Sentinel article implies lack of city-college communication

Pam Penenberg
News Editor

An article appearing in the Jan. 11 issue of the "Keene Sentinel" regarding Keene State future plans for expansion implied lack of communication between city and college officials. Robert L. Mallat, Jr., KSC director of physical plant disagrees.

"There is a lot of informal planning going on at Keene State College which is not being communicated to city officials," Jerry F. McCollough, member of the Keene Planning Board and city planner was quoted as saying.

The College Master Plan, approved by the Board of Trustees which states clearly the college's plans for future physical expansion are communicated not only to city officials but residents as well, Mallat said.

"There has been no actual construction at KSC since the 1960's and we have received no negative feedback from Board members or residents to the planning of the Liberal Arts Building," Mallat added.

The only foreseeable problem arising from the Liberal Arts Building, Mallat said, is that of traffic flow to and from the building. Appian Way and Bruder St. will not be used as axis road, he said.

The college has decided upon its boundaries and will not build or purchase outside of these areas. Mallat said the college will not expand further on Winchester Street and has no plans for acquisition on Main Street.

The community has a legitimate concern as to all kinds of development, Mallat said. They should be informed, have an understanding and opportunity for input. This is the concern that is expressed.

Mallat said he didn't think there was a problem of communication. The college has not deviated from the Board of Trustees decisions and the community has been informed of the college's intentions since the 1960's.

Mallat said he was upset about the article in the Sentinel because only one side of the issue was addressed and the reporter covering the article did not provide enough background information for public inspection.

Comments in the article only reflected the views of Keene planning officials.

Gregory serves jail sentence

John Kyte

Mary Gregory, 47, mother of six, sometime English professor at Keene State College and avowed foe of nuclear power, went to jail two weeks ago today.

She began serving a ninety-day sentence for contempt of court stemming from her involvement in an August, 1976 demonstration against the Seabrook Nuclear Power Plant. Gregory and 10 others were convicted of violating a court injunction against trespassing at the power plant site. One of the 11, Robert Gross, a Manchester lawyer, had his conviction overturned.

The other 10, including Gregory, were sentenced to jail in September, 1976. They were originally denied bail pending appeal, but that decision was overturned by the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

The defendants' initial appeals were denied by the state Supreme Court, but they were released on bail pending an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. Last month, the 10 were granted a continuation of their bail and again the state court insisted they appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

However, Mary Gregory and one other defendant, Kevin Hopkins, 26, of Loudon, decided that such an appeal is too costly and time consuming and the chances for success are too small.

"I consider it a basic right to appeal my case without interference from a lower court," Hopkins wrote in a recent letter to the N.H. Supreme Court. "You, however, are trying to route my case directly to Washington where it may never be heard. How I should handle my appeal is my concern, not yours. I feel the N.H. Supreme Court should be protecting my rights, not manipulating them...."

David Gregory

am therefore revoking my bail...."

Gregory also revoked her bail. She said she decided to serve her sentence to show that older, more established people are still willing to disrupt their lives to take a stand for something they believe in.

She and her husband, Dr. David Gregory, a member of the KSC Science Department, also decided that their children would be better off if she served her sentence now and was home for the summer.

All 10 defendants have filed appeals with the U.S. District Court in Concord and their cases are scheduled to be heard this Friday.

Dr. Gregory said Sunday that because two of the defendants were in jail, the U.S. District court was forced to hear the cases as soon as possible. He said, however, that it was not Mrs. Gregory's intention to force the court into action by giving herself up.

As she prepared for her jail sentence, Mrs. Gregory released the following statement.

"I believe nuclear power is a moral question. Do I have the right to condemn future generations to cancer and genetic damage, to the constant threat of nuclear catastrophe and the insidious, invisible threat of radiation? Do I have the right to do this just in order to have quick energy now?

"To answer 'no' to these questions, I trespassed on Public Service Co. property. I expected to pay the penalty for that trespass - and I am now voluntarily surrendering myself to serve a three-month jail term."

"However, it does seem that my sentence is excessive and political.

Calendar and evaluation forms discussed

The Keene State College Senate voted to keep the present academic calendar and passed a bill which will revise faculty evaluation methods at last Wednesday's meeting.

Although some senators said a break was needed for the fall semester, a few voted against keeping the academic calendar unchanged with necessary minor changes from this academic year. The calendar will be used for the next two years.

The bill which will set up a three member faculty appeals committee passed with the necessary 3/4 majority, but in two tries. Student senators abstained on the original vote because they felt the issue was solely a faculty concern. The abstentions counted as no votes since 3/4 of all present had to vote yes for the measure to pass. The first vote failed.

Some senators said they did not realize they were voting against the bill by abstaining. A motion for a revote was made and passed. The bill passed easily the second time.

Also passed was a bill making the Long Range Academic Planning Committee (LRAPC) a standing committee. This committee will review new and existing academic programs and send its reports to the Dean of the College. The committee has only an advisory role in decisions affecting the academic programs.

The Senate also voted to leave the decision of next year's commencement date up to the senior class.

Blaisdell speaks at KSC

The following is a report by Newswriting II student Judy Gilman concerning a trial press conference delivered at the class' final exam.

In an early-morning press conference at Keene State College Friday, State Senator Cleson J. Blaisdell (D-10th Dist.) strongly attacked Gov. Meldrim Thomson on several points and called for a broad-based state tax.

Blaisdell said Thomson wouldn't even consider a study of the present tax structure. Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 3, which called for such a study, was passed by both houses of the legislature in the 1977 session and was then vetoed by Thomson.

Blaisdell criticized Thomson's repeated insistence that there have been no new taxes since Thomson first came to office in 1972.

"As far as I'm concerned," Blaisdell said, "a raised tax is a new tax." He cited taxes on cigarettes, liquor, business profits, and rooms and meals that had been increased since Thomson came to office.

Blaisdell said the one per cent increase in the rooms and meals tax was especially foolish, in view of the fact that surrounding states had dropped room and meal taxes in order to attract more tourist business.

Blaisdell said the chief victims of the property tax system are the Houses unsafe, students moved out

Six mini-houses on campus don't meet the requirements of the fire safety codes, said Carl Allen, director of residential life, Friday. On January 8th, 36 students were informed that only five people could remain in their houses because of fire codes.

Fire Marshall Lawrence Wood refused comment on the codes, saying that he had no jurisdiction over the college. He said he could only make suggestions.

However, according to Edward R. McKay, director of the Student Union, it was felt that they weren't being converted quickly enough. All of the houses should meet the 'house is kind of lonely.

We'd rather have it

the way it was.'

standards by next May, Allen said.

The housing office has made a commitment to the Campus Resident Council (C.R.C.) that all mini-houses will be inspected before occupation next semester.

The houses involved are Joyce, Coos, Grafton, Bass, Belknap and Sullivan. Joyce House does not meet the safety codes, but only five students live there, so no one was asked to vacate.

The houses decided in different ways who would leave. Those that left were given a choice of all vacancies on campus. Most of the houses decided to draw lots to see who must move. They decided that the five people who requested the house at room draw could stay. This meant that R.A. Mike Sheehan had to move to Carle Hall.

Steve Kumorek, a resident of Belknap House said, "Everybody was very upset. It worked out good for us five, but the house is kind of lonely. We'd rather have the house the way it was."

Chris McGuigan of Coos House was also upset about the move. He said, "I think there should have been more warning. I didn't think it was done very well."

The majority of students moved into Owls' Nests or Randall and Carle Halls. As soon as the repairs are made these students will be able to move back. One Grafton House resident said, "If the fire escape was finished tomorrow I'm sure they'd all be back."

Thomson criticizes UN

(WINDHOEK, Namibia) - New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson told reporters yesterday he "wouldn't trust" United Nations forces to keep peace in Namibia (Southwest Africa) if South African security forces withdrew.

He said South African forces are necessary to maintain order, prevent intimidation of local voters and ensure free elections.

"The United Nations was born of the hope to find peace in the world, but this hope has been shattered by the irresponsible manner in which we've allowed the communist influence to grow in the UN," Thomson said.

