commons, Tuesday, April 15, at 5:30.

To the Editor:

I feel that an oversight on the part of the Monadnock has been committed. That on the failure to report on the recent production of "Mother Courage."

What I ask is not to have a critic review the play, but simply to inform the students of Keene State that such a program was presented and that it was performed for their benefit.

Perhaps you feel enough comment was made about the play by students; however, none of this was official as would have been mentioned in the school paper.

I am sure the caliber of acting did not merit recognition but this is not my intention. I feel that, regardless of performances by players, the play contained and presented in itself a message of worth to everyone on campus. I certainly believe that if the air of apathy continues unchecked, the student body will coast downhill to graduation.

Take no personal offense I do not suggest that the MONADNOCK staff drag people to college functions, but, as the school newspaper I do feel it is the duty of the MONADNOCK to bring to the attention of the student not only future events but also past events of importance.

To show good faith and that I am not seeking personal recognition, I leave the choice of printing or omitting my name to the discretion of the editors.

SIGMA NEWS

On Thursday evening, April 17, Sigma Delta Chi was accepted as an official fraternity by the members of the Inter-Fraternity Council.

The meeting, held in the Hale Conference room, held several surprises for the Sigma delegation but in the end the democracy of that institution, the I.F.C., was proven and Sigma is now a member.

Sigma wishes to extend to TKE its special thanks to upholding our position in the IFC from the time of our first petition. We are deeply indebted to the Brothers of Tau Kappa Epsilon and look forward to working with them in the IFC in the coming year. Thanks are also extended to Alpha and Kappa. More news next week.

TKE NEWS

The house had a fine turnout for the Keene area Cancer drive. We collected almost $200 for the fund and we are proud of our efforts.

Plans are now under way for a fund-raising program of our own, part of which will be a car-wash, scheduled for some time in the near future.

Continuing in our attempt to make TKE an even better fraternity, we will hold our annual retreat in Alstead on April 26. Attended only by the Fraters, the purpose of this meeting is to discuss problems concerning the house now, and to formulate future goals and objectives.

This is the time when we express all our views, regardless of the consequences. We derive a great deal of satisfaction from these retreats in addition to much useful information and constructive ideas.

The Fraters would like to thank our "O.D.'s" for sponsoring a spaghetti supper for us, last Sunday night.

The brotherhood extends a get well wish to Frater Sean McGivron, recuperating from a back operation.

A belated statement of congratulation must be extended to our volleyball "A" team for netting the schools intramural championship, downing the "G.D.I.'s" in the final game.

Finally, the social committee, headed by Frater Willy Dwinells is finalizing plans for the annual TEKE picnic, to be held at the estate of Frater George Norstrand (star of stage, screen and T.V.).

ALPHA NEWS

Congratulations go to the Alpha "A" volleyball team for winning the fraternity championship, making it the third consecutive year for Alpha winning in volleyball.

The "A" team finished the regular season undefeated, after which they made the semi-finals in the tournament, and were upset by TKE "A", losing in a very close match.

Congratulations are also in order for the thirty-seven pledges who were able to make it through the fraternity initiation ceremonies and are now qualified to become Brothers of Alpha.

After third degree is carried out, Alpha will number ninety six brothers strong. The brothers would like to commend the pledge class for their display of spirit throughout their initiation period.

We would like to remind the campus of the raffle that is being sponsored by the pledge class of 1969, the prize of which is a basket of spirits. The proceeds of the raffle are to go to the Alpha Pi Tau House Fund.

Thus far, the Brotherhood has been very successful in meeting the payments on the new house, and we feel that this raffle will net us sufficient funds as to assure us of being able to continue meeting our financial obligations.

The Alpha Opera Company has created another masterpiece which will be presented later this spring. The dates for the opera will be announced in the near future. With the text of the opera completed far in advance, and Brother Dave White, head of the stage committee working hard on props and background scenery, this year's opera should prove to be a delightful experience.

The executive producer of this year's opera is Brother Scott Chase, and the director once again is Brother Steve Bodnar.

Brother Jeff Cotton was very happy to see a very dear friend of his named Mable who came back to visit him after an unusually long absence. Jeff has expressed his desire to see Mable more often, and says that her visits are always a welcome experience.

And Brothers John Geary and Tom Martinson also had some interesting experience in Washington, D.C. after the vacation. It seems that some of the go-go dancers had some interesting moves. Unfortunately, though, Brothers Geary and Martinson didn't.

EPSILON PI INITIATION

An initiation of new members into Epsilon Pi Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi at Keene State College will be held Tuesday, April 29th, at 7:30 p.m. in the library conference room.

The eight initiates are: Francis Brooks, Mary Dugan, Sandra Ewing, Joyce Giliam, Cheryl Paradi, E. A. Plante, Patricia Royse, and Stephen Towle.

Kappa Delta Pi is an honor society in education. Individuals are invited to membership because of "high records and an exhibited professional attitude which would enable one to grow in the field of education."

Personal attitudes towards life and teaching are also considered.

Dr. Young will be the guest speaker for the evening. All members of Kappa Delta Pi are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Last week marked the return home of three of our brothers from other parts of the country. Honorary brother Don "Bing" Bingham arrived back in Keene from a four week stay in Florida. Brother Bingham had originally planned on residing in the Sunshine state but due to circumstances beyond anybody's control, he saw fit to return to Kappa House.

Although Bing will probably be making other trips around the United States, he will unfortunately be unable to return to Florida.

Brother Eino "Bud" Jacobson is visiting with us for a short time after nearly a year in Idaho. He is well remembered for the numerous horror shows associated with him. Brother Jacobson graduated in January of 1968 and has been living in the West since then.

Brother Albert Saboski also paid us a visit. Al who is considered a legend in his own time is known and loved by all. Anyone who remembers him will attest to this.

Last week-end a group of spirited brothers from Gamma Chapter journeyed to Framingham, Mass., to help initiate a new chapter of Kappa Delta Phi at Framingham State College. They were assisted by brothers of Upsilon Chapter from Lowell State College.

The Kappa 'B' softball team was victorious last week by a score of 12 - 4 over Sigma 'D'. Winning pitcher Gary King threw near perfect ball over the last five innings to insure the victory.

Big bats were utilized by Niel Gallagher, Kev Coriveau, Bill Weir, and Bob Lang. Lenny Hebert, Gary Prevost, Dan Dalpra, John Blackburn, Mike Scott, and Pete Otis were outstanding in the field.

Kappa 'A' was rained out in their scheduled game with Sigma 'A'. Members of the team are Dave Brown, Pete Baldoumas, Jack Carey, Marty Kadel, Dave Tait, Bob Eagle, Joey Edwards, Rick McVane, Gerry Gilman, Al Dunbar, Tom Burnas, and Steve Stefanik.

In the true Kappa idea of working hard and playing hard, Brother Kev Coriveau has been hard at work at his new part time job as a male model. Besides his salary, Kev gets free hair stylings every week.

College Queen Pagent

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 14 -- With orientation and two competitive forums out of the way, the 50 finalists in the 15th Annual National College Queen Pagent get set for two events which in the past have proved to be the most popular of the pagent. One is the Cook-In, the other a creative color design activity called a Rit Romp. Both events are sponsored by Best Foods.

Representing New Hampshire in the Pagent is Miss Carol Lynn Oleksiw, a student at Keene State College and the daughter of Mrs. Jane Oleksiw, 188 Birch Street, Manchester, Conn.

The annual National College Queen Pagent is planned to honor America's most outstanding college girl. The finalists, one from each of the 50 states, are selected, not for beauty, but for their scholastic achievement, campus leadership and community service.

During the contract of the pagent, the girls participate in a series of competitive events and are judged on many aspects of campus, career and home life. They discuss such subjects as education, current events, art, literature, fashion and careers.

The girl who achieves the highest accumulative score in the events is named the 1969 National College Queen.

The new queen will be presented with more than $5,000 worth of prizes including a trip to Europe, a new car and Corn Products Company stock; but perhaps the most important of all will be the honor and thrill of being the 1969 National College Queen.

To implement these policies, a continuing review committee of nine faculty members, "broadly representative of entire faculty," will examine all proposals for contracts involving national security classifications, including extensions, supplements, or changes in existing contracts.

President Starcher said: "Only a few calmly ask are we willing to surrender our own and everybody's right to say, or print all such words in order to get rid of one instance that may irritate . . . or give evidence of a certain immaturity, lack of propriety or desire to flout the freedom to ignore the facts of semantics or content."

