Student Government news

College Judiciary Board still not established

It is seven months into the academic year, and the College Judiciary Board is still not established.

The board is supposed to be set up every year by the College Senate Student Affairs Committee and the Student Life Committee of Student Government.

According to ARTICLE VI. of the Student Government by-laws:

"The College Judiciary Board shall be composed of both student and faculty justices, who sit as equals and jointly make decisions, on appeal, concerning disciplinary problems related to the student code of conduct.

"It shall also clarify issues concerning the constitutionality and functioning of student government."

In other words the College Judiciary Board is the government body to turn to when a student feels a disciplinary decision against him/her was unfair. The board not only handles non-academic offenses such as resident hall violations, it can also be called to review cases of cheating, plagiarism, etc.

That is, it could be called—if it existed.

From the by-laws, ARTICLE VI, provision is made for a panel—seven students and seven faculty; to be designated by a special nominating committee. The appeal board of seven justices would be drawn from these 14 to handle any case that should arise.

The special nominating committee, according to the by-laws, would include the combined membership of the Faculty Senate Committee on Student Life and the Senate Committee on Student Affairs.

Members of Student Government say the Faculty Committee on Student Life does not exist. It's duties have been delegated to the Student Life Committee of the Board of Selectmen.

A joint session of the two committees has not yet been held.

Judi Barrett, secretary of the college senate, said she informed Terry Wiggin in mid-October that he was responsible for setting up the College Judiciary Board. Wiggin is chairman of the Senate Committee on Student Affairs.

Wiggin said he did not know that he was responsible for setting up the Judiciary Board until November. The harried situation that comes at the end of a semester prevented him from calling a meeting at the time, he said.

But November was five and a half months ago.

Wiggin said it is difficult to call a meeting of the Student Affairs Committee. He cited some of the committee members: David Battenfield, chairman of the English Department; Sherry Bovinet, chairman of the Physical Education Department; Walter J. Babb, dean of Student Affairs; Howard

Money matters brought before Board of Selectmen

Walter Asonovich
Equinox Staff

Several money matters were brought before the Board of Selectmen at their meeting Monday night. Waiving the rule that items be presented 48 hours before the meeting the agenda included:

A request for $200 to provide tapes for the KSC-IRS program. They have run out of funds and can no longer record events on campus.

A request for $300 submitted by WKNH radio to cover costs and publicity of having "Purly and the Waste Band" play on the patio in back of Morrison Hall the Friday of Spring Weekend.

A request for $310 to pay for 500 frisbees, costing $.62 each. The frisbees will be handed out during Spring Weekend.

A request for $100 to complement funding of a speakers program on the Middle East to be held May 10.

A request for $96 to help finance the Women's Lacrosse Club.

Formal contest issued against the warrant of Student Body Meeting

A formal contest has been issued against the warrant of the Student Body Meeting held March 9. The contest was made by Walter Asonovich, news editor for the Equinox, and Judi Barrett, secretary of the college senate.

The contest came about when Asonovich, reporting a Board of Selectmen's meeting on April 5, learned that announcement procedures for the last Student Body Meeting had not been followed.

At the April 5 selectmen's meeting Terry Clark made a motion to change the announcement procedures to include the use of off-campus media. The motion was tabled, because the changes would require altering the constitution. When the existing procedures were read from the constitution, Asonovich said he "sensed that something was wrong."

The procedures for announcing a Student Body Meeting are listed in the constitution under ARTICLE V. Duties of the Board of Selectmen, Section Three, which calls for: "The publication of the warrant not less than five academic days before any Student Body Meeting."

The Equinox did not receive a copy of the warrant. Warrant articles were mentioned in a Nancy Brubaker column in the March 3, issue of the Equinox. The article listed:

—A proposed increase in the athletic fee.

Basketball team budget out of bounds

Jim Brown and Jim Picton
Equinox Staff

This year's basketball team went south in January. This year's basketball team didn't do very well, physically. This year's basketball team did even worse, fiscally. This year's basketball team spent $1,982.41 over their Florida Trip budget. This year's basketball team was the last to go south.

The figure of $1,982.41 was given to the Equinox by James C. Milani, housing director, and former student union/student activities director. Milani was quick to add that $500 could be subtracted from this figure, for if the team had stayed in Keene to play, the school would have picked up a $500 food expense anyway. This is still approximately $1500 over the basketball team's budget.

When asked whether student government can put limits on athletic budgets, Milani explained that when the student government approved the athletic budget in 1974, they recommended a geographical travel limit to the teams: New England and eastern New York.