Radioactive spill reported

(PLATTEVILLE, Colo.) - An unknown quantity of helium contaminated with radioactivity escaped from the reactor of an atomic power plant here Monday and was released into the air outside, authorities said. The reactor was shut down and the plant's 275 workers were evacuated, but officials said there was no danger to the people living in the area. The release stemmed from a break in the reactor's coolant gas insulation system, a company spokesman said.

A 33,000-pound canister of radioactive uranium hexafluoride fell from a railroad car and landed upside down in the snow near Rickenbacker Air Force Base in Lockbourne, Ohio. Officials said there was no leakage.

Committee proposes diet

(WASHINGTON, D.C.) - The Senate Nutrition Committee suggested a new diet for Americans yesterday, claiming it would increase the chances of protection against some killer diseases. The report actually was a revision of an earlier document which advised consumers to eat less meat. The revised report toned that advice down to a recommendation to cut back on high-fat foods and to choose meats, poultry and fish which are low in saturated fats.

Franconia College closes

(FRANCONIA, N.H.) - After years of fighting financial problems, bad publicity and conservatives, Franconia College, an experimental, avant-garde school born in the tumultuous 1960's, closed Monday with hardly any notice.

From the time the school set up in a former White Mountains resort hotel in 1963, it fought a losing battle, going through six presidents, surviving an attack by the state to revoke its certification and weathering contrary publicity.

But on Sunday, the 20-member board of trustees said the financial problems were insurmountable and voted unanimously to close and try to place the 300 students plus faculty in other schools.

Oil companies pay fishermen

(BOSTON, Mass.) - Eleven major oil companies Monday announced their willingness to finance a compensation fund for fishermen whose gear is damaged by oil exploration off Georges Bank.

The oil industry agreed to the $150,000 fund after more than 2 years of negotiations with the fishing industry. Last year fishermen rejected a $50,000 fund as inadequate.

Carter plans first budget

(WASHINGTON, D.C.) - Jimmy Carter proposed Monday, the first federal budget of his presidency, and it calls for the smallest increase in spending in four years.

In sending a $500-billion spending proposal to Congress for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, the President showed two sides of his complex political personality:

-He is a mainstream Democrat in his willingness to use tax cuts for businesses and individuals to sustain economic growth and reduce unemployment.

He proposed a deficit for next year of just $1 billion below the $62 billion in red ink his budget estimates for this year. The deficit would result primarily from a $24.5-billion net reduction in personal and business income taxes he proposed over the weekend.

Selectmen allocate funds in first meeting

John Cloutier
Equinox Staff

The Board of Selectmen voted to give $300 to the Student Life Committee and $100 to the Paradox Club at their first meeting of the semester last Tuesday. They also voted to allow the Social Activities Council (SAC) to spend $350 for sending a representative to an upcoming NECAA Convention in New Orleans.

A denied Men's Lacrosse request, revision of two student organizations, the hiring of part time dorm security and student government vacancies were also discussed.

The money given to the Student Life was for three separate allocations of $100 related to the upcoming Winter Carnival on February 2-4. The first was for advertising of the carnival. The second concerned posters, markers, and other miscellaneous expenses for the carnival. The final $100 was for the $50, $30 and $20 prizes they will distribute to the winners of team events at the carnival.

The Board approved three separate allocations of $100 instead of one large allocation of $300 because any request over $100 would have had to be approved by the student body according to procedure for organizational funds.

The Paradox Club received $100 to help pay for the disco dance it had sponsored after the conclusion of its annual, "Dating Game," on Saturday, Jan. 21. Secretary Mary Pitchard told the Board Tuesday her organization did not have the necessary $100 for the disco. Specifically Pitchard said $75 was needed for rental of equipment from Interface in Keene and $25 was needed to pay Steve Woodard who was the disc jockey at the disco. She said a disco would draw a larger crowd to its "Dating Game," drew a large crowd, but not many people stayed for the dance.

Some Board members were convinced the equipment could be rented for less, and Board Chairman John Barbieri brought up the fact a dinner and dance was being the International Students' Organization and the Newman Student Organization that same night.

Campus Residence Council (CRC) Chairman Dianne Glaser talked briefly about the hiring of night attendants for the dorms. Among other things Glaser said the night attendants will be on duty from 11 p.m. to 4 a.m. every night of the week. One will watch Randall and Monadnock Halls, one for Fiske and Huntress Halls, one for Carle Hall, and one for the Owls' Nests. Security will take care of watching the mini-houses as usual.

She also said in relation to the mini-houses that fire escapes and fire doors are presently being installed for protective purposes. All mini-house residents who have been forced out of their mini-houses until the installations have been completed will have the option of returning or staying where they currently are.

Three vacancies in student government were announced at the meeting. Barbieri said there is a vacancy on the Board caused by the resignation of Callahan to become student body president. Callahan added there are currently two-year vacancies on both the College Senate and the Judicial Appeals Board. In the case of the Judicial Appeals Board Callahan said he is presently trying to get advice on whom to appoint to fill the vacancy.

The Student Life Committee was also commended for its initiative in creating an ice skating rink on Brickyard Pond.

himself a member of the club, argued for an exemption. Owen said the profits raised by the organization would create interest so it could hopefully become a varsity sport at KSC. Adviser Edward R. MacKay added the profits would be used to buy equipment for the team; equipment the club probably would donate to the college if and when it became a varsity sport.

Student Body President Chris Callahan argued that letting the Men's Lacrosse Club keep the profits from the sale of alcohol might have a snowball effect and encourage other organizations to request the same exemption.

In reference to KSC's Alcohol Policy in general Barbieri announced some revisions of it will be voted on by the full Board at its next meeting. He also said revisions of the Student Government Constitution and adoption of the Girls' Soccer Club Constitution will be considered at the next meeting.

Furthermore Barbieri announced there will be special student body meeting on Feb. 7. One of the agenda items calls for a change in the two dates of the regular student body meetings this semester. Currently the two dates are Tuesday, March 14 and April 25 according to the college calendar. Barbieri hopes these two dates would be changed to Tuesday, Feb. 28 and April 18 respectively.

Insert expected to improve student interest

The degree of student body participation in campus government is at best, barely passable. The 1977-78 school year has seen three selectmen resignations and two senate seats left vacant.

The College Senate made its first move in years to decrease student input in their governing body. Michael D. Keller introduced a motion last October to cut the number of student senators from 15 to 10.

We join student government in hoping this special edition spurs increased interest in KSC's political activities.

Even if you have no interest in pursuing political office, the insert should make student government more easily accessible to you. Become familiar with the names and faces; their responsibility is to make themselves available to hear your praise, complaints, suggestions or even your disapproval.

Again, there are vacancies in both bodies if you are really

SEE INSERT PAGES 9-12

Fortunately, Keller's efforts failed. The senate agreed last week to table the motion at least temporarily to allow student government to "better its lot."

"The Equinox," in an effort to improve student body awareness to its political structure has printed a student government supplement in this week's issue on pages 7-10.

The four page pull-out insert includes information on the Board of Selectmen, College Senate, N.H. University System and the Student Affairs Division. We feel that knowledge of the latter two is essential to being a competent student politician.

Take advantage of this offer. Remove the supplement from this issue and keep it for future reference.

interested. One of the reasons for the "stay of execution" on Keller's proposal was the promise that this insert would provide increased participation.

One final note: the supplement space was paid for by Keene State's Board of Selectmen. The insert doesn't in any way represent an Equinox gift of free publicity to its cause.

SAC: They have little time and less hope

An editorial on Spring Weekend - with three feet of snow on the ground? No, we are not running out of editorial ideas. Spring Weekend is a project whose planning must be completed soon.

The KSC weekend of the year looms only 75 days away (dates are April 7-9). And SAC admittedly needs help to make it a success.

SAC has discussed Ozark Mountain Dædævils, NRBQ, Atlanta Rhythm Section and the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band as possible headliners. They had to postpone their final decision last week because the members didn't feel qualified to vote.