President Starcher said he did not believe that a leader can inspire excellence either with a bull whip or a bull horn. "It's going to take more than adults wringing their hands in agony over the senseless destruction and violence of an activist or disillusioned teen-aged youth seeking issues that widen the generation gap rather than building bridges across it. It will probably take all the patience and imagination each generation can muster to find that way ahead," he added.

Regarding suggestions that the editor be removed, Sigma 'A'. Members of the team are Dave Brown, Pete Baldoumas, Jack Carey, Marty Kadel, Dave Tait, Bob Eagle, Joey Edwards, Rick McVane, Gerry Gilman, Al Dunbar, Tom Burnas, and Steve Stefanik.

In the true Kappa idea of working hard and playing hard, Brother Kev Coriveau has been hard at work at his new part time job as a male model. Besides his salary, Kev gets free hair stylings every week.

Research Set By Regents

Ann Arbor, Mich. - Guidelines for classified research at the University of Michigan have been established as a matter of policy by the U M Regents.

Besides specifying the kind of secret research which the University will bar, the policy calls for faculty review of each research project in which classification is involved.

The Regents, in adopting a 15-man faculty committee report, set four guidelines on classified research.

1. The University will refuse any contract for research which has as its purpose "to destroy human life or to incapacitate human beings."

2. The University will not accept contracts which would limit its freedom to disclose "the purpose and scope of the proposed research" to the degree needed to permit informed faculty discussion of the appropriateness of the research to the University and its potential contributions to human knowledge.

3. The University will decline any research contract which "would restrain its freedom to disclose the existence of the research to the University and its potential contributions to human knowledge."

4. The University will refuse support for any classified research "unless there is reasonable expectation (a) that the research will make a significant contribution to the advancement of knowledge or (b) that it will contribute significantly to enhancing the research capability of the investigator or his research unit."

To implement these policies, a continuing review committee of nine faculty members, "broadly representative of entire faculty," will examine all proposals for contracts involving national security classifications, including extensions, supplements, or changes in existing contracts.

President Starcher said: "Only a few calmly ask are we willing to surrender our own and everybody's right to say, or print all such words in order to get rid of one instance that may irritate . . . or give evidence of a certain immaturity, lack of propriety or desire to flout the freedom to ignore the facts of semantics or content."

Library Report

The March meeting of the Library Advisory Committee of Keene State College was held on March 16 in the Library Conference Room. Absent were: Dr. Aldrich, Mr. Mack, and Mrs. Lafreniere.

Mr. Barnes, librarian, reviewed the comparative development of book collections in the various disciplines and reported the library holdings to be between 60,000 and 65,000. He informed the Committee of the departments that are active in ordering books and departments that are relatively weak and need some bolstering. Mr. Barnes approximated the number of volume increase in 1966 - 67 to be 6,485 and in 1967 - 68 to be 12,262.

General discussion followed relative to the best sources from which books may be ordered. Among these mentioned were the SATURDAY REVIEW, NEW YORK TIMES, and LI - brary journals. Mr. Barnes reported that the Library will order books requested by students, if requests are justified. In the ordering of books, one of the major problems that the library faces is the failure of those who order books to write the full names of the authors. He hoped that faculty members would enter the authors' full names rather than just the last names and initials.

General discussion was conducted on the loss of books and periodicals and how such loss may be prevented. Is the answer having students at the doors to check departure? Mr. Barnes felt that this method was not really effective, but it is necessary to educate the entire student body on this matter. He stressed again the importance attached to overdue books and stated that students should not be allowed to receive a degree from this institution or register in ensuing semesters if they owe money to the Library.

Mr. Barnes further reported that a total of 1,666 volumes were lost from the Library in 1967 and this loss represents at least $13,000.

The next meeting of the Committee will be held in mid-April.

Senate Met Sunday Night, Called For Convocation

By Dana Sullivan

Tuesday's convocation was called for by a unanimous decision of the student senate in a special emergency session Sunday evening (April 29).

Student senate president Donald R. Nelson said he called the senate meeting to discuss two major issues: 1) the failure to obtain the necessary three-fourths majority of the college senate in the vote for additional student representation on that senate,

2) the refusal of the board of trustees to withdraw the terminal contract of Dr. John B. Wiseman.

President Nelson explained administrative power was used in swaying at least one of the votes on the motion for increased student representation. He added that a department head had sent a letter to certain faculty members urging them not to vote in favor. Nelson said he was not objecting to the faculty member's right to write the letter but "the language of the letter was not that of a reasonable argument."

The trustees voted not to withdraw Dr. John B. Wiseman's terminal contract on Saturday (April 19). The vote came in a closed session of the regular April meeting of the board.

Nelson said that he felt "something should be done." He presented a list of proposals for discussion:

- 1) a request for the resignation of Edward F. Pierce, dean of administration,
- 2) the invalidation of the college senate vote

3) the resignation of Anne C. Peters from the college senate,

4) reaffirmation of the senate's March 10 demand for the reinstatement of Wiseman, and

5) a reaffirmation of the request for additional student representation on the college senate.

"I do not think we are being unreasonable," Nelson said.

Francis L'Honniedieu said, "Pierce has to go." He said that Wiseman's case was an example of what happens to faculty members who refuse to "submit to coercion."

Marilyn Trest, college senate representative, cited the "prevailing atmosphere of dishonesty at Keene State College."

Don Nelson said "Keene State is going in a bad direction. I've seen this trend for four years."

Donald Therrien said he wanted to see "more backbone in the faculty. Some of them have callouses on the backs of their hands from sitting on them so long."

L'Honniedieu spoke of the fear inherent in the position of the faculty. "Let's not assume their support!"

Dr. Peter H. Jenkins, faculty adviser to the senate, said that recent events were "symptoms of a bad situation." He said there was indeed a "real fear" among the faculty.

He spoke of the methods used in the college senate. "That's politics, dirty politics, but politics nonetheless." He warned the student senate

Following the approval of open hours for upper class women, a trial program went into effect this past weekend. The upperclass women each contributed 75 cents to carry the cost of a security guard to open the doors. The trial period will include only weekend open hours.

LATE NEWS

The Board of Trustees Will Meet Thursday

NO MORE MINOR

In its last meeting, the college senate voted to remove a minor requirement for liberal arts majors. The proposal will be presented to the Board of Trustees at its next regular meeting, in May.

A two year calendar was submitted to the senate, and after much deliberation, was passed, although the body elected to consider alternatives at the next meeting in May. Dr. Harold A. Goder questioned the length of the first semester, and reminded Dean Edward F. Pierce, chairman of the ad hoc calendar committee that a survey had shown 84% of the faculty favored ending the first semester before Christmas vacation. Dr. Goder plans to submit a calendar that will follow the majority will at the next meeting.

Byrd Says Campus Heads "Spineless"

WASHINGTON - UPI - Sen. Robert C. Byrd, (D-W. Va.), terming campus administrators "weak-kneed and spineless," introduced legislation yesterday to make it a federal crime to disrupt any federally-assisted school. Byrd's bill would provide a one-year prison sentence, a $1,000 fine or both for any one who prevents, obstructs, or interferes with the administration or operation of a school.

The entire community of Keene State College is waiting for the decision of the board of trustees in the case of Dr. John B. Wiseman.

On Saturday the trustees, including the Governor of New Hampshire Walter Peterson, met with the student and college senates in the morning and with other members of the college community in an open afternoon session.

The unprecedented meeting was called at the request of UNH president John McConnell after the all-college convocation on Tuesday, April 22.

All three sessions were marked by tension which has been accumulating for nearly a year on the Wiseman issue.

The trustees met first at 9:45 in a closed session with the student senate, in the Ella Keene Lecture Hall in the science building. The senators spoke on the Wiseman case and other campus issues. As each senator spoke, he was quizzed by the trustees and the governor.

At 11 a.m. the trustees moved across the lobby to the Maynard Waltz lecture hall to meet with the college senate.

After a lunch recess, the trustees reconvened at 2:30 for an open session to allow other students and faculty members express their views.

Dr. Michael Keller, assistant professor of history, spoke first, arguing against a statement attributed to Dr. Roman J. Zorn concerning "mediocrity" of the history department. Dr. Keller listed the qualifications and accomplishments of each member of the department.

Mr. Mark Sherman, instructor in history, said that the evaluators of Dr. Wiseman decided that he did not fit into the "mold, or mood of the College." He said that it was the evaluators themselves who "did not fit the mood of the college, present or future."

Holman Forbes declared that the students present "do not represent the majority of the student body." He said the proof of this was the small number of students present (there were about 100). He urged the trustees to "support the administration" and not the set a precedent or "my education will go downhill!"