The Athletic Board of Control accepted that limit, Milani said, but as long as this limit has been in effect, there has been an exception made for the basketball team. The reason for this exception was that there wasn't sufficient competition in the New England area during the six week interim period, he said.

If individual teams, such as soccer, swimming, and basketball run over their budgets, and if there are extenuating circumstances, the deficit can be covered by men's or women's general funds, Milani added.

An example of legitimate extenuating circumstances is the soccer team's deficit which is $700. This is because the bus company they hired reneged and it cost an extra $300 to hire another. Also, they spent $400 for a regional tournament (legitimate non-budget expense). They will probably be covered, Milani explained.

If the basketball team runs over its budget, and there are no extenuating

"One of the problems with these coaches is that they go hog-wild" circumstances, the team must have that extra money taken off next year's budget, Milani said. He added that the team might have some extenuating circumstances outside the Florida trip to justify deficit.

In response to the question of whether the team went over the geographical limits, Milani said that if an exception to the limit was granted, they will have possible justification.

The basketball team's budget is not the only athletic budget running in the red. According to William Bullough, assistant business administrator for the college, the total athletic budget is overspent this year.

"We're very concerned about it," he said.

The total athletic budget is approximately $2,500 overspent, Bullough said, adding that Glen Theulen, head coach of the basketball team, will receive most of the blame for this.

"One of the problems with these coaches is that they go hog wild," he said.

The first year the trip took place, they were to sponsor themselves and raise their own money, with the local Kiwanis chapter sharing the expenses 50/50, Bullough said. But this didn't work out so well, he said. The team raised a bit from the sale of programs, and ticket receipts for last year's Christmas tournament, but as Bullough said, "It was a flop."

"This is the last year of the winter trip."
-Bovinet

This year, the Christmas tournament suffered even worse results. It was held just before Christmas, and on the first night, Keene was hit with a snowstorm; barely 50 people showed up to watch. This was where the Florida trip was hurt, for to make enough money, Bullough said, the gym would have to be packed both nights - 2,000 people each night.

Bullough said he feels that these southern trips are something that the basketball team will have to do without. The students just don't have the money to finance another trip, and neither does the college, he said.

He added: "It's not a case of not using the money for a good cause; it's this: how many good causes can the college afford?"

Dr. Sherry Bovinet, head of the Athletic Department, disagrees with the idea that Theulen will be blamed for the entire department's $2,500 deficit.

"I don't think we're going to blame anyone," she said.

Much of the added expense, she added, was due to inflation. Travel expenses this year were twice as much as last year. Theulen was unavailable for comment.

Bovinet explained that with this year's increased expenses, what happened this year won't happen again.

"This will be the last year of the winter trip; other New England teams are staying around; at least a half-dozen. So we're going to stay here and run our competition locally."

Among other items, the topic of where the money will come from to cover the basketball overage will be batted around at a meeting of the Athletic Board of Control tomorrow. The meeting starts at 4:00 p.m. and it's open to the public.

Consumer credit buying

Marion Borofsky
Special to The Equinox

Buying on credit has become a fact of life for most Americans. Excluding home and business loans, Americans owe more than $127 billion in outstanding credit balances - a figure large enough to include a $635 debt, theoretically, for every man, woman and child in this country. The interest alone adds up to $17 billion annually.

Consumer credit is a valuable tool to be used wisely by those who know the facts about credit buying. You, the consumer are well protected under federal laws from unscrupulous business practices related thereto.

In order to establish and maintain a good credit rating, you must furnish the lender or seller with certain information about yourself. He, in turn, must provide you with information concerning the conditions under which he is extending credit to you and the interest or service charge you will be required to pay on the unpaid balance of your account.

The Consumer Credit Protection Act was enacted in 1969 because most people do not understand the provisions of credit contracts and because they do not have adequate recourse to the computer-oriented credit institutions. This act makes the consumer aware of the true costs of credit - the exact amount in dollars and cents he will have to pay in credit charges and interest. Written disclosure of these loan facts must be given before credit transactions are made.

Interested in Credit Buying? Marion Borofsky's article will be continued next week, with more information to help you use credit buying to your advantage. Look for it.

Finding a spark for a do-nothing committee

In conversations with student government officials it has been learned that the Senate Student Affairs Committee has done nothing at all this year.

It is difficult to find anyone willing to say that the situation is not at all bad.