Social Activities has done a commendable job this year. Blessed with an astronomical budget (over $25,000), they have been able to sponsor innovative programs without the fear of "losing their shirt" in the process. Wine and cheese coffeeshops, lectures on ghosts, the Bermuda Triangle and hypnosis is only a sampling of their program variety.

Unless they come to a decision on Spring Weekend, however, the campus may have to face a repeat of last year's Spring Weekend. SAC's 1977 production was an ambitious mixture of events; but for the second year in a row, they lacked the big money attraction.

Help SAC avoid another disappointing finale. Attend their meetings (Wednesdays at 6:30) and volunteer your knowledge of today's music.

They don't have much time. Most popular bands have already booked their schedules through May. So SAC is going to need a combination of crafty bargaining and a lot of luck to pull it off.

The money is there; $7,000 worth. SAC President Joanne Wiggin knows that campus enthusiasm can be equally valuable.

A bartender at the Union Pub was rudely awakened at four in the morning by a phone call from Monnelly.

"What time does the Pub open tomorrow?" Monnelly asked.

"Sorry, you can't get in 'til 4 p.m.," the bartender replied.

"I don't want to get in," Monnelly remarked, "I want to get out!!!"

Mrs. McGillin confessed to the priest that she had committed adultery.

"Was it against your will?" asked the priest.

"No," said Mrs. McGillin, "It was against the cupboard and you should have heard the china rattle!"

Barlow corrects errors

To the Editor:

While not wishing to sound overly critical, I feel I must however clear up a few discrepancies which occurred in the article on page seven of your last issue about the extended news coverage on WKNH this semester.

First off, you listed the title of my position as being production manager. This is not so because there exists no such position at WKNH. My job is that of Program Director which entails much more than that of production work, which is the making of various promotional spots for programs aired on the station or for special events at the college as well as Public Service Announcements. These PSA's, along with a number of the programs themselves this semester, are geared towards the community. While much of this work is the responsibility of the Program Director, a lot of credit for the increase in local programs aired on WKNH must go to the New Hampshire Public Radio Research Program for without whom much of what we are broadcasting now would not be possible.

Also in the article you mentioned Colleen Mullen as being "news editor," again this is wrong. The position is that of News Director which means that the person or in the case this year, persons, are in charge of running the news department at WKNH. I say persons because you failed to mention Kate O'Connell who is co-director with Colleen. Between running the Journalism Lab at the radio, public affairs information for college events and community, in addition to helping co-ordinate the daily news broadcasts, they do an admirable job in what is probably the most overlooked yet busiest area at the station.

Charles Moger was briefly mentioned as only being anchorman for the The News Tonight. He not only serves as anchorman but is responsible for putting together a half-hour report each evening. It was his idea to expand the evening report so I feel it only right to give credit where it is due. As a final note our news broadcasts are as follows: a five minute summary at 12:30, 3:30, and 10:30; the evening report at 5:30 and capsule news reports at 1:30, 2:30, 4:30, 8:30 and 9:30.

I hope that this letter will serve to set all the facts straight for your readers and our listeners and that there will be no further confusion.

Why place the blame on drivers?

To the Editor:

The recent attention to the long-standing traffic problem on Applan Way has placed all the blame for the problem on drivers.

Obviously they deserve a fair share of the blame, but only their fair share. There is another side to the problem, inconsiderate students.

At almost any time of the day or night it is virtually impossible to drive down Applan Way without meeting students. The problem lies in the fact that these students seem to think they own the road and that there is no need for them to move out of the way of on-coming cars.

Another facet of the problem is that people just don't look before dashing out into the street, something most people learn at a very early stage of life.

Granted, there must be give-and-take in situations such as we now have, and I'm sure most of the drivers on campus realize this. When is the rest of the student body going to catch on?

Sincerely,
John R. Kyte

Dining Commons Advisory Board establishes hours

To the Editor:

The Dining Commons Advisory Board has established the first "Bellyaching Table" hours for second semester. This time, in which students may ask members of the Board or ARA employees questions concerning food quality, preparation, or service, has been established for 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Thursday, January 26, 1978 on both the smoking and non-smoking sides.

For suggestions not during the Bellyaching Table hours, students are encouraged to post notes on the Dining Commons Improvement Board or contact their residential unit representative.

Thank you,

Debbie Child cites reasons for resignation from College Senate

To the Editor:

I would very much like to address this to the students of Keene State, as I have represented you for three years in the College Senate. I am a member of the Senate because I want to serve you, the student in the best way I possibly can. I feel I have done this until now. I can no longer serve the students to the best of my ability and the reason is collective bargaining.

Collective bargaining in this case is the New Hampshire Education Association. As soon as they are certified they will be the official representatives of the faculty at Keene State.

At this time I have been advised by legal counsel to abstain from voting on faculty welfare issues in the College Senate. I have been so advised because I am also a trustee of the University System of New Hampshire, the body the union must bargain with concerning faculty issues. In abstaining from voting I am not voting in the best interests of students concerning faculty welfare.

I have thought long and hard about this decision and it has not been an easy one. From the first time I heard I should abstain from voting, in December, until now, I have wondered how fairly I was representing the students. I truly believe that is why the Senate, the Trustee, the administration and the faculty are here. They are here for you, the students! Therefore, because I know I am here to represent the students and I am not providing you with the necessary representation I must resign my position as a senator. I want to emphasize that the only reason I am not able to fulfill my duties as a senator is because of collective bargaining.

I hope students will not continue to be effected in a negative way by the existence of collective bargaining on the campus of Keene State College. Yet, I regret that I foresee greater problems than the loss of one student senator.

Thank you for your time.

Proposed major in management nears passage

Luanne Hart
Equinox Staff

If the proposed management major passes at the Board of Trustees meeting in February, it will become part of the curriculum at Keene State College in September of 1978.

Richard A. Gustafson, dean of career studies, said that, although management courses are now offered at Keene, "this enables us to offer management courses in a sequence and offer a degree for them - Bachelor of Science in Systems Management."

All proposed programs within the University System must pass through four stages before they can become part of the curriculum, Gustafson said. The first three, The Systems Academic Planning Committee (SAPC), the administrative board, and the educational policies committee, all passed the proposed major unanimously. All that remains now, Gustafson said, is for the Board of Trustees to pass it. "We're very optimistic about it," he said.

At present, KSC is the only

William E. Whybrew

school in the University System without a management major, Gustafson said. Both Plymouth and UNH have a bachelor's and master's program, he said. Merrimack Valley has a two year program. Keene's proposal will allow for both a bachelor's and master's program, as well as a major and a minor program, Gustafson said.

The major will provide for a degree in Public Administration, as well as Labor Relations, Gustafson said.

The management major has been submitted to the Board of Trustees a number of times within the past year. Dr. James L. Spangenberg, head of the Senate Curriculum Committee, said, "It's my impression that it's now acceptable." There was some disagreement about it before, he said. Some Keene State faculty were afraid that it would harm the already established programs on campus.

"Now," he said, "it appears that all those points have been clarified. People are now satisfied. It's a good program that will generate adequate funding, and will not detract from present programs."

Because of limited funds within the University System, Spangenberg said, duplication of programs within the system is avoided. "new programs have to demonstrate that they fill a real need, do not duplicate already existing programs, and do not undercut programs that are already established," he said. The new major appears to meet these criteria, he said.

One indication of the success of the program, Spangenberg said, is the fact that forty more people from the area are now at Keene, and taking management courses that are offered.

These people used to go out of state to get these courses, but changed to Keene when the courses began to be offered here in Sept. of 77. He said that the number of students would increase if a management major were offered.

Dr. William E. Whybrew, dean of the college, also expressed his optimism about getting the major passed. "I expect that it will be approved," he said. He added that the major passed all the other steps without any problems, and the educational policies committee is recommending it to the Board of Trustees. "Usually the Board of Trustees follows their recommendation," he said.

Orta leaves moves to CUNY

John Orta, nutrition lecturer in the Home Economics department, resigned January 3. Orta said he enjoyed teaching at Keene State College, but "could not refuse" an offer to teach at the City University of New York for more money than he was paid here.

