

Friday eve—
Aug. 24th

Dearest George,

Since early last evening I've been captured by an enchanting novel and I do desire to finish it before you return. The book's name is "The Sun Is My Undoing" by Marguerite Steen and contains 1176 pages of beautifully written words. It's one of last year's best sellers and I'm enjoying it so much that I actually awake at 6.15 a.m. to read.

It's been raining all day long and it's more like an October day. The stearn is very convenient in cold days and it's very comfortable here (just the opposite of your quarters) We remained indoors throughout the day and Mom went out for the few necessary things. Jim played nicely in our room with his toys and we read almost all of his story books during the afternoon. Had a delicious dinner of ham steaks, spaghetti, green beans and peas and Jim loved every mouthful.

No mail from you or anyone else and I'm so anxious for those wonderful letters of yours. They're sure the best tonic for lonesome days and nights.

Jim is tucked in his crib, Mom is reading and I'm going to read again all evening and have you uppermost in my thoughts. Until to-morrow, dearest, all my love and devotion as always and stay well. Love and kisses from both Jim and Mommy and we love you more and more.
Best regards from all the family.

Sincerely,
Florence

Handwritten text, likely a letter or document, written in cursive script. The text is mirrored across the page, suggesting it was written on a single sheet of paper and then scanned or photographed. The handwriting is dense and fills most of the page.