In fact Terry Wiggin, chairman of the committee, has presented a bill to the College Senate that, if passed, would abolish the committee. It appears that Wiggin also is not pleased with his committee's record.

But before Wiggin abolishes his committee, he had better present a bill to rewrite the by-laws so that the duties of the Student Affairs Committee can be channeled elsewhere. The committee does, after all, have some specific functions to perform.

Wiggin seems to have forgotten that his committee, combined with the Student Life Committee of the Board of Selectmen, is responsible for the formation of the College Judiciary Board. Or maybe he did not forget.

Judi Barrett, the secretary for the senate, says she informed Wiggin of his responsibility for setting up the Judiciary Board last October. Wiggin said he did not know about his obligation until November. At least we know that Wiggin knew his committee had work to do.

It is amazing that he did not know sooner. After all, it should have crossed his mind that, as a member of the senate, he should familiarize himself with the by-laws of the senate. They might come in handy sometime.

Perhaps Wiggin was banking on the fact that so few students do know what is in the by-laws. All he has to do is recognize the fact that he, a student senator, never bothered to learn them and then, extrapolating, he can determine that, if there are people in the government who are

Re: New Courses

Current trends in education have obliged Keene State College to add to the Fall 1976 schedule of courses a curriculum applicable to real life situations. From months of discourse and debate, the following ensued. It is the view that the courses here are intensely relevant to the Keene State College student.

SUITCASE 101 INTRODUCTION TO THE SUITCASE

A general overview of the historical development of the suitcase and critical approaches to several major theories concerning the nature of the suitcase. Traditional and contemporary styles of the suitcase will be explored, with a special emphasis on size, shape, ease of handling, function and construction. Also, discussions on the increasing importance of the suitcase in today's mobile society.

SUITCASE 210 PACKING

Current practices and problems of actual packing are considered with an emphasis on organization, weight distribution, and placement. Discussions of comparative packing techniques, to include indepth analysis of the crucial relationship between the amount to be packed and where to put it. Three hour lecture, two hour lab. Prerequisite: SUTCS 101 or written permission from mother.

SUITCASE 260 SUITCASE SELECTION

An intensive study of the suitcase selection process, including the assessment of personal needs, muscular development, sophisticated selection techniques, favorite color, and evaluation procedures. Prerequisite: SUTCS 101 or a discriminating eye.

SUITCASE 300 SUITCASE PROBLEMS

An analysis of the mechanical viewpoint of the phenomena of suitcase disorders. Problems of lock rupture, handle breakage, hinge deterioration, and material disintegration studied within the context of age, original investment, exploitation, and mobilization of the suitcase itself. Prerequisite: SUTCS 101 or a sympathetic attitude toward old and useless things.

SUITCASE 380 SUITCASE BEHAVIOR

A survey course introducing the major means of departure. Considerations will include disappearing, disguise, deception, spontaneity, and conspicuousness — relating such concepts to the destination involved. Interaction between individuals and their suitcase, and the development of various discreet impressing tactics, giving due consideration to foreign and domestic airline claim tags. Prerequisite: One suitcase and a copy of the latest paperback hype novel.

SUITCASE 440 SUITCASE PROCESSES

This course is designed to give students an opportunity to apply the theories and practices of suitcase studies. A detailed investigation of the most critical aspect of the suitcase: what to take and how much. Considerations of personal tendencies; dressing habits, personal hygiene, sweating and such. The attitude of this course is "learn by doing." The course will include make believe trips to Connecticut, New York, Massachusetts, and New Jersey. The final class will incorporate an actual round trip to Manchester, New Hampshire, including a stop at McDonalds. Prerequisite: One suitcase, one week's dirty laundry, and a framed photograph of mommy and daddy.

Creating student enthusiasm is no easy task for board of selectmen

Libby Manning

One of the "duties" of the Board of Selectmen is to keep the student body "up on the happenings" in student government. Each board member gets a chance to do this by writing an article on any topic in government.

Since I was just elected to the board (some long three weeks ago), it's now my turn to take a crack at trying to strike up some student interest in government and, at least, make this article as interesting as possible.

I never understood government and politics very well. But I ran into the hassles (rules) of government each time I wanted to plan certain activities, such as parties, discos, the Mardi Gras concert, etc.

It seemed that all the "good ideas" I had were very easily shot down because I didn't know about this rule or that rule!

Now that I've stuck my nose in the student government of Keene State, things don't seem as mysterious as they did before. I've learned things like "You can't sell beer unless you have a beer license"—but I've also learned about the presales tickets that easily get around THAT rule.