The New York position, beginning January 18, gives Orta the opportunity to direct a dietetic technician's program, he said. It is an associate's degree program for nutrition majors.

"I'll miss Keene, especially the beauty of this area," Orta said. "The students were wonderful."

Orta was replaced by two instructors; Linda Stavelly and Joan McGreevy. Stavelly began teaching Quantity Foods January 16, while McGreevy took over nutrition courses.

BULLETIN BOARD

A film series entitled "How Should We Then Live" will be shown at Keene State College beginning Tuesday, January 17.

The ten-episode series relates history, philosophy, and the arts to contemporary culture and is written and narrated by theologian and philosopher Dr. Francis Schaeffer.

A fund-raising dinner honoring Campus Minister Rev. Fay Gemmel is being held Saturday, February 11 at 7 p.m. at the Unitarian Universalist Church featuring Chinese food by Linda Stavely.

Tickets may be reserved by calling Vesta Hornbeck at 352-8568.

If you want further information you may contact Velma Francisco at 352-8921 or speak to Fay Gemmel - Campus Minister.

The dance marathon sponsored by SAC and WKNE begins Friday, Jan 27 at 6:30 and will run through Sunday, Jan 29 at 2:00 a.m. All students are welcome throughout the hours of the marathon to cheer on the couples.

There will be a brief mandatory meeting for all the dancers who are participating in the 1978 MS Dance Marathon tonight at 6 p.m. in the Student Union Conference Rooms A & B.

There will be a meeting Thursday, Jan 26, for all women interested in joining the Keene State Women's Track Club. If you are not able to attend, you can get in touch with Debbie Haddad at 213C, Carle Hall.

"Free Ski Weekend - From the airport to the slopes. Keep watching for more information!"

Jan. 25, Wednesday - Concert and Lecture Series presents: Maurice Sendak, children's book author and illustrator. Winner of the 1970 Hans Christian Andersen Award, the highest international honor given to an illustrator of children's books, and the first American to receive the award. Spaulding Gymnasium, 8 p.m. General Admission: $2.00; with KSC I.D., $1.00.

Graduation plans decided Preparations for the graduation of the Keene State College class of 1978 are being specified and determined rapidly. At the last senior class meeting on Jan. 16, graduation details were presented to the small portion of the senior class that was present. At the time of the meeting some plans were still being discussed.

The official date of the graduation ceremony is still undecided. Graduation was scheduled for May 14 at 2 p.m. A conflict with the University of New Hampshire commencement may change the KSC date to Saturday the 13.

A vocalist with an organ accompaniment was approved for commencement, but the musical selections remain undecided. The guest speaker for the ceremony is also undecided.

If the date for graduation remains May 14, it will be held on Fiske Lawn. A mandatory rehearsal will be held on May 12 from 10 to 12 p.m. If it rains, the ceremony will be held inside and only the two red tickets given to seniors will be usable.

A baccalaureate may precede the graduation ceremony. The decision to have the ceremony was strained because of poor attendance in past years.

The robes will be black with red and white tassels. The robes, caps and tassels will be purchased by the graduate for $20. A tentative date of April 25 for robe fitting has been planned. The class would like seniors to wear the shoes they plan to have at graduation. The shoes must be dark in color.

Graduation is also a time for celebration. A senior week is being planned with activities for students and their parents. A wine and cheese party, a dance and activities at Surry beach are all being discussed as possibilities.

The class gift is still undecided and suggestions are welcomed. One suggestion is a blood drive to be held with the pledged supply being used for Keene State Alumni who are in need.

A complete list of finalized decisions and dates will be mailed to all seniors and should be read for information.

Films to be presented

Several important philosophical and religious questions will be presented in a series of ten films sponsored by KSC's Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship (IVC). The series, called "How Should We Then Live" is shown Tuesdays at 6 p.m. in the Waltz Lecture Hall. They will run from Jan. 17 through Mar. 21, except for Mar. 7.

According to IVC member Pat Laughner, the films will address the "rise of the decline of Western culture," through the perspectives of history, philosophy and the arts. She said that Roman, Middle Ages, Renaissance, Reformation, Enlightenment and Scientism cultures will be studied to show a return to Biblical absolutes as the alternative to society's lack of principles. They formulate a "hopeful proposal for the future," Laughner said.

Winter Carnival is coming soon

Winter Carnival will take place Thursday, Feb. 2 through Saturday, Feb. 4.

This year's carnival is much more organized than last year's, according to Libby Manning, one of the event's co-organizers.

According to Manning, there were too many events scheduled in a short time last year. At the end of last semester, the Winter Carnival organizers noted the good and bad points of the event in order to improve it this year, she said. The carnival is sponsored by student government.

The Winter Carnival theme is "The Wizard of Oz." Manning said this was chosen because everyone is familiar with it and the characters are easily personified. The decorations for the Brown Room Winter Carnival Ball will be in this motif, and Manning suggested that snow sculptures should also follow this theme.

The Gong Show will kick off the Winter Carnival activities. It will be held on Thursday, Feb. 2 from 7:30 to 10 p.m. in the Brown Room of the Student Union. A rehearsal will precede the show. Judges of the event are John J. Cunningham, Steve Smith and Loanne Lorange.

Judges for the snow sculpture contest are Ed MacKay, Ronald Herron and Judy Moody. This event will take place at 3 p.m. Friday, Feb. 3. Artificial materials may be used in decoration, but not construction of the sculptures.

From 7 to 10 p.m. Friday, a volleyball game and suitcase race will take place in the Spaulding Gymnasium. No varsity or junior varsity volleyball player may play in the game.

A tug-of-war and relay races will be the main attractions at the Brickyard Pond from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sat., Feb. 4. Coffee, hot chocolate and doughnuts will be served by members of the Sigma Rho Upsilon sorority.

Immediately following the Brickyard Pond activities, will be the decoration of the Brown Room for the Winter Carnival Ball. At the ball, held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., announcements of the team event winners will be made.

Team events are open to groups of up to 20 people, with a minimum of five males and five females of each team. Each must have a captain. Prizes of $50, $30 and $20 will go to first, second and third place in each event.

Manning stressed that student support and participation should be greater than last year. Team rosters were issued last Wednesday and as of Friday, none had been returned, she said. Deadline for rosters is Thursday, Jan. 26 at the Student Union desk.

On Thursday, the Social Activities Council presented the movie "Confessions of a Window Cleaner." The movie is a raunchy, sexy, offbeat comedy of the antics in the daily life of a young window cleaner named Timmy. He encounters in his daily rounds an array of beautiful, enticing women stereotyped into the mold of the undersexed, lonely housewife types.

You don't believe in ghosts and haunted houses?

If you attended the talk and slide presentation given by ghost hunters Ed and Lorraine Warren on Tuesday, Jan. 17, at the Mabel Brown Room, you may have been convinced otherwise.

The Warrens, of Monroe, Ct., have spent the past 32 years researching the supernatural. Of particular interest to them are demonology and witchcraft, haunted houses and ghosts and exorcism and possessions. They have researched over 3000 cases of hauntings in such places as England, West Point and Connecticut. The Warrens have been involved in such cases as the hauntings upon which the novel The Amityville Horror is based.

Timmy finds himself getting into every sexual situation imaginable, from knocking over a huge bottle of dishwashing liquid on the floor and ending up beneath a mountain of bubbles with one housewife, to ruining his own wedding day through wandering eyes.

The movie was enjoyed by all who dared attend this kinky off-the-cuff flick. But isn't it only good clean fun to sit back and laugh at this bit of sexy satire in a world that is still full of proper rules and chastised, stuffed shirt formalities that get us all a little hot under the...?

There are good and bad ghosts, according to the Warrens. "Good ghosts remain on earth because they want to communicate something," Ed Warren says. "The bad ones are dangerous because all they want to do is create fear in people to make them do something for the dead." The Warrens say that cases of demonic possession can be traced to careless tampering with the occult through seances and devices like the ouija board.

Slides of apparent ghosts in an old house in England, as well as ones depicting markings of negative spirits, were exhibited during the Warren's two and a half hour presentation.

