You know, my cherished one, it is at these moments, when I am waiting you nightly, that I seem closest to you; And I know, when you read these letters the feeling becomes mutual. So, dearest, this must be the substitute for ^{our} being together; And yet, how deep I always feel you close to me, watching over me, caring for me, and above all loving me. I need hardly to add that I have thought of nothing else but of you, and with the hope and wish that all is well with you. Please, dear, take good care of yourself; get plenty of sunshine, fresh air, good food and good fellowship - be happy, and keep that smile on your face. You know that big scaroon smile - I remember so vividly. I now begin to wonder how I ever managed to enjoy life without you.

Had a slightly busy day - no mail - no reply yet from the Associated Hospital Service other than an acknowledgement of my letter -

Jules phoned, wanted to dine with them to-night - but they will have to wait until next week - I have such a full schedule of dinner dates - that I am beginning to feel like little orphan Annie - Jules and Min send their bestest to you.

Visited Gene Hannis to-night - who treated me to dinner, (I sure am pawning money) then bought 2 beautiful sport shirts (1 - Fuji - bamboo color; 1 - ten rogue shirt) also pair of slacks, and I think I am all set in sport-wear for this summer - Will get shoes, end of this week. Bob phoned from Scranton, is sending us more records - will also bring in with him this week - end a phonograph for our use until he gets back after his vacation. So I expect to hear some fine music over the next few weeks. Market not doing much these days - I am feeling fine and dandy, and hope you are getting stronger daily -

Sorrey you are having so much rain but I am forwarding your rain coat and woolies. Your watch was not ready, so I will keep it here until you return. Daney received yours and Al's card, and thinks Al should be able to get you a cut in rates. Shall I write Al about this?

Listening to the Conn-Harris fight, and thinking of some of our past battles, but now, my loved one, I have only you -
As ever