Then Donald Nelson, student senate president, said that, "The student body of Keene State College overwhelmingly supports John Wiseman," as indicated by the vote at the convocation. Henry Parkhurst, teacher, said that his only sources of information were the newspapers and local gossip, but that he sees, "no reason why John Wiseman should leave Keene State."

TRUSTEES MEETS WITH STUDENTS AND FACULTY

Kathi Doody, speaking for her own "student body" said "Doctor Wiseman is one of the best teachers I've ever had."

Francis Jones, associate professor of English, referred to the circumstances of the writing of report of the Personnel Welfare Committee on which he served. He was questioned about the report by trustee Lewis Fisher of Dover. Mr. Fisher pointed out that the language of the report did not in any way constitute a recommendation of Dr. Wiseman. "What purpose did your report have other than to pass the buck on the board of trustees?" Pamela Vandenberg spoke in defense of the competence of Dr. Wiseman. She also questioned the procedure used in evaluating Wiseman. "I have spent approximately 180 hours in the classrooms of untenured professors, and not in one of these has there been any observation, either by a department head or an administrator."

Thomas Neil, assistant professor of chemistry, said he was "taken aback" by the conduct of Dr. Wiseman at the convocation. He added that this was his first opportunity to speak his mind. He said he deplored the "burn, baby, burn" attitude of those who were pushing the issue.

Anthony Rosinski criticized "accordance of authority without question." He said everyone should try to view the situation objectively.

John Shortlidge, Keene City Solicitor, said that it seemed some people were trying to discourage an appeal. "If you want to make the process ineffective, why bother with it to begin with?" Cornelius Lyle, assistant professor of English and journalism, said the "justices" of the case have been explored. He asked the board to consider the "merits" of the case. "John Wiseman may have brought on his own difficulties, perhaps we all do.

But in the past year his difficulties have compounded themselves. To bear these burdens is more than most should ask of any man."

John Zafes, instructor in English, said "There is more heat than light in this issue." He asked the trustees to give Dr. Wiseman a chance for "reconsideration for sober judgement by a new administration."

Dr. William Felton, associate professor of sociology criticized the "character assassination" of former president of KSC in the Wiseman case. He admitted that in the process of building a college "perhaps a few toes are stepped on."

But he said that Dr. Zorn was right 98% of the time. He said that Dr. Wiseman's case should have remained a faculty matter. "It's too late to cry about spilled milk." Trustee Fisher asked Dr. Felton, "Do you think that if a faculty member has been the victim of an injustice he should remain silent just for fear of rocking the boat?" His question brought prolonged applause.

James McDonald said the only times Dr. Wiseman advised student was to tell them to be moderate.

Earl Bourdon, Claremont labor leader, said that he was taking a course from Dr. Wiseman with 22 other persons evenings in Claremont. He said that president McConnell had received a letter signed by all the members of that class vouching for Dr. Wiseman.

Fred Hall, of Rochester, chairman of the board of trustees, said that the trustees could not take any action not take any action on the issue Saturday because there was not a quorum present and that there had not been enough notice.

Mr. Hall said, however, that the trustees would take action as soon as possible, and inform the "interested parties".

Keene State College waits.

EXPERIMENTAL THEATER

The Experimental Theater presented two superlative plays on two consecutive nights to two sparse houses.

The first play, "Infinity of Wood," was written by Keene's own Joseph Citro. James McDonald directed the play which deals with the relation to seasonal date.

George, played by Dana Sullivan, that she actually saw a chair move of its own volition. Dana proceeds to explain that the chair didn't move, but that the house was moved by machinery outside.

Norine, quite confused, is stunned into bewilderment as Dana proceeds to explain that, although there is an inner wall, there is no outer wall, while there is an inner door, there is no outer door, while there is an inner window, there is no outer window. There is nothing but wood. An infinity of wood!

Both Miss McQueeney and Mr. Sullivan turned in fine performances and presented the message excellently. As I looked around I found my discomfort that too many people were in coffins. You could see what was inside, but what lie outside?

The second play, "The Good-Bye Voices," was written by John Del Monte. John is a senior at Waterford High School in Waterford, Connecticut. He writes under the name of John Michaels. The J. Citro directed play really made one think.

NEW PRESIDENT TO TAKE OFFICE AUGUST 1

The new president is Dr. Leo F. Redfern, who is presently dean of administration at the University of Massachusetts. Some of you met him when he visited the campus recently. For all, here is a summary of his background:

He is a native of Berlin, N.H., is married to the former Edmonde St. Laurent of Berlin and they have two children, Laurie, 15, and Charles, 9. Also a shaggy black dog, Ralph.

Dr. Redfern is a graduate of the University of New Hampshire, where he was editor of The New Hampshire, the student newspaper his senior year. He received his master of arts degree from UNH, a master of public administration degree from Harvard and his doctoral degree from Harvard.

He has been dean of administration at UMass for 4 1/2 years, joining the staff there in 1961. He previously taught in the department of government at UNH and was an associate professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin. He was a teaching fellow and tutor in government at Harvard and held a Sheldon Traveling Fellowship from Harvard in 1955-1956.

In 1958 and 1959, Dr. Redfern was a staff member of the Ford Foundation Committee on Government and Higher Education, chaired by Dr. Milton Eisenhower. This work resulted in the co-authorship of the book, "The Campus and the State."

During his tenure at UMass, Dr. Redfern has been director of the Office of Institutional Studies, director of the Labor Relations and Research Center, acting university secretary, and university liaison delegate to the New England Center for Continuing Education, the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education, and the Advisory Commission to the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education.

He describes his duties as dean of administration as including the development of new programs and projects for the University, and liaison between the university and other institutions and agencies of government in the area of administrative and legislative problems and issues. In 1964, he was chairman of the UMass "task force" which paved the way for the establishment of the University of Massachusetts Boston.

He is an Army Air Corps veteran of World War II, serving in the Pacific area as a staff sergeant and holds the rank of captain in the Air Force Reserve. His spare-time interests include golf, swimming, ice skating, and fishing. His wife adds that he is an "avid reader."

Dr. Redfern expects to assume his new position on August 1, but hopes to be able to visit Keene State College frequently before then as his schedule will allow.

Guest Editorial

By Col Adams

After all the hullabaloo that has transpired concerning the dismissal of Professor Wiseman, it seems to me, as an older student, that both sides are still at an impasse; and it is likely that truth will be once more suppressed by power.

It is an old story that arrogance and pomposity excite subservience and gets along well with sycophancy. When the attitude of "if you don't like it go somewhere else" is ineffective in changing an independent spirit, then, of course, the only alternative is to charge the outspoken rebel with incompetence. This almost always results in the recalcitrant one's sinking and withdrawing from the area of combat. Luckily for most of us in this case this kind of strategy has not worked.

Wiseman is not entirely right - no one ever is - because we live in a world of individuals who have different ideas and values, and each of us is trying to assert ourselves, say and do things that are not always respectful of the feelings of others. But this is a human failing of the high and low and has nothing to do with competence.

The arbitrary use of superior position to annihilate those it does not like regardless of ability must not be allowed. Objectivity is the most overworked word in this institution. But where is it in practice? Are you objective only if you agree? Right where is it in practice? Are you objective only if you agree? Right here we have an excellent example of why young people today are storming the walls of conformity and hypocrisy. The educational institution teaches its students to be courageous exponents of truth by its words and then turns about and refuses to honor truth in action.

As, but we must maintain a good public image; it is said by the "objective." In other words, we must continue to espouse our phony gospel of dignity for every individual and then do our best to stomp out individuality whenever we decide it may be dangerous or upsetting. Any wonder that the young cannot communicate with the older? Can honesty reason with dishonesty?

Somewhere along the line results must start to command respect, regardless of whether or not the one who gets them from when he is not supposed to or laughs when he shouldn't. Only then can objectivity become a viable word rather than a mask to conceal the whims of authority.

The majority of the student body is saying that Wiseman gets the results. He is an effective teacher by their standards. The administration should be able to prove otherwise, and they haven't. But reasoning with unreasonable authority seldom pays off, at least it hasn't so far in this instance.

In the finality it seems that arbitrary power will only listen to honesty that is armed with equal strength, and the only way to accomplish this may be to organize and boycott. If this must be done as a last attempt to get the establishment to cancel Wiseman's termination order, I will be the first to shout Obe; so long as the boycott is orderly and nonviolent. It must be nonviolent or it will be just extolling the raw power that it is trying to overcome. Let's hope that the situation will not have to come to this. However, if it does it will prove that the administration needs the lessons that the institution is teaching far more than do the students.

From The Editors Desk

What will we be doing May 12 when UNH holds its Tax Education Day? Before you decide to join in, you might consider a couple of points.