The stories, and the facts that back them up, give a person good reason to believe there really are ghosts and haunted houses.

It's rumored there is a ghost on the KSC campus. People say there is a rocking chair in the attic of KSC's Huntress Hall, and they say it rocks by itself. Some people even say it is the ghost of Harriet Huntress that makes it move, although Harriet Huntress never stepped foot into the hall while she was alive. So... if you're ever in Huntress Hall, you might think about watching out for the ghost of Harriet Huntress - that is, if you really do believe in ghosts and haunted houses.

1977-78 BOARD OF SELECTMEN

Barbieri Chairman

The Chairman of the Board of Selectmen is the head of Student Government. The responsibilities of the Chairman are presiding over all Board meetings, serving as an ex-officio and non-voting member of all committees of the Board and acting as student observer to the Student Affairs Committee of the Board of Trustees. The Chairman would take over as Student Body President in the case of the latter's resignation or removal. It is a difficult job, but with all the Board's members helping out, it's not so bad.

John Barbieri

D. Glaser Vice-Chairman

The Vice Chairman of the Board of Selectmen shall assume full powers of the Chairman in the latter's absence or inability to act. In the case of a vacancy in the office of Chairman, The Vice-Chairman shall assume the full powers of the Chairman. The Vice Chairman also acts as a general committee Chairman of the Board. In the event that the Student Body Meeting Moderator be absent, the Vice Chairman will assume the Moderator's powers.

Diane Glaser

K. Wallingford St. Union Board

In the past, activities sponsored by the SUAB have been a mixture of social and academic events like concerts, lectures and movies. Funding is provided by the Coffee Shop and the Student Union desk. The Board of Selectmen acts in an advisory capacity to the Director of the Student Union Ed MacKay. Members of the Board work closely with SAC and other student organizations to provide a variety of activities. We try to fill any gaps in scheduling to offer as many events as possible to the students and community. We are always open for suggestions or any other input.

GOVERNMENT INSERT

The following pages are for the benefit of the student body and are paid for by the Board of Selectmen. They deal with the structure of student government which consists of the Student Body President, Board of Selectmen, and College Senate and the structure of the Academic and Student Affairs Divisions of the College. There is also a flow chart of the University System.

A good deal of time has been spent by the Board of Selectmen on this supplement in the hope that it will aid students in their encounters.

Campus Residence Council-Glaser

The Campus Residence Council, CRC for short, is one of the several committees of the Board of Selectmen. It has been a general practice that the Vice Chairman of the Board presides over this council where he/she acts as a liaison to Residential Life. The Council is made up of at least 2 residents from each major residential unit and 1 from each mini-house.

It is the job of these members to bring any problems to the attention of the Council where the problem is then acted upon.

Rich Emmel- Board Moderator

Richard Emmel

As the title indicates, the Moderator/Parliamentarian is a combination of two positions. The Moderator is the presiding officer of the Student Body Meetings; his/her purpose is to run the meeting in accordance with the Student Government Constitution, By-Laws and Robert's Rules of Order. The Parliamentarian is the authority on parliamentary procedure; his/her purpose is to assure that all members adhere to the parliamentary procedure. A few of the beneficial aspects of being the Moderator/Parliamentarian are the direct involvement with student affairs and learning how to run meetings using standard parliamentary rules.

Public Relations Committee- Ashley

The purpose of this committee is to publicize the events of the Board of Selectmen, including dates and times of Board and Student Body meetings. This committee also publicizes all Student Government elections.

This committee keeps the students informed of what is going on in Student Government.

Allison Ashley

deLabry-Treasurer

The treasurer's duties include being in charge of all Student Government Funds and all allocations of the Student Activity Fund. He/She is also responsible for preparing a written report of the Student Activity Fund within one month after the beginning of the second semester.

Karen Barlock

The Constitution Committee of the Board of Selectmen is responsible for making sure an organization has a proper constitution which is required if an organization wishes to receive funding. This committee receives and corrects new constitutions before they are presented to the board for final approval. The committee may have five to ten members, at the present time it has five. Assistance is always needed and welcome.

College Senate

Gerry deLabry

Chris Callahan

It is the belief that the College Senate is of significant relevance to most students. It is, of course, the legislative body of the campus, with authority in all areas of college policy. Most of these areas have importance to students in their experience at Keene State College.

Too often students feel that only the Student Affairs Committee of the Senate and its action are important to them, but this is not the case. The Curriculum Committee, for example, is the body which reviews and brings to the full Senate proposals for new courses, deletions of courses, new programs, etcetera. They also deal with proposals to change the requirements for a particular major. Since students are here for academic reasons (primarily), I would like to think that most students could readily see the relevance of this committee's work to their stay at KSC.

The Admissions and Standards Committee also deals with many issues of interest to students. It is the body which develops legislative proposals concerning the college calendar, required grade point levels for remaining in good standing, requirements for admission and/or dismissal from the college, course transfer regulations creation of an honors program and many other matters of concern to students.

There are 16 student seats on the College Senate. I feel that students have a great opportunity to have an impact on decisions which affect them. Many complaints by students about policies of the college result from their own lack of knowledge of how these policies come about. The opportunity for you to play a role in development of these policies is open to you. If you do not take advantage of the opportunity, you have only yourself to blame.

Record review

Jackson Browne's latest - 'Running On Empty'

"Coffee in the morning cocaine afternoons/You talk about the weather/And you grin about the rooms/Phone calls long distance/To tell you how you've been/Forget about the losses, you exaggerate the wins/And when you stop to let 'em know/You've got it down/It's just another town along the road.

The road has often been used as a metaphor for life and this is the case with Jackson Browne's new album

"Running On Empty."

Not only is this collection of songs about the anxieties and frustrations, as well as the high points, of traveling on the road, but much of the album was recorded on the road as well. Actually only one song was recorded on the road (on a Continental Silver Eagle to be exact), somewhere in New Jersey.

Some songs were recorded in room 124 at the Holiday Inn in Edwardsville, Ill.; some in room 301 at the Cross Keys Inn, Columbia, Md.;

and some live on stage at the Garden
State Arts Center in Holmdel, New Jersey.

The quality of these backroom versions is quite good, and the fact that the album was recorded on tour, not so coincidentally ties in with the over-riding theme of the album.

You can't really compare "Running On Empty" to any of Jackson Browne's other albums.
Because it's unlike anything he's done before. Instead of singing philosophically about love, he sings about roadies, groupies, cocaine, CB's, and white lines (on the road as well as on the mirror).

Like a fine wine, Jackson
Browne's voice has improved over the

Jackson Browne

years and "Running On Empty" is evidence of this.

The energy that's involved in putting out an album like this and going on tour at the same time, seems to radiate throughout. In songs such as "Nothing But Time," "Shaky Town," and "Running On Empty," not only is the energy apparent, but a stronger emphasis is placed on drums.

Supporting Jackson Browne on this album are David Lindley on fiddle and lap steel; Russ Kunkel on drums;
Leland Sklar on bass; Danny Kortchmar on guitars, and Craig Doerge on keyboards (if you recognize some of these names it's because they also play backup to the likes of James Taylor and Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young). Doug Haywood and Rosemary Burier sing harmony.

If you didn't get this album for Christmas (like most of us), it's truly worth getting. If not for its aesthetic value, or to complete your Jackson Browne collection, or just because it's a good album, then get it to hear David Lindley do his Four Seasons imitation on Maurice Williams' song
"Stay."

Author and illustrator Sendak to appear tonight

Keene State College is quite fortunate to have appearing tonight, under the sponsorship of the Concert and Lecture Series, an author and illustrator of such stature as Maurice Sendak.

According to the authors of a 1977 children's literature text, "Most critics agree that Maurice Sendak is the prevailing genius of children's literature and that three of his books have already become classics." This statement is especially interesting when one realizes that Sendak does not believe in writing just for children. In fact, he says there is no such thing as children's books.

Sendak has strong feelings about the importance of books. In talking about his childhood he says, "I felt that books were holy objects to be caressed, rapturously sniffed, devotedly provided for. I gave my life to them. I still do. I continue to do what I did as a child: dream of books, make books, and collect books."