Rules—like; maximum capacity, no animals allowed in the dorms, planned out proposals for activities, all make much more sense to me, now that I've opened my eyes to why these rules really do exist.

But as my eyes remain open, I see rules that just can't find any good backing for, such as the rule, "no liquor or beer parties in the lounges," because they are "supposedly" public places. This rule is being questioned right now by the board. If all goes well, we'll soon be able to do what we please (to a certain extent, of course) in our lounges.

What I'm saying in this article is that the Board of Selectmen are here for the whole student body!

So, if any of "you guys" out there want to know what's going on around here and have questions that need answering, or complaints that need listening to—don't just sit around Monday nights at 7:00 P.M., come to the Board of Selectmen meetings in the Union. They are opened to everyone interested! Do what I did—clear up your questions; make yourself heard. You'll feel much better; really!

An ire raised by scratches, dents, and Dusters

To the editor:

The time has come for all good married students to come to the aide of their automobiles. The parking situation at married students housing has simply got to be improved. I live there at Tisdale and I for one am tired of going out to my car in the morning and having to vault a Scout that's parked on my front lawn—just to get to my car. Then I discover that it was wasted energy anyhow because I'm hemmed in on both the sides and the front by two Dusters and a pick-up truck.

Now don't get me wrong, I'm not your average run of the mill radical that screams at every little thing. But this is getting out of hand. I have to get up in the morning to bring my wife to work, (someone has to support me while I pursue the elusive college degree), this I find difficult to do when my car is boxed in tighter than book matches.

Another thing that contributes to my ire is the total lack of respect people have for the car next to them. More and more of my time lately is spent explaining that those are not stretch marks and my car did not have a baby El Camino. Those are scratches and dents caused by people enthusiastically opening their doors into mine. (This by the way gets expensive, and my wife just can't afford a new paint job.)

Maybe by my writing this letter the message will somehow get to the god of married students housing parking. Please god, assign parking or something, anything. Just allow me to get back on good terms with my El Camino.

Sincerely, Rick Bratt

Critic's review felt to be unfounded

To the Editor,

This letter is in response to the article in last week's Equinox concerning the Jerry Levitt, Juli Schaefer, Nancy Delaney concert sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association.

The writer criticized the informal atmosphere of the concert, particularly the number Juli and Jerry sang. They did not rehearse it, it was just ab-libbed and very enjoyable.

Since KSC is so full of weekend activities, it's really too bad when one person has to be so picky and find fault in something that was being done for the enjoyment of the students.

In our opinion, the three performers put on a great show. They had planned to play two sets of music each, and announced this. When they finished the four sets, the audience waited for more. Jerry sang a few more songs and then Juli and Jerry sang together.

The concert was free and the performers were good; very good. We all enjoyed the concert very much and hope the remainder of the 250 people at the concert did also. It's too bad the writer of the previous article on the concert did not enjoy it, but that's his loss.

Selectmen handle finance were two bills requesting funds for prizes and an obstacle course. The combined total of these requests was $600.

The request for $200 to provide audio-visual tapes for the IRS program was voted down by the Board.

Michael Plourde, chairman of the board, expressed concern that giving the money to IRS might set an unwanted precedent that would find the college sending more of this type of budget problem in search of student activities funds.

John Trabucco, chairman of the finance committee, echoed Plourde's sentiments and suggested that a letter be drafted and sent to the President of the college informing him of the Board's feelings on the matter.

"It's pretty irresponsible of the college to half fund the operation," Plourde added.

John Page, who presented the request to the board, said he would be willing to draft a letter and present it for the board's inspection at their next meeting. The motion for the money did not pass and the decision to wait for Page's letter closed the matter.

The WKNH request for $300 was to include $250 to pay the cost of hiring "Purly and the Waste Band" and $50 to pay the cost of publicity, according to station manager Andrew Davis. Neil Wood was the most vocal in arguing against the $50 for publicity.

He suggested the use of mimeograph signs as opposed to cardboard and said "the advertising by the Social Activities Council should be sufficient to promote the band on the patio.

In the end the bill passed with an amendment that cut the funds for publicity to $25.

Greg Noyes and Linda Landsman attended the meeting to speak on behalf of requests from the SAC coordinating committee for funds. Passed was the request for $310 for 500 frisbees.