First, the problem is not as simple as asking for more money, "cause it just isn't there. Education is not the only program that will be sadly lacking funds; money is needed in virtually all areas.

Secondly, calling off classes to talk to ourselves seems foolish when we really ought to be talking to the voters who think we don't need a broad-based tax. There's no need for a strike of any sort unless you know no one will take the time to listen. That may or may not be the case; we haven't tried talking yet.

We wish a speedy recovery to Dean of Instruction Clarence Davis, and hope that he will be able to return soon.

Congratulations and thanks to Alpha for meeting the Monadnock's Thursday 4 p.m. copy deadline consistently.

A POEM

By Keith Doodv

With a humble pen I comment on a recent dissertation
Dr. Felton proudly thought as verbal prestidigitator
In offensive offense, fending all attempt to be specific (and in honesty, Professor, at that you are terrific)
Dr. Felton dared to comment that a man who acts from reason if he lets his conscience dictate can be qualified for treason
If in doing so his feelings are opposed to status quo or he follows not directions that the herded people go or he speaks what's real within him when he knows his truth will pain him and it really doesn't matter what his quietness could gain him; and he dares to vote while standing for he's confident of right; and he need not send out letters saying:
"Numbers give us might!" Or he puts great faith and trust in humans under thirty for he knows it isn't long hair that makes people fight so dirty.
And the greatest crime, I look it while I listened quite aghast, (and after twenty minutes I was pleased it was the last!) seems to be that it's detestful for a man to rock a boat, when, in truth, it seems too obvious that the ship can hardly float, and the captain had deserted from his errors growing pale and he left a second mate who could hardly find the sail!

In retort, I have to mention for a man you wouldn't know who rocked much stronger vessels in the storms of long ago; (and I think he wouldn't mind it if I put him on my side for in truth, dear Doctor Felton, it's for "rocking" that he died.)
So, in parting, Sir, I offer that you look outside your hole for regardless of your wishes man's progressing from his soul not from narrow-minded virtue or from principles he knows, but from love and understanding and from feeling as he grows!
And I hope that you abide, Sir, by the quote I send you please from a disappointed Doodv and a smiling Socrates.

"Go about the world. Search and make inquiry into the wisdom of anyone; and, if he is not wise, show him he is not wise; ... the unexamined life is not worth living ... the difficulty, then is not to avoid death, but to avoid unrighteousness, for that runs faster than death."

LETTERS

My Friends, Colleagues and Associates:
In the last couple of weeks, as we of course are all aware of, there has been considerable turmoil on the Keene State College campus. We are all a part of this campus and we must all concern ourselves with the problems and issues which confront us. I address this letter to you, not to rehash the issues which divide us, but rather in the fervent hope that a discovery I have made will serve to help us in the future.

In the past two weeks I have, for whatever reason, met for the first time more than ten of my colleagues among the faculty with whom I had not previously been acquainted with well enough even to say "Hello" to when passing on the street. This because I simply would not recognize them, nor they me. And THAT, my friends, is what the problem is at Keene State College! We have a faculty of just over 90, and administration of considerably fewer numbers, and a student body of approximately 1650. Given these very small numbers, there is absolutely no reason why we should not, at the very least, know each other! The faculty members whom I have met for the first time in the past two weeks have been totally delightful and I have felt extremely sorry about not knowing them previously. Perhaps, you might say, it is his own fault for not meeting the people he works with and, to a degree, I would agree with you. I ask you, also, to introspect and see whether you too might have made a greater effort to meet me. There is little wonder that differences arise simply because we have never talked with one another. I would argue that if differences cannot be rationally discussed on a college campus wherein the three distinct groups - students, faculty and administrators - all of which are theoretically intelligent, then the society at large has, I fear, no chance.

I therefore pledge myself, between now and the end of the year and indeed in the future, to try and know all of you a little bit better. I ask, may I pray, that you will try to do the same. We will ALL be better off for it. Sincerely,
Michael D. Keller

Hosts Needed

Next Saturday and Sunday 22 foreign students from the School for International Training in Brookline, Vt., will be guests at Keene State College. There will be three from Iran and 19 from South American countries. They will stay in dormitories, eat at the Commons and attend Spring Weekend activities.

Mrs. Fritz Somerschein, a KSC sophomore, is making arrangements for the visit. She said that the group will arrive at 9:30 Saturday morning at the Student Union.

These students are now studying English at the Brookline school before entering American universities in the fall.

Mrs. Somerschein said that hosts and hostesses are needed to entertain these students over the weekend.

McConnell Met With Student, College Senates Before Convocation

At last Tuesday's special student senate meeting with President John McConnell, William Staples, freshman senator, cited the lack of major changes in next year's academic calendar as proof that student opinion does not influence major policy decisions. Even though 84% of students polled expressed a desire to have first semester finals completed before Christmas next year, he said, no major calendar changes were made.

President McConnell responded by saying that a calendar change is an "impossible job" because of the different requirements of courses, staff faculty, administration and students. "Don't be discouraged..." he takes a lot of work to change college structure.

The survey Staples referred to was made by a subcommittee of the Academic Calendar Committee. Appointed by the college president, their report said it sought the opinion of students, faculty, and administration on matters pertaining to the length of the class period and academic days, the beginning and termination of the academic year, the use of January for experimental programs, and the desirability of ending the first semester before Christmas. The report said that most of the 380 respondents to the pole favored a two semester academic year of 14 weeks with 55 minute classes and with the month of January free for academic tours or intensive studies, with no final examination, and the semester ending before Christmas.

RECENT ADDITIONS

This may be an exciting time in the history of Keene State College, but perhaps the "major" events may be overshadowed by other "issues" in the lives of a few of our friends.

Lawton Phillips Bourne III weighed in at six pounds and five ounces at 12:30 Sunday, April 20. We would have let everyone know sooner, but Lonnie was too distracted by campus politics to let us know.

Mrs. Fred Bramante had a boy, too. He was born 5:50 p.m. Friday, April 25. And since he weighed seven pounds, thirteen and a half ounces, the Bramantes had no choice but to name him Michael Angelo. (As Tom Powers said, an appropriate name for a "rock" artist.)

ALPHA OPERA COMING

The Alpha Opera Company announces its twenty-sixth annual production, to be presented to the campus on May 6, 7 and 8 starring the brothers of Alpha Pi Tau. Because of a conflict with a production of the drama department, Alpha has been forced to hold the opera in the all-purpose room of the student union, rather than in Drenan Auditorium, where it has always been held in the past.

Although it is impossible for the whole fraternity to be in the cast, each and every brother has contributed a great deal of his time to make this year's production the best yet. We have been working on the opera since the beginning of the semester, and much of our time has been devoted to it. We see 1 that this year's opera will offer excellent entertainment, and we hope the campus will take advantage of this opportunity to see Alpha at its best.

In the intramural softball league, Alpha has started off well. The "A" team defeated TKE "B" by a score of 5-3, while the "C" and "D" teams have both had one victory. Alpha "C" defeated TKE "D" by a score of 8-1, and Alpha "D" defeated TKE "C" in a close 1-0 contest. The only loss Alpha has encountered thus far was in a close contest between TKE "A" and Alpha "B", which ended up with a score of 4-3. Brother Bob "Lamar" Land is head coach of Alpha's softball teams and has proven to be quite effective up to this point. A victory in the fraternity softball league will retain the athletic trophy for us for another year.

The Alpha Duck would like to salute the Drama Department for conveniently scheduling a production on the same dates as the Alpha Opera, thus making it impossible for us to use Drenan Auditorium, which is, incidentally, named after Alpha Brother Sprague W. Drenan.

RECONSTRUCTION

PASS-FAIL

New Brunswick, N.J. — (L.P.) — Pointing out that his report "The Reconstruction of an American College" has concentrated on a variety of efforts to remove a sense of requirement, restriction, and regulation and to replace it with a sense of an open college, flexible, changing, finding values in use, freeing teachers and students to discover new possibilities in themselves and in their work, Professor Warren I. Susman states:

"In a desire to follow through on this policy of an open college, I propose the following:

1. Grades: Grades continue to be a source of considerable student unrest. The general objections to grades are well-founded; students would prefer more lengthy personal evaluations and they are, of course, right. This report recommends something of this sort in the work of the Experimental Semesters. But two factors of considerable significance make the full elimination of grades impossible: (1) The whole system of graduate and professional education demands some sort of comparative system of evaluation, and grades alone seem to serve this function, and

(2) I taught for five years at an institution where no grades were ever given to students during their residence at the college in an effort to do away with unhealthy and anti-social competition. Students, instead, were given lengthy verbal evaluations.