The Caldecott Medal is awarded annually by an awards committee of the American Library Association's Children's Services Division to the illustrator of the most distinguished picture book for children published in the United States during the preceding year. Maurice Sendak won this award in 1964 for his book Where the Wild Things Are.

He was runner-up for the Caldecott Medal for five other works: In The Night Kitchen by Sendak (1971), Mr. Rabbit and the Lovely Present by Charlotte Zolotow (1963), Little Bear's Visit by Else Holmelund Minarik (1962), The Moon Jumpers by Janice May Udry (1960), and What Do You Say, Dear? by Sesyle Joslin (1959).

In 1970, Maurice Sendak became the first American to receive the Hans Christian Andersen Awards Illustrator's Medal, given to an

He has been on The New York Times list of best-illustrated children's books fifteen times.

Sendak was born in 1928 in Brooklyn, New York, the child of Jewish immigrants who came to the United States from Poland. During high school he worked for All-American Comics, filling in backgrounds and adapting "Mutt and Jeff", strips for comic books. He and his brother Jack started making toys and tried to sell them to F.A.O.

offered a job working on window displays. He studied at the Art Students League, and about this time started studying classical illustrators such as Randolph Caldecott, Sir John Tenniel, Arthur Rackham, and William Blake.

According to Smith and Park (1977), "The unique man has no one style of illustrating his books. Sendak says that one style is boring; when an artist has only one style, he is actually doing the same book over and over. Have a flexible style allows him 'to walk in and out of all kinds of books.' Flexibility Sendak has, from Higglety Pigglety Pop!, which has the finely engraved Victorian English style of pen and ink sketches, to the most modern cartoon strip, pop culture style of In The Night Kitchen.

Sendak has written and/or illustrated seventy books. Some of his most admired are Where The Wild Things Are, Higglety Pigglety Pop! Or There Must Be More To Life, In the Night Kitchen, and the Nutshell Library. Sendak wrote and directed an animated film special, "Maurice Sendak's Really Rosie," based on the characters in The Sign On Rosie's Door and the Nutshell Library, with music by Carole King. It was performed on CBS-TV in 1975.

In 1973, Sendak illustrated The Juniper Tree and Other Tales from Grimm. His pen and ink drawings measure only 1/2 by 4-1/2 inches. According to Smith and Park (1977), "Many art critics feel that these drawings are among Sendak's best. They have been compared to Durer's 'Little Passions of Christ.' Also seen are the influences of the classical illustrators John Tenniel and Edward Lear."

Sendak considers himself first an author, then as an illustrator. Children in his books reflect children in real life situations: experiencing fear, delight, frustration, and aggression. They say "No" and "I don't care." Some of his books have aroused controversy among parents and educators.

Maurice Sendak is a perfectionist, a man of outstanding talent. Leo Wolfe has written in The Horn Book, "Most people who concern themselves with children's books today would eagerly agree that Sendak's name can be pronounced in the same breath as Tenniel's or Lear's, and that mentioning both of them justly symbolizes the breadth of Sendak's works. For, like Tenniel, he has responded to distinguished manuscripts with pictures of distinction; and, like Lear, he has created both words and pictures for children's books born of a unique personal vision."

illustrator who, by his complete work, has made an important international contribution to children's literature.

Lacrosse club deserves support

Monday afternoon, a representative of the Lacrosse club came up and handed me an essay entitled "Lacrosse: What is it?". Simply for the reason the club will be applying for Varsity status this spring it is in all due fairness that the essay be printed in its entirety.

"Lacrosse is a field game played by two opposing teams, with a ball and a stick with which the ball is caught, carried and thrown. The game, originally played by the Indians of North America and called 'bagataway', was adapted by the French-Canadians, who called it 'la crosse' because it represents a bishop's crosier for cross. Lacrosse always a popular game in Canada, was adopted in 1867 by an act of Parliament as the Canadian national game. In the United States, lacrosse has been played since the 1880's. It is mostly played today by eastern colleges under the supervision of the Intercollegiate Association."

"Lacrosse is played on a field between 60-70 yards wide and 80 yards long with 15 additional yards of clear space behind each goal. Each goal is 6' by 6' with a crossbar at the top. The ball is made of hard rubber and is 8" in circumference and 5 ounces in weight. Each player carries a stick between 4-5 feet tall. Ten men comprise a team."

"The object of Lacrosse is to send the ball, using the crosse, through the opposing team's goal. A game is started by a face-off with two opposing players in the center of the field. The ball can not be touched with the hand, only with the crosse. It may be passed in any direction. A player usually runs with the ball until he can pass it to a nearby teammate."

"A player may jar another opposing player out of position or stop him from running with a 'body check' if the latter is about to receive the ball or is carrying it. A body check may not be made from behind. The player making the check must not hurl his body through the air, but must keep one foot on the ground in thrusting his body into the opponent. A player may also attempt to dislodge the ball from an opponents crosse using his own stick as a weapon."

"The ball is in play anywhere within the confines of the playing field and the clear space behind the goals. If the ball is thrown out of bounds or as a player steps out of bounds the ball is awarded to the other team. Technical fouls, minor infractions of the rules, are punished by loss of possession. Personal fouls, infractions of a more serious nature, such as tripping or pushing an opponent, an illegal body check, or unnecessary roughness are punished by suspension from the game for one to three minutes."

"If you've never seen lacrosse played you must see a game. It's called the fastest sport on two feet, and that it is! The game is exciting to watch and even more exciting to play."

"Having followed the sport of Lacrosse for the last two years, I completely support the Lacrosse Club's goal to be varsity. I would without hesitation recommend the Athletic Board of Control to adopt Lacrosse as a team sport at Keene State College."

Delorm picked in draft

Tad Delorm, goaltender for Keene State for the last three seasons has been drafted in the second round of the North American Soccer League college draft by the expansion Caribous of Colorado.

Delorm was the first to pick of the second session and the 26th overall. He was the second goalie in the nation to be drafted.

Delorm led the Owls to a 17-5 record this past season, including a second place finish in the NAIA national tournament. He had 12 shutouts over the course of the season and had a .40 goals against average.

"We were extremely happy to have picked a player of Tad's calibre," said Dan Wood, assistant coach of the Caribous.

Owls ski in first meet

Despite adverse weather conditions, the Keene State Ski Team skied their first official meet of the season last Friday and Saturday. The team did not fare well, however, as the Alpine finished fifth place out of seven, and the Nordic finished last.

Mike Silverman was top man for the Owls in the slalom placing ninth, with a time of 80.33 seconds. Gerry DeLabry finished tenth, recording an 86.96; while Bill McGahie took fifteenth with an 82.94. Phil Boor, who did quite well in last week's meet, lost a ski in the second run of the slalom and didn't finish the race.

In the cross-country event, Bill McMahon was top finisher for Keene State completing the 15 kilometer run in a time of 1:04 min. and 43 sec. Rich Cote was second man for the Owls with a time of 1:11.55, followed by Greg Porell at 1:17.42. Mike Bigelow, still recovering from an injury, placed next to last.

Conditions on Friday and Saturday were not very favorable. Blowing snow on Friday made the slalom race very hazardous and caused the giant slalom to be cancelled; the jumping event was cancelled on Saturday for the same reason.

Coach George Liebl said that despite what the score might indicate the team skied quite well. "We scored 49 points out of two events and we would have scored better if they had held all the events," state Liebl. He said the team is coming along quite well. Plagued with injuries earlier in the year, they are much healthier now and are looking forward to their next meet.

"The team's maturing quite well, we've got a lot of new people, young people, and its coming along good," states Liebl.

The team is now waiting for the recovery of combined event man Eddie Drew, and is looking ahead at the rest of the season optimistically.

The team's next meet is this weekend at Haystack Mtn. for the Alpine events and New England College for the Nordic.

Brickyard Pond open to skating

Through the combined efforts of the Physical Plant, Student Activities and Recreation departments, the Brickyard Pond has been opened for recreational ice skating.