The SAC coordinating committee's request for $450 to provide prizes for many of the Spring Weekend events was tabled until the next meeting so that the board could deal with the request when the whole cost of Spring Weekend could be reviewed.

Also tabled for the same reason was Randall Hall's request for $150 to cover the costs of constructing an obstacle course and to provide beer prizes for the contest.

Responding to a question concerning the legality of giving alcoholic beverages for prizes, Landsman said that she had called the state liquor commission and learned that it was legal.

Bruce Batchelder presented his request for $100 to complete financing for a speakers program on the Middle East. The anticipated cost of the program is $350. The Putnam Foundation is providing $200 and Joan Davis, on behalf of the Social Science Department has guaranteed $50.

A problem arose when it was realized that no organization was officially asking for the Job Fair set for next week

Representatives from thirteen school districts will be on hand for an Education Job Fair to be held April 21, 1976, at Notre Dame College, Elm Street, Manchester. The Education Job Fair, sponsored by the College Council Placement Office of the New Hampshire College and University Council (Consortium), is a service which gives graduating students and alumnian opportunity to talk with a number of potential employers on the same day. Eight school districts from New Hampshire will be present, as well as three from Massachusetts, and one from Connecticut and Maine.

In addition to the scheduled interviews, students and alumni may participate in an "Alternatives to Teaching" Workshop which will be led at 11:30 a.m. by Mary-Jane Pernaa, Assistant Placement Director at the University of New Hampshire.

Later in the day, Dean Ernest Gendron of the Placement Office will lead a workshop on "Job Search Techniques". The purpose of this session will be to provide job seekers with information sources and the techniques to best use these sources.

Margie Gorts joins Country Artisans

Margie Gorts, a part-time graduate student at KSC, has joined Country Artisans this month. Renting studio space, Gorts makes moccasins at the craft center Tuesday through Saturday. The center is located behind the Keene Mill End on West Street.

Gorts custom fit moccasins are made of English chrome-tanned elkhide. This process was discovered in the British Isles and is a method of tanning the leather using the oil of the animal. Chrome-tanning makes the moccasin pliable, very durable and water resistant.

Gorts is studying for a Master's degree in English literature and language, and hopes to teach English as a second language to the foreign-born.

Betty Chasse joins "Up With People"

Betty Ann Chasse, a sophomore here at KSC will be joining the "Up With People" show this July.

Chasse saw the group performing in New Jersey and after the show stressed interest in joining the educational organization.

"Up With People" travels throughout the world meeting people of all ages. The aim of the group is to develop in young men and women initiative, integrity, flexibility, decision-making skills, and global perspective.

All members of the cast must pay their own tuition and are therefore urged to seek sponsors.

Mardi Gras underway

The second annual Mardi Gras committee is getting underway with plans for Spring Weekend.

Last year's Mardi Gras had three bands and twenty five kegs of beer, unfortunately they also had rainy weather which forced the festivities inside.

The committee is open to suggestions, and anyone interested should contact Paul Bemis, Owl's Nest 6 or Cindi Vila, Carle Hall 110D for more information.

This year there will be spaces for concessions. Concessions may be set up by any organized group.

The deadline for signing up is April 30 and there will be a limit of ten openings. For further information contact Ellen Peterson, Carle Hall 304A or Sarah Carlson, Monadnock 233.

Joe Phelan's art to be exhibited at Square Meal

Joe Phelan, a graphic designer here at KSC will be having an exhibit of his paintings and drawings. The exhibit will take place at the Square Meal restaurant April 16 through May 15.

Phelan studied with Norma Safford at Keene High School.

During the summer of 1967 he apprenticed himself to painter Ken Gore of Gloucester, Mass. The following summer was spent studying under teachers of the Art Students League in New York and at the Saxtons River Art Project in Vermont.

Phelan's abstract style came together at the Boston Museum School where he studied with the Japanese painter Kaji Aso.

The Square Meal restaurant is located on the corner of Gilbo Avenue and St. James Street here in Keene.

Asonevich enters protest of student body warrant

—Elections for the two empty seats on the board.

—A request for $2,000 to finance Spring Weekend.

All three items were listed in the middle of the article that was not specifically concerned with the Student Body Meeting. The actual warrant contained 12 articles.

WKNH news transcripts showed that they did not broadcast the articles of the warrant until March 8, one day before the meeting.

Asonevich said he is protesting the validity of decisions taken on any articles of the warrant, because publication of the warrant, per se, never happened in accordance with ARTICLE V, section three of the constitution.