All this did was to intensify student interest in grades; never have I spent quite so much time talking with students about how they were doing and never have I seen such psychological distress because they couldn't translate my comments into traditional grades. Students demanded to know how they were doing comparatively; the sense of competition is not invented at the college level nor is it easily eliminated there.

The pass-fail system is at best a devious device that refuses to face any of the issues squarely. The time has come when an open college ought to do just that. With all the weaknesses of any system of grading, we cannot eliminate it completely.

Rather than hide behind a growing pass-fail system I propose we take a more daring step. The Rutgers College grading system seems to me one of the best because it is clean and simple; let us simplify it still further.

I recommend that Rutgers College adopt a system of three grades: Distinction, Pass, and Fail.

I propose, in other words the elimination of the grades of 2 and 4; both are fudge grades. Students as good as our simply should not be allowed any credit for work that is not clearly pass work and such work ought to be respectively satisfactory, a 3 or pass grade, not a 4.

As for the elimination of the 2, it is easier to designate work of genuine distinction and mark it off from merely satisfactory work.

2. Examinations: Grades exist because examinations exist and examinations exist because courses exist and we calculate a college education in terms of the number of courses taken and satisfactorily completed. If this were the best of all possible worlds we would not engage in such a system of accumulation and calculation.

Students would take what work was necessary to become educated (that is, to meet some overall standard set by the college) and then would be granted a degree.

We are forced in the current system to count often too heavily on course examinations and too rarely on a system to check on whether the student is able to use intelligently and in relationship to other knowledge what he acquired in a particular course taken earlier in his college career.

I would prefer a system of comprehensive examinations than our current system of course examinations.

After serious investigation, however, I am convinced that such a system for a college of this size and this variety is not feasible. This does not mean that it is not possible, at least, for some departments that wished to experiment along these lines.

It does seem that in the major field the idea of comprehensive examinations as a substitute for course examinations might be a possibility, especially if the department had a small major.

I propose, therefore, that any department that wishes be allowed to give student majors temporary grades in any course taken in the major department and eliminate the course examination.

In the Spring of the student's senior year the department would offer its majors a comprehensive examination based on all the work done in the department (or done for the major in the case of special programs). The grade of the comprehensive examination would then automatically become the grade in all the courses for which temporary grades had previously been assigned.

In addition to this kind of experimentation, the open college ought to encourage a variety of different kinds of examination experiences: the take-home examination, the oral examination, the analytical essay as a substitute for an examination.

Investigation indicates that there has been an increase in short-answer examinations in courses as a result of the increase in size of upperclass courses especially. There is nothing intrinsically wrong with such an examination but the time has come when teachers in the college ought to know more about ways and means in testing, when the testing function ought to be enriched with new knowledge and new skills currently available from experts on testing.

Comparison

Annapolis, Md. — (L.P.) — Director of Admissions J. M. Tolbert of St. John's College reports that a recently completed survey here showed that 87 per cent of the students were more concerned with academic life than with social activities.

The survey, entitled "Questionnaire on Student and College Characteristics," prepared by the Educational Testing Service, revealed that ninety-four per cent thought the faculty-student relationships were close and informal, with 98 per cent declaring a majority of the faculty seemed genuinely interested in teaching.

One section of the questionnaire concerned class-room activity and faculty-student relationships. Ninety-four percent of the students stated that the instructors challenged them, 95 percent believed that the students are encouraged to think for themselves. Ninety percent of the students thought there was a great amount of contact with the faculty (called tutors at St. John's) outside the classroom, with the tutors treating the students as individuals.

Commented one student on the reverse side of his questionnaire: "St. John's is committed to the active use of reason by its members." It encourages "education, not instruction," wrote another.

Education Study At Stanford

Stanford should stop imposing general education via the registrar's office, "get rid of rule-ridden education," and unleash creative talent now policing a "byzantine" curricular structure to help undergraduates learn at the University. This view was presented recently by Vice Provost Herbert L. Packer, steering committee chairman of the Study of Education at Stanford (SES) to about 40 Junior Faculty Forum members.

The SES report on undergraduate education provides some "entering wedges" for change in the structure of the University, Packer said. But the report on governance "says pretty tough things to departments about democratizing their procedures. All we can do is recommend, you can agitate. I think you should," Packer said.

He called the SES report "essentially a conservative document. We tried to figure out how, without tearing the place to pieces, we can maximize the educational opportunities it offers," Packer declared. "SES quite liberally did not identify the addressees of our recommendations. The constitutions should be acted upon."

"The SES group is now interested by standards as the power struggle goes on. We're in for a lot of turbulence and ferment. That's a very healthy process," Packer added. Explaining the rationale of SES recommendations, he said: "Given the present fragmented state of knowledge, we felt the best strategy for achieving general education would be to force specialties to relate their interests to broader concerns" in freshman tutorials.

"The freshman year is best, because students don't have all the methodology to allow the faculty to take off on their own quarter inch of the universe. Instead the professor would be encouraged to say, here is what fascinates me, and why," giving the student a chance to see "the mature mind at work."

The tutorial program would be open to younger professors, he said, permitting them to move forward in areas of knowledge which interest them without being forced to teach as many broad survey courses.

Prof. Michael Arbib, who moderated the session, read a letter stating that the overwhelming majority of Western Civ instructors favored a one-year requirement for historical studies, rather than a one semester or two-quarter sequence suggested by SES.

A Western Civ instructor in the audience noted that "there's no one in the Western Civ staff who likes teaching from a common, stiff compiled syllabus. In fact, they like to do their own thing. Rather than 'covering 20 centuries an eighth of an inch deep,' Packer said, the SES recommendations would permit deeper study in a narrower field, such as the history of science.

Emphasizing the need for a "spirit of self-determination" among students in charting their educational programs, Packer said, SES doesn't view requirements as a merit badge pinned on subject matter."

The SES suggests three means of seeing that educational reform is made a continual process at the University.

Creating a standing committee of the faculty, with student members "to concern itself solely with identifying institutional problems and seeing to it that they receive attention"; Appointing a part-time officer of the administration whose sole responsibility is "to promote the processes of self-examination and self-renewal"; and Organizing an Academic Planning Office to assist student, faculty and administration efforts to obtain data on which rational planning depends.

Commenting on the University's relationship to society and the need for continual reform, the SES Steering Committee's report on "The Study and Its Purposes" states:

The problems of society, for a time obscured by economic prosperity and the quest for personal achievement... assumed in this decade a new dimension. Whether in New York, Paris, Berkeley, or here at Stanford, the relatively affluent students at our great universities, those to whom society promises the greatest prestige, political power, and material comfort, have gone into opposition. And a focal point of their disaffection is the university itself, the principal institution that conserves, creates, and transmits the values and substance of our cultural tradition.

This disaffection has been directed toward the rigidity of academic procedures, the notion of education as an imposed process, the idea that universities are not so much the servants of society as of the existing social order. It is often said that educational institutions have somewhere lost track of their raison d'être: education. It has become a commonplace that students and faculty alike are caught up in endless numbers of requirements and punchcards, outward signs of inward indifference.

Whether this criticism is largely wrong, exaggerated, or substantially correct, it is there, and members of the University have not been at all reticent about expressing their views and their grievances.

Some assert that the university should be the indentured servant of the social order as they see it. Others think that the university as an educational institution should commit itself to promoting social change. Neither of these views can be accepted if the university is to maintain for its members the rights to think freely and well.

We prefer to think of the university as a kind of unbound servant. The university does, indeed, serve society: it preserves our common intellectual and cultural tradition, and transmits it to future generations; it is the ground for the creation of new values, new knowledge, and a new culture.

In short, it is the agent of both preservation and change both necessary to a vital society. But the university can serve society best only when its members are left free to pursue the scholarly interests that are vital to them. They cannot be expected to pursue that which is convenient or comfortable to the present social order, or, on the other hand, to plunge themselves into the newly fashionable, or even the newly urgent.

There has been a great deal of criticism in recent years centered about the supposed irrelevance of much that the university teaches. The notion that the university must be directly useful to society has made its effect strongly felt in the imbalance between government support of the sciences and the humanities.

At the same time, there are those who claim that universities have ignored the pressing social and economic difficulties of our time, isolating themselves in academic obscurity.

We believe that those who criticize the university for its alleged irrelevance sometimes employ a limited and mistaken conception of what is "useful." For the right individual the study of literature, for example, can give aesthetic pleasure, political insight, and moral judgment that, for him, nothing else can. The same things may be said for any of the humanistic disciplines or, for that matter, the social and natural sciences.