The area, with access from the Central Parking Lot, will be supervised from 6 to 10 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

A number of policies will be enforced by the area supervisors. The policies forbid the consumption of alcohol in the area, the building of bonfires and the playing of loud

Women win opener, 79-41

The women's Basketball team played their season opener Tuesday, Jan. 17. They won handily over Lowell University by a score of 79-41.

The Owls had four players in double figures. Guard Edith Turcotte led the scoring for the Owls with 14 points. She was followed by Diane Lowell who scored 12 points and Karen Crowley with 11. Karen Pelletier and Linda Finnegan scored 10 points.

"I was disappointed they didn't provide a greater challenge," coach Karen Booth said. In evidence of this, the Owls' second string played 60 per cent of the game. Booth said she thought the team showed a great deal of strength in fast break situations and displayed aggressiveness and thinking music. Hockey may be played only during the daytime.

School officials have warned that the area will be closed if students do not heed the rules and regulations.

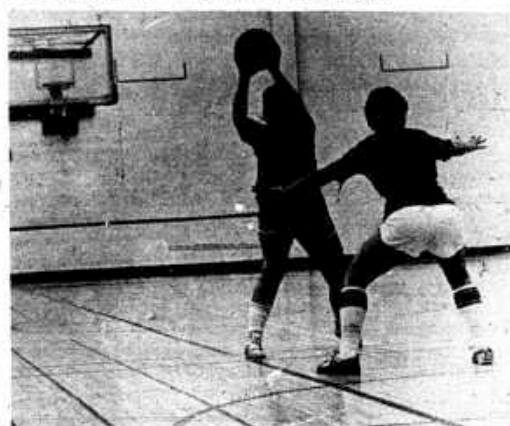

Students wishing to use the area should park in the central parking lot and enter the area on foot. The area will remain open as long as the ice is determined to be safe.

A number of intramural programs are being planned for the area. Watch the Equinox and the Intramural Bulletin Boards for details.

on the court.

The Owl women's record stands at 1-0. Their games against the University of Maine Portland-Gorham and Lyndon State College were cancelled last week because of snow, but will be made up at a later date. Their next game will be played today. It pits the Owls against Boston College at Boston College.

Intramurals underway

Action in both the men's and women's intramural basketball leagues got under way on Monday.

It has been announced that due to tonight's program in the main gymnasium, the scheduled intramural volleyball and basketball contests will be postponed indefinitely. Watch the Equinox and Intramural Bulletin Board for make-up dates.

On Monday night, Maureen Tracy scored 20 points to lead the Bins to a 44-22 victory over the Moravicks, in the opener of the women's basketball season. In the men's games, Aardvark topped Kappa, 69-19, the Purple Squires edged the Missing Links, 39-35, and S-8 and under topped the Bad Lads, 52-29.

Chet Brach scored 16 points in the Aardvark victory, while the S-8 and under win was keyed by Randy Genest's 15-point effort. Randy Murphy scored 14 to lead the Purple Squires to their victory.

Roster forms are available in the Physical Education Office for two new activities which will take place at the Brickyard Pond. A broom hockey tournament will be offered for women, while an ice hockey tournament will be offered for men. Rosters should be completed and placed in Pete Hanrahan's mailbox in the main gym by next Wednesday, Feb. 1. Play in each tournament will begin the following Monday. Games will be played afternoons at 3 and 4 p.m.

Sign-up sheets are posted at the gymnasium for intramural pool, ping pong, and racquetball. All will operate on a tournament basis, with mixed doubles competition being offered in racquetball. Sign up by next Wednesday, Feb. 1. Play will begin the following Monday.

Sign-up policy changed

A new policy for signing up to play racquetball and squash is being instituted by the Recreation department.

The policy went into effect on Monday, Jan. 16. From 12 noon to 1 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, signups will take place in the Equipment Room with Joe Palumbo. From 4 to 5 p.m., on Tuesdays and Thursdays, signups will also take place in the Equipment Room. After those hours, the sheets will be posted on the Intramural Bulletin Board at Spaulding Gymnasium.

In order to sign up at the Equipment Room with Mr. Palumbo, students, faculty and staff must show a valid I.D. Card.

Swimmers take 7 firsts

The Keene State men's swim team took seven first place finishes last Thursday, and just barely lost to Middlebury College, 47 to 53.

Middlebury, after 5 events had taken a convincing 31-12 lead over the Owls and it seemed they would win without too much trouble. Keene, however made a charge in the latter part of the meet and just fell short.

First place finishers were Joel Stefansky in the 1000 and 500 meter freestyle, Newell Roberts in the 1 meter diving and 200 meter butterfly, Tim Underhill in the 200 meter backstroke, and Ted McGahie in the 200 individual medley. The 400 meter free relay team also won.

Coach Chuck Wolberg said that that Middlebury and Keene were pretty much in the same class in swimming ability. "They had more people than us, but we were able to hang in there pretty closely," said Wolberg. "When you look individually, we won a lot of events, but we were lacking in depth."

Although it is the mid-point of the season and his team is 0-4, Coach Wolberg stated that he is looking more for improvement in times rather than wins right now. He has remarked that he is quite happy with the performance of his team right now, and is looking to the future. Team member Andy Hartz has also stated "We're not out for wins, its for the times."

Hoopsters lose close one at end

Keith Page
Equinox Staff

A two-minute stretch late in the first half in which Western New England outscored the Owls 11-2, proved to be the deciding factor in a 97-80 win over Keene State last Saturday evening.

Until then, the Owls trailed by four points. They went into the lockerroom with a 12 point deficit.

The Owls main problem was their inability to stop WNE's Bill Harris, who led all scorers with 28 points. Scoring most of his baskets on fastbreak layups and daring drives through the middle, Harris was the catalyst in the Golden Bears first half spurt.

In the early going it looked like Keene might be heading for their second victory as they were able to stay with WNE point for point. Every time the Golden Bears would gain a slight advantage, the Owls would fight back within three or four points. Then the roof fell in and when the dust cleared, WNE held a 46-34 halftime advantage.

The beginning of the second half saw much of the same for Keene as they found themselves down by as many as 20 points. WNE continually forced Owl turnovers converted them into baskets.

Carl Roche

With seven minutes remaining, Keene staged a comeback to put some pressure on Western's laughter position.

Thanks to some good defense and rebounding, the Owls were able to cut WNE's lead to seven points, 87-80. But it turned out to be too little too late.

After the game, Coach Glenn Theulen said the team lacked the intensity to win the ballgame. "You have to play all the way, there's no holding back," he said.

For the Owls, Carl Roche continues to look impressive in the center position. Despite playing almost all of the second half with four fouls, Roche finished with 19 points, high for the Owls. He also pulled down 15 rebounds.

Also hitting double digits for Keene were Matt Theulen, 16, brother Mike, 14, Paul Trocki, 12, and Kevin Savage with 10.

The Owls are off until Friday when they start a three game, three day road trip against Husson, University of Maine at Portland-Gorham, and Bates.

Women's ski team places fourth

The Keene State Women's Ski team placed fourth overall in a Division II college meet Friday, Jan. 20.

Keene State placed third in the slalom even and fourth in the giant slalom. Valerie Comerford came in sixth out of 55 skiers in the slalom with freshman and first time racer, Helen Calhoun, placing ninth in that event.

There are five Alpine skiers on the team, three of whom are Freshman. The alpine team includes juniors Valerie Comerford and Kim Eisman and freshman Helen Calhoun, Lynn Zukowski and Eva Dandandell. Dandandell is from Sweden.

One thing to keep in mind is the skiing of Lauren Clark. She is the number one skier on the team, but was unable to compete Friday because of the flu.

The Keene Women's Cross-Country team is not one of the strongest, but with more experience, they should steadily improve. Coach Cathi Savoie feels her team has a great deal of depth and says that Plymouth State will provide their greatest competition this season.

The team's next meet will be Friday, Jan. 27 at Burke Mountain in Lyndonville, Vermont. Eleven teams will compete, with Lyndon State College hosting the meet.