Authority Speaks On Drug Use

Chicago, Ill. — (L.P.) — Society's reaction to student drug use is "a little hysterical," according to Dr. Richard H. Moy, the Health Service Director and Assistant Professor of Medicine at the University of Chicago.

"Our reaction to the expanding use of drugs by students has fallen into predictable and somewhat sterile patterns; passing laws and promoting programs of education."

Elaborating, he said that "while laws and education with their concomitants of intimidation and fear have a role to play, they are not sufficient and are likely to miss the significance of what is really going on. While students worry about the law it is clear that in the case of marijuana that many are willing to risk even severe penalties."

"And in regard to education some students have long been more sophisticated about these drugs than those who now seek to teach them. It is entirely possible that by the time society has passed all its laws and launched all its programs of education, students may have gone on to something else such as mysticism, not because of what their elders have said and done about drugs, but because the students themselves have found that this is not the answer."

Dr. Moy said that students who take hallucinogenic drugs often are in revolt against anonymity of modern society. Noting the pervasiveness of scientific technology in our culture and its contribution toward depersonalization, he suggested that student drug-users often are seeking "the antithesis of scientism — affect, feeling, sensation, subjectivity."

"This is what Leary and Alpert have said," he commented, referring to psychologists Timothy Leary and Richard Alpert who were among the first to advocate general use of LSD.

The trouble with such drug use, Dr. Moy continued, is that it causes such a deluge of sensory input that the perceptions can be neither adapted nor organized. The person is left with a disorienting feeling that something important has happened, but he may be quite unable to integrate it into anything meaningful.

"Another problem" — the physician said, "is the id monsters that may creep out."

On every college campus, Dr. Moy said, there are those who will take drugs despite possible penalty, those who will not take drugs under any condition, and a third group that might be influenced in either direction.

Students who do take drugs often argue in favor of legalizing use of marijuana on the ground that it is no more of a problem than alcohol. Dr. Moy's answer is that, with approximately 5,000,000 alcoholics in this country, "another 5,000,000 on marijuana, we don't need."

It is his opinion that most students who try marijuana do so only once or twice to "get off the chicken list."

The posture of universities and colleges toward use of drugs, he continued, usually has fallen into one of three categories, the first being the firm stance, with the college acting as guardian of social mores.

A second is that a student who takes drugs must be treated by competent medical personnel," Dr. Moy said, "but this is not necessarily in the realm of mental illness."

The third posture cited was that of avoidance, in which college officials hope that students will not be overt in their behavior. "This doesn't work out," Dr. Moy remarked.

Calling it "a question of balance," he recommended that universities and colleges make a point of keeping abreast of student views so that "at least we have some idea of where we're going, so that we may be able to discuss the underlying questions with them and not just the overt manifestations of those questions."

THE STUDENT IS NIGGER

by Jerry Farber

Even more discouraging than this Auschwitz approach to education is the fact that the students take it. They haven't gone through twelve years of public school for nothing. They've learned one thing and perhaps only one thing during those twelve years. They've forgotten their algebra. They're hopelessly vague about chemistry and physics. They've grown to fear and resent literature. They write like they've been lobotomized. But can they follow orders? Freshmen come up to me with an essay and ask if I want it folded and whether their name should be in the upper right hand corner. And I want to cry and kiss them and caress their poor tortured heads.

Students don't ask that orders make sense. They give up expecting things to make sense long before they leave elementary school. Things are true because the teacher says they're true. At a very early age we all learn to accept "two truths," as did certain medieval churchmen. Outside of class, things are true to your tongue, your fingers, your stomach, your heart. Inside class, things are true by reason of authority. And that's just fine because you don't care anyway. Miss Widemeyer tells you a noun is a person, place or thing. So let it be. You don't give a rat's ass; she doesn't give a rat's ass. The important thing is to please her. Back in kindergarten, you found out that teachers only love children who stand in nice straight lines. And that's where it's been at ever since. Nothing changes except to get worse. School becomes more and more obviously a prison. Last year I spoke to a student assembly at Manual Arts High School and then couldn't get out of the goddam school. I mean there was NO WAY OUT. Locked doors. High fences. One of the inmates was trying to make it over the fence when he saw me coming and froze in a panic. For a moment I expected sirens, a rattle of bullets and him clanking at the fence.

What school amounts to, then, for white and black kids alike, is a 12-year course in how to be slaves. What else could explain what I see in a freshman class? They've got that slave mentality; obliging and ingratiating on the surface, but hostile and resistant underneath. As to black slaves, students vary in their awareness of what's going on. Some recognize their own put-on for the surface now and then. Others - including most of the "good students" - have been more deeply brainwashed. They swallow the bull with greedy mouths. They honest-to-God believe in grades, in busy work, in General Education requirements. They're pathetically eager to be pushed around. They're like those old grayheaded house niggers you can still find in the South who don't see what all the fuss is about because Mr. Charlie "treats us real good."

College entrance requirements tend to favor the Toms and screen out the rebels. Not entirely, of course. Some students at Cal State L.A. are expert coin artists who know perfectly well what's happening. They want the degree or the 2-8 and spend their years on the old plantation alternately laughing and cursing as they play the game. If their egos are strong enough, they cheat a lot. And, of course, even the Toms are angry down deep somewhere. But it comes out in passive rather than active aggression. They're unexplainably thickwitted and subject to frequent spells of laziness. They misread simple questions. They spend their nights mechanically outlining history chapters while meticulously failing to comprehend a word of what's in front of them.

INWARD ANGER

The saddest cases among both black slaves and student slaves are the ones who have so thoroughly introjected their masters' values that their anger is all turned inward. At Cal State these are the kids for whom every low grade is torture, who stammer and shake when they speak to a professor, who go through an emotional crisis every time they're called upon during class. You can recognize them easily at finals time. Their faces are festooned with fresh pimples; their bowels boil audibly across the room. If there really is a Last Judgement, then the parents and teachers who created these wrecks are going to burn in hell.

So students are niggers. It's time to find out why, and to do this, we have to take a long look at Mr. Charlie. The teachers I know best are college professors. Outside the classroom and taken as a group, their most striking characteristic is timidity. They're short on guts.

Just look at their working condition. At a time when even migrant workers have begun to fight and win, college professors are still afraid to make more than a token effort to improve their pitiful economic status. In California state colleges the faculties are screwed regularly and vigorously by the Governor and Legislature and yet they still won't offer any solid resistance. They lie flat on their stomachs with their pants down, mumbling catch phrases like "professional dignity" and "meaningful dialogue."

Professors were no different when I was an undergraduate to UCLA during the McCarthy era; it was like a cattle stampede as they rushed to cop out. And in more recent years, I found that my being arrested in sit-ins brought from my colleagues not so much approval or condemnation as open-mouthed astonishment. "You could lose your job!"

Now, of course, there's the Vietnamese war. It gets some opposition from a few teachers. Some support it. But a vast number of professors, who know perfectly well what's happening, are copping out again. And in high schools, you can forget it. Stillness reigns.

WHITE SUPREMACY

The teacher's fear is mixed with an understandable need to be admired and to feel superior, a need which also makes him cling to his "white supremacy". Ideally a teacher should minimize the distance between himself and his students. He should encourage them not to need him - eventually or even immediately. But this is rarely the case. Teachers make themselves high priests of arcane mysteries. They become masters of mumbo - jumbo. Even a more or less conscientious teacher may be torn between the desire to give and the desire to hold them in bondage. There is a kind of castration that goes on in schools. It begins, before school years, with the parents' first encroachments on their children's free unashamed sexuality and continues right up to the day when they hand you your doctoral diploma - with a bleeding, shriveled pair of testicles stapled to the parchment. It's not that sexuality has no place in the classroom. You'll find it there but only in certain perverted and vitiated forms.

BLEEDING BRAINS

How does sex show up in school? First of all, there's the sadomasochistic relationship between teachers and students. That's plenty sexual, although the price of enjoying it is to be unaware of what's happening. In walks the student in his Ivy League equivalent of a motorcycle jacket. In walks the teacher - a kind of intellectual rough trade - and flogs his students with grades, tests, sarcasm, and snotty superiority until their very brains are bleeding. In Swinburne's England, the whipped schoolboy frequently grew up to be a flagellant. With us, the perversion is intellectual but it's no less perverse.

Ed's note: And the trustees, and administrative heads will watch us all become "masters of mumbo jumbo". We, the "fat black bucks" may reel and pound on tables out of sheer frustration at being second rate citizens, but who will listen?