Gregory serves term

Ironically, I think that if I had gone on Public Service Co. property with some sort of criminal intent, rather than a political purpose, I would probably have received a lighter sentence. I believe the reason for such a long jail sentence is to chill other people, to discourage them from making a similar protest.... Use of nuclear power is the great moral question of our age. Our answer will be crucial. But I believe we must act, each one of us in a high sense, as the stewards and guardians of the future."

Mrs. Gregory is serving her sentence in the Sullivan County House of Correction in Unity, N.H. She is the only woman inmate. Mrs. Gregory said she had petitioned the judge to be jailed in Unity because it is closer to her home in Keene.

Dr. Gregory described the jail as being "like a lot of older minimum security facilities" and that it wasn't at all like a penitentiary. He said the institution has a county nursing home and a working farm in addition to the jail. There are only about 50 inmates.

Dr. Gregory said his wife is "earning her keep" working eight hours a day in the prison kitchen as a dishwasher.

"She's really beat when she gets through a day in there," Gregory said, "they're working the hell out of her."

Mrs. Gregory is free half-and-hour a day to walk around the jail and also spends time reading and writing. She is currently working on a mystery story about Wales.

Gregory said he's sad to have his wife gone, that they're a very close family and "it's like taking the heart right out of it."

"They know where she is," he said, "and we go visit her, so it's not too bad."

Blaisdell on taxes and Thomson

elderly, "who have worked hard to make the state what it is." He added, "You can't educate children with property taxes."

Blaisdell said the citizens of New Hampshire have been misled about taxes for too long. He cited an article in the Manchester Union Leader published shortly before the 1976 election that claimed the state had a surplus of $15 million. He compared this to saying one has a lot of money in the bank the day before the bills all come due.

Blaisdell called for a new statewide newspaper which would compete with the Union Leader. He said the Manchester paper had the policy that all news must serve a purpose, and this reminded him of the Nazi chief of propaganda, Joseph Goebbels.

"Other papers in the state haven't accepted the responsibility for taking on the Union-Leader publisher William Loeb more frequently and aggressively," the Senator said, advocating a newly established daily to oppose the Union-Leader.

Blaisdell suggested that Channel 9 in Manchester might be the alternative news outlet for "the real picture." Blaisdell said that Fred Kacher, former news director of Channel 9, had tried hard while he was there to get more news broadcast across the state. Channel 11, the Public Broadcasting System outlet in Durham, does "an excellent job, but nobody watches it," he remarked.

Blaisdell said three state services that need immediate and long-overdue attention are the Laconia State Hospital, the New Hampshire State Mental Hospital, and the New Hampshire State Prison.

"They've had a hundred years of neglect," he said, "and we need to bring all three into the 20th century."

Blaisdell, who announced his possible candidacy for the governorship over a year ago, did not say whether he would be running for a fifth term as a senator from the 10th District.

He did say that if people gave him the money he would run against Thomson on a pro-tax platform which he called "a suicide mission - you get dlobbered, but somebody's got to do it."

He added that the first couple of candidates to run on a true tax reform platform would be defeated, but that they would educate the people to the need for a complete overhaul of the system.

Blaisdell said he would not support either Delbert Downing or Hugh Gallen for the gubernatorial race because they do not support such an overhaul.

Personality Profile

Hancock active editor and athlete

Betty Kuehn
Equinox Staff

"He is easygoing, easy to work for, moves at a slow pace, mellow, honest, athletic, and energetic." That is how Nancy Brubaker, photography editor for the Kronicle, describes her boss, Editor Tim Hancock.

Lynn Polk, an art editor, says Tim is "shy, sweet, nice, and willing to do anything for anybody."

Tim, flattered but embarrassed by such remarks, describes himself less glowingly. "I'm shy, active, a periodic loner, and I try to do some things for people."

When he's not devoting his time to the Kronicle, Tim is Alpine Captain for the ski team, entering and winning photography contests, pursuing a major in industrial education, and managing to find time for friends. He also silk screens the t-shirts worn by marshalls at major Social Activities Council concerts, and was photography editor for the Equinox one semester. Why is he so active? "Because I hate being bored," he says. "I just can't sit around."

Tim, 22, gets his energy from an active, out-going mother and a talented, quiet father. He has spent several summers helping his parents build houses, and plans to do so again this coming summer.

Born and raised in Lake Hopatcong, N.J., Tim later moved to Armonk, N.Y. Now his parents live in North Carolina, while he considers Keene his home. Tim disliked living in New York because "there were too many rich snobs." He credits his brother, a natural resource researcher in Montana, for teaching him that "Money is not everything."

Tim's compensation for being Kronicle Editor is full in-state tuition. This allowed him the freedom to take last summer off from working, to travel out west. He visited his brother, and also stayed with friends in Colorado and Utah.

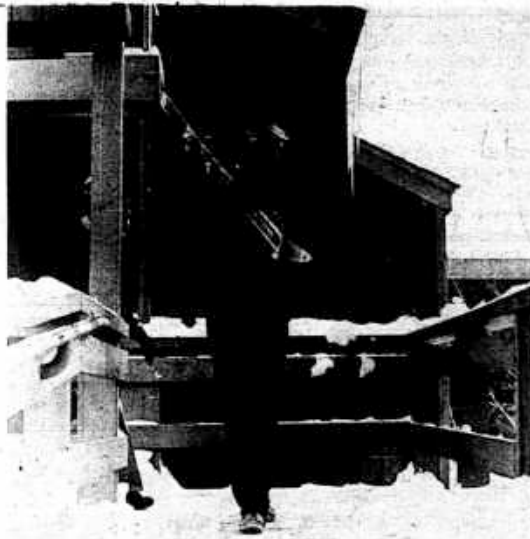

A photograph of Tim's that took first place in a Peterborough competition was of a mountain-climber in Utah. Second place went to his photograph of a Long Island sunset. In a different competition, he was first place winner with a photograph of an ice-encrusted Volkswagen tire, taken while photographing a ski meet.

"I never took a photography course or read any books on the subject," Tim says. His enthusiasm for the hobby inspired him to give a camera to his brother and sister-in-law as a wedding gift. Tim favors his photographs, and has some displayed on the walls of the room he shares with Student Body President, Chris Callahan, in Owl's Nest six.

Tim, a junior, spent three semesters at Castleton as a physical education major before coming to Keene State College. "I was talked into going to college by my parents and friends," he says.

A skier for the past 13 years, he transferred after Castleton dropped their ski team. He says "I like competition," and fills every weekend for a month and a half with racing. On Friday's, he competes with the ski team, doing downhill racing. Saturday's he does jumping and cross-country, and Sunday's he's in the U.S. Eastern Ski Association races. During the week, Tim sometimes practices at Crotched Mountain or the ski hill in East Swanzey.

Hancock...off to tackle another mountain

With so much time devoted to photography and skiing, Tim admits that his schoolwork "suffers a lot." The Kronicle, which so far hasn't required as much of his time, will make Tim busier in another month. "Layouts will have to be done, so we'll really get cooking," he says. "It took one semester to find a publisher, which slowed down everything, but as of last week, we have one."

Tim and Amy Lindeman, an art editor for the Kronicle, will be working on 16 pages of color photographs. Tim feels "that should really add to the Kronicle." Although Tim often develops black and white prints, the color prints will be done by Stevens Studios.

Tim gives all the credit for his silk screened t-shirts to Lynn Polk, who does the graphic designs for them. He did, however, do the design for the Dave Brubeck concert himself, and prints t-shirts for various shops and baseball teams during the summers.

Tim is looking forward to graduating, but says "I'll miss all of the campus activities." He will decide after student teaching whether or not he will teach professionally. If he does teach, Tim says he will limit his extracurricular activities to being a ski team coach. "I will specialize, instead of being a jack-of-all-trades."

For a 5 ft. 11 in., blue-eyed, blond-haired, talented person, Tim could have a swelled head, but he says he lacks confidence in his abilities. "I know I have the skill to do it, but somehow I get psyched-out."

Tim Hancock: easygoing, mellow, honest, athletic and energetic.