We too had a vision, and got religion. We absorbed the lectures on honor and dignity given us by our parents. We saw a wrong and wanted to right it. We believed it was an honest and dignified thing to do. But the trustees have taught us that honor and dignity are things to make speeches about, and not things for practice. "Vision" is not lost by defeat. Our vision is as real to us now as ever, and the only change in our attitudes is a stronger desire to protect that vision. Some of us fat black bucks will continue to mumble boomalay when authority tells us too, but some of us are ready to put down the broomsticks and stop playing the game. We have been lied to, and grossly ignored, and we cannot forget it.

To KSC Students:

Students of Keene, at your convocation I watched and listened silently while you debated the issue pertaining to Dr. Wiseman's terminal contract. I saw you carry your discussion through under the rules of procedure in a complimentary fashion. I heard the facts and opinions presented for and against Dr. Wiseman's position.

I listened to the official report from the Board of Trustees meeting wherein they decided against Dr. Wiseman's reinstatement. I listened to many stands in opposition to that decision.

Students of Keene, you recognized an injustice, and after some debate, the motion was made and seconded to demand from the Board of Trustees the reversal of their conclusion.

First by voice, you shook the walls of the gym in a display of overwhelming support to correct the error of the board; then, due to the dissatisfaction of the losing element of the voice vote, you stood up in vast majority for the defense of Dr. Wiseman.

Naturally, the question then followed, how were you to back up this demand? All communication channels restricted by policy had been exhausted in previous attempts to alter the decision.

New ideas, such as carrying protest signs while showing mature responsibility by continuing to attend classes, were regarded as being too weak to create any great pressure in backing a demand.

Social chairman is Jim Vinciguerra and our Senate representative is George Nostrand. The athletic director is Bruce Perault.

The Brotherhood is extremely proud that lovely Colleen Cullen is the college new spring queen, we thank Colleen for representing us. This is the second year in a row that a TEKE contestant has won this honor and we're all very pleased.

Congratulations to Frater Conrad Fisk for pitching a one-hitter against Plymouth last week in the varsity baseball game. On the mound that same week for the TEKE "C" softball squad was Frater Bruce Watson, who pitched a fine 4-2-hitter against Bob Boisvert's "J.B. All-Stars". After losing the game 21 to 19, Bruce was sent down to the minors for more seasoning.

Major business was the sanction of a new national constitution. Much work went into the formulation of this constitution and Kappa is sure that it now possesses one of the most complete and contemporary documents of its type in the nation.

The annual Kappa Delta Phi national convention was held two week-ends ago in Montreal, Canada. Nearly 30 brothers from Gamma Chapter made the trip. The convention was held in the beautiful Holiday Inn in Montreal with approximately one thousand brothers from all over the east coast attending. Events included a "beer blast" on Friday night during which Gamma made its presence eminently felt. Saturday evening, following a fantastic banquet, Gamma received two national awards, the Mark Fox Memorial trophy for outstanding national relations, and the Phillips Cup for exemplary Kappa spirit. Needless to say, we are quite proud of acquiring these awards.

Following the awards presentation, a dance was held in the Stacey Room with girls from many neighboring colleges. Many impromptu parties were also held, the most notable of which was hosted by brother Clyde Lower in his room.

During the day, many work shops were held, including those in the fields of pledging and organization. The general business meeting and national elections were held in the afternoon. Brother Jerry Gilman was re-elected to the office of National Foreword.

Major business was the sanction of a new national constitution. Much work went into the formulation of this constitution and Kappa is sure that it now possesses one of the most complete and contemporary documents of its type in the nation.

The Kappa 'A' softball team now has a record of 1 - 1. The victory was recorded against Sigma in a game called because of darkness after the fourth inning. At that time Kappa was ahead 24 - 0. The loss came against TKS 'A' in a real thriller 5 - 3. Members of the team include Captain Dave Brown, Peter Baldoumas, Jack Carey, Marty Kadel, Dave Tait, Bob Bagloe, Rick McVaine, Jerry Gilman, Steve Stefanik, Tom Burns, Joey Edward, and Al Dumbur.

Student Orientation

This year's New Student Orientation Committee is taking a new approach to several of the problems encountered during the programs of past years. The program will be coordinated by Mr. Thomas Stauffer.

Poor co-ordination in the mailing of information to the new students has resulted in confusion, duplication, excessive mailing costs, and often misinformation. To overcome these problems, Mr. Stauffer will be serving as co-ordinator for all general mailings made to new students from this date until the students arrive on campus. This means that all general mailings must be approved by Mr. Stauffer to check on matters ranging from grammar to duplication. But any mail to individual students on individual matters need not pass through his office.

The New Student Orientation Committee has established the following guidelines for general mailings:

1. New students must be informed in clear and concise terms of all activities relevant to them in their status as new students.
2. Too much information is better than too little.
3. Each office and committee wishing to make general mailings should send their materials as a package of items rather than in various parts.
4. Each office and committee will affect the new students in their early college careers should formulate a brief statement of the functions of and procedures to be followed by the new students in dealing with that office or committee. This information should be in the hands of the new student before his arrival on campus.
5. Co-ordination of mailings will include the following procedures:
  1. Forward materials for general mailing to Mr. Stauffer's office (Science # 134 - Ext. #209).
  2. Materials will be returned immediately with comment relative to co-ordination.

KAPPA NEWS

ments of its type in the nation.

The constitutional switch necessitates many changes and much work for all chapters for the remainder of the academic year. It involves a complete change in the officer hierarchy as well as the drafting of a complete alumni list for the national and the rewriting of the Gamma Chapter history. As we are the oldest and most active fraternity on campus, this alone will take a lot of time and effort.

Due to the increased workload and the number of upcoming events to be sponsored by Kappa in the next few weeks, our executive board has seen fit to cancel the Kappa Kapers until early next Fall. We know that it is an event eagerly awaited by the majority of the campus, and we are sorry that this cancellation has to occur.

Last weekend the annual Kappa semi-formal was held at the Le-Law Motel. This year's theme was "Springtime 69" and free eats were served by the brothers and their dates. Many independents and faculty members were present to help make this event a great success.

Next Saturday, Kappa will welcome back its alumni brothers with a cocktail hour and banquet to be catered by the Pub, under the direction of Brother Mike Blastos. We are anticipating the usual high number to attend.

The following week and the Kappa picnic will be held. As usual this will be a two day and all-night affair and is highly anticipated by the entire brotherhood.

On Friday, May 2, the brotherhood journeyed to Boston via bus to take in a game between the Red Sox and the Detroit Tigers. A majority of the brothers attended the event, and each had quite a time. This is the second year we have done this, and because it is so successful, we hope to make it an annual event.

Alpha had two softball games last week. On Monday, Alpha "B" played TKE "C" and were downed by a score of 5-4. Brother Russ Beane contributed to the losing team with a grand slam home run. On Wednesday, two Alpha teams clashed. The final result: Alpha "C" 9, the Modocs 6.

The Alpha Duck would like to salute Brother Bob Cloutier for the fine job he has done this past year as president. This year has been a very trying one for Alpha, and his leadership has helped to pull us through many rough situations.

ALPHA NEWS

This is the week of the famous Alpha Opera, so the brothers recommend that the campus take advantage of this once a year event. It will be running until Thursday of this week, and curtain time is 8 p.m. If you haven't had an opportunity to see it yet, you still have two more days. We would like to thank everyone who helped to make this year's opera possible.

Congratulations to Brothers Ron Noronsky, Pete Kendall, and Jack Ambush for their fine display of talent in the Manco-Spectrum that was held on April 26. The numbers that they performed, which included The Letter, Nowhere Man, Dear Prudence, and Why Did You Leave Me?, were sufficient to win for Alpha the first prize. Incidentally, the last song title mentioned was written by Brother Kendall.

STUDENT OF THE YEAR

Joseph A. Citro

Some of Dr. Battenfeld's freshman students may already know this year's student of the year. They ought to; he's been helping to correct their papers and exams all year. He has lectured a few of the classes, and has worked with Dr. Battenfeld in conducting a seminar with some of the students.

The Monadnock has elected Joseph A. Citro as recipient of the Student of the Year Award. The decision, made by the editor, and the editorial board was based mainly on Mr. Citro's involvement in the experimental theater program added to the curriculum second semester this year. Mr. Citro planned and organized the program and the board agreed that while many students have been active in campus activities this year, this new addition to the curriculum was the most important single contribution of the year. The program sponsored two student plays put on with student actors and directors recently. The Monadnock hopes that Mr. Citro and others will continue the fine work put into theater this year, and hopes also that students will be able to effect more additions to the drama department next year. Aside from his involvement with experimental theater, Mr. Citro has edited the Journal this year, and the board unanimously agreed, it has been the best literary publication on campus yet. Several plays, one of which "Infinity of Wood" was put on recently in conjunction with the Experimental Theater. In addition to his plays he has authored countless short stories and poems. The Monadnock also elected to award Roger Goldsmith, a senior secondary education major, with special recognition. This year Mr. Goldsmith has served as class president, a student senator as well as college senator, and worked first semester as news editor for the Monadnock. ## KEENE DOWNS FITCHBURG

By Steve Behrsing

The baseball team defeated Fitchburg State Wednesday by a score of 5 to 3 giving the team a 2 to 4 record. April 22 we lost to Lowell by a score of 8 to 2. Lowell's runs came in the latter part of the game as the starting pitcher, Jim Baker felt the effects of the cold weather and began to lose his stuff. Coach Glenn Theulen brought in two new pitchers, Nicholas (Bud) Anderson and Doug Dale, whose inexperience showed through and allowed Lowell the extra runs.

Jim Baker has so far showed amazing results under pressure, with his "hang-in-there" attitude. Coach Theulen feels that Doug Dale will be an excellent pitcher when he overcomes his tendency to wildness because he's a "thinking pitcher." Bud Anderson, recovering from an ankle injury, is doing a splendid job. Coach Theulen feels he knows the talents of Richard (Rad) Carlson and Conrad Fisk and he said, "When my pitchers learn there is more to pitching than throwing, we will really be in good shape." The coach said Fish will reach the top because he's a strong and poised mound man.

The infield, with three freshmen, is better than average, Theulen said. George Biron, captain, at first base, is an excellent batter. Steve Sheridan, at second, shows signs of being able to go beyond college ball. . . Shortstop Hank Beecher has a great infield arm and hits a long ball. Ed Luppold "makes it look easy" at third base.

Don Butler covers left field. Ron Vallee throws a long and accurate peg from center field. George Skoglanis, right fielder, is improving his hitting after recovering from an arm injury. The coaching staff is headed by Blake Richards, who is out now with finger trouble. Coach Theulen spoke highly of Blake's attitude. "He never pouts and thinks only of the team. A good catcher can't live inside himself and run the ball team too." Darel Graves is holding the mit in Blake's absence.

Theulen's reserves are: Tom Kralovic, first base and outfield; Ed Howard, a powerful hitter; Paul Poullot, a devoted athlete; and Bill Ashworth, a reserve catcher.

All in all, Theulen is proud of the team and recognizes their potential. He displays much optimism that they will be put to good use.

NHEA SAYS BUDGET INSUFFICIENT

Action in the Legislature this past week promises to move New Hampshire to - wards providing for (1) the educational needs of children who will live in the 21st Century. (2) the other pressing needs of state and local governments, (3) relief for the overburdened property taxpayers and (4) some restructuring of the state - local tax system. However, until the promises of this past week become laws signed by Governor Peterson, citizens and legislators must examine the financial facts of life and the means to meet our needs.

House Speaker Marshall Cobleigh ( R-Nashua) has seen that New Hampshire can no longer tailor its state local governmental programs to fit available revenues. NHEA made this same point about a year ago

In its investigation of New Hampshire schools. Others have made it before and since. Former Senate President Stewart Lamprey devoted his farewell address to such a need. Citizens of the state, including teachers, have emphasized the need for new state revenues for the state itself and its local sub-divisions thru attendance at public hearings on various tax measures. And yet, the facts of the situation and the need for more funds - which only a major tax program can provide - are questioned by legislators and citizens.

The New Hampshire population and economy is growing -- with very dramatic increases from 1967 to 1968 based on official figures of the U. S. Department of Commerce. State and local government needs are increasing just as rapidly to provide the same services for a growing population with increased prices. State and local revenues, however, are not responsive to this growth. Studies by the prestigious Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations ( ACIR ) show New Hampshire with a tax system almost the least responsive among the states to economic change. ACIR shows New Hampshire's use of the property tax beyond the national average utilization but its use of general sales and income taxes almost nil. Income taxes are most responsive to economic change; sales taxes are next and property taxes, least responsive.

House Speaker Cobleigh recognized these facts as the House took action on the Budget for the next biennium. Many more people need to recognize these well documented facts. New revenue is desperately needed to keep the present standard of state and local services. The new revenue need is not for expansion of services - unless one wishes to call, in some peculiar fashion, the extension of the same services to a greater number of people, expansion - but for existing service levels. This is a true minimum demand without cut-backs.

The teachers of New Hampshire and their organization, the NHEA, applaud the decisive and forward-looking action of House Speaker Marshall Cobleigh who yesterday gave full support to HB405. Cobleigh's decision to secure needed state and local revenue thru a broad base tax has given our state government the necessary leadership to successfully meet the pressing needs of our people. His action is one of courage and genuine honesty. We recommend the Speaker for his willingness to leave political expediency behind and deal realistically with the problems of today. The teachers of this state are giving Marshall Cobleigh complete backing in his effort to do that job that must be done.

The NHEA endorses HB 405 and urges passage by the legislature. The vote to be taken next Wednesday is the most crucial vote of this session. The NHEA is heartened by the Ways and Means Committee approval of HB405 and hope that their colleagues in the House give overwhelming support to the income tax measure.

NHEA also lauds the Senate for sending to the Senate Finance Committee SB9, which establishes a $6,000 minimum salary for teachers. The Senate thus joins the House which passes a similar bill last session. Funding of this minimal need requires affirmative action on HB405.

It should be unnecessary to point out that neither the Budget as passed by the House nor Governor Peterson's Educational Aid Fund are sufficient to the needs of the children of the State. Speaker Cobleigh's stand on HB405 and the action of the Ways & Means Committee make this point clearly. Nonetheless, it is well to illustrate the difference for children and property taxpayers under the Budget and under HB405. Under the Budget, the state of New Hampshire would provide about 10% of funds for schools. This is simply the present level of aid. HB 405 would bring the percentage of state aid to nearly 30%, still below the nationwide average of 40% of funds from the state, the level of support sought by the NHEA. For years the states c was decided that since the Executive Chairman of the operat has such a burdensome job, next year we will have co-chairmen. They are Brothers Ed McGarrigle and Tom Leonard.

The completion of the opera marks the end of a hard year for the brothers, and on May 17 they will all retire to nature for the annual Alpha picnic. The brothers have done a lot this year and deserve this break. It is an event which is looked forward to all year by every brother.

In softball last week, Alpha had several games scheduled, but the only one that was played was Alpha "D" vs. Kappa "B". Alpha won overwhelmingly. The undefeated "A" team had several games scheduled; one was cancelled, and the other was played after this article was submitted.

The Alpha Duck salutes Brother Scott Chase for the fine job he did on this year's opera. Considering the difficulties he encountered, and the situations he was working under, we feel that he did an excellent job.

Explanation

Because of a misunderstanding, the Monadnock wishes to make clear that what Dr. Leo Redfern said about teaching loads at Keene was aimed at implying that KSC's students were fortunate to have a faculty who, hitherto, had endured teaching loads in excess of those normally acceptable, because they were dedicated teachers. He did not, in any sense, suggest that this should be a continuing thing.

then, president of the college and chairman of the faculty's Curriculum Committee which initiated the study and formed the task forces.

"These task forces will consider possible approaches in course work to these multi-disciplinary fields," Dr. Bergethon said. "What we seek is an adventure in learning, so there are no limitations or hard lines of division for these task forces."

Students will sit on each task force. An eight-man ad hoc committee was appointed last year by Lafayette's Student Council at the request of the president to study the curriculum. It is expected that these students will join the four groups.

"Most students entering college today want their experience to be a sharp break with high school. We haven't been giving them that," according to Dr. Robert S. Chase, Jr., dean of studies. "Today's student often feels frustrated during the first two years of college because he thinks he's wasting his time acquiring the 'educational tools' we call basic requirements. We have to acquaint him with his culture and make him aware of the problems he'll face when he assumes his role in society," Dr. Chase said.

The Task Force on Man's Heritage brings together English, foreign languages, religion and history, with particular emphasis on major philosophical and religious issues, aesthetic elements, and lasting ideals.

The Man in Contemporary Society Task Force brings together history, economics, sociology and anthropology and political science, and will address itself to urban problems as related to political and economic affairs.

The Task Force on Physical Science and Technology will bring together the academic disciplines of engineering, physics, chemistry and geology. The Life Sciences Task Force will deal with biology and psychology.

"There is a strong feeling that the college should seek greater success in presenting to the student for his general education the comprehensive experience of a faculty of arts, sciences and engineering," Dr. Bergethon said.

The Curriculum Committee expressed the hope that each task force would present a preliminary report thus making it possible to decide on the next steps in the procedure.