"Fragmented and undetailed publication of sections of a warrant does not, in my mind, constitute publication of a warrant," Asonevich said.

He added that this should not be viewed as merely a formality, considering how poorly the last Student Body Meeting was attended. At that meeting, approximately 70 people showed up to spend over $26,000 in student activities funds.

Barrett, when she heard that Asonevich would enter a formal protest, offered to cosign.

A formal protest of the warrant has been submitted to Michael Plourde, chairman of the Board of Selectmen. Because it is a constitutional matter, the protest must be taken before the College Judiciary Board. This Board has not yet been set up for the current academic year. (See related article this page.)

Should the articles of the warrant for the last Student Body Meeting be found invalidated, they will be attached to the warrant for the Student Body Meeting to be held April 27.

Wiggin rationalizes non-existent judiciary board

Wheelock, associate professor of history, and Rene Bergeron, Student Body President. Wiggin said these people had other, more important, things to do.

Commenting on other committee members, Wiggin said they'd show up, if he could convince them the meeting was important. These included Paul Gerado and Ron Peterson. Wiggin also mentioned a committee member he said he has never seen—Tim Doubrava.

If it is difficult to call a meeting of his own committee, it could only be more difficult to call a meeting of the two committees necessary to appoint justices for the Judiciary Board. Wiggin said there would be difficulty getting a quorum.

"I can't go out and arrest my committee member," he added.

Bernie McLaughlin, chairman of the Student Life Committee, said he was informed of his responsibility in the middle of last semester, but he was left with the impression that Wiggin would set up the joint session of the two committees.

At this point, the College Judiciary Board does not exist. A formal contesting of the warrant of the last Student Body Meeting has caused need for the board to make rapid appearance. According to selectmen, Wiggin called a meeting of the Senate Student Affairs Committee on Tuesday. The purpose of the meeting was said to be the nomination of justices for the Judiciary Board.

$100. The motion was tabled until word could be received from the Social Science Department accepting responsibility for the money.

The final motion brought before the board was a request from the Women's Lacrosse Club for $96 to help finance their organization.

Speaking in favor of the motion, Terry Clark noted that the organization has been recognized by the Student Government since March, 1973. He said they had never requested funds before and the amount was small enough that it should be no problem. The motion was passed unanimously.

Mass communication to be offered next semester

Next semester, Keene State College is offering a survey course covering the nature of mass communication, its development, and its effects. KSC 399 will focus on how the media operate and why they operate as they do, as well as on how media performance might be improved to better meet the needs of media consumers.

Shirley Keddle, college information officer, and Dr. C.R. Lyle of the English Department are joint coordinators of the program. According to them the course will be team taught, with professors of various departments teaching different sections within the course. Those slated to staff the course are Keddle Lyle, Dr. Michael Keller, Dr. Homer Stavely, Dr. Charles Weed and Lou Dumont.

The intent of the course, Lyle said, is to bring about an understanding of "how the mass communications media function in the social and political environment in the U.S." Topics such as how the media differ, their advantages and disadvantages, their effects on society, the ethics of operating, and how government and law relate to them will also be covered, he said.

Within this context, the following areas will be discussed: 1) introduction to the realities of mass media as well as the range of their existence, 2) the role of mass communication in our society; 3) an historical perspective on the development of mass communications, 4) print media, 5) radio, 6) television, 7) motion pictures, 8) other media, including computers, 9) mass media and the United States government 10) mass media organization and ownership in other nations, 11) theoretical and philosophical discussions on the effects of mass communications, and 12) alternate futures for media development. Students will conduct a practical project which effectively explores some aspect of one or more of the mass media.

Lyle said the course, as its number indicates, is in an experimental stage. This is the first time it is being offered, he said, and if it is a success, it may later be considered for inclusion in the authorized curriculum.

The course is open to all students, and can be taken as partial fulfillment of the journalism major requirement. Students can take KSC 399 in place of English 292, he said, or as an elective if they have already taken English 292.

There are no prerequisites to KSC 399, but it is suggested that English 101 Composition be successfully completed. Students interested in taking the course should sign up at the English department.

Operation LIVE to offer three summer courses

Operation LIVE is offering three outdoor experiential living courses as part of Keene State's summer session.

"Experiential Learning Outdoors: Land Travel," P.E. 450, July 26-August 6, consist of a student-planned bicycle and backpacking expedition. Application of adventure programs in schools and agencies will be covered, as well as the role of experience-based learning. Safety limits and problem-solving are integral parts of the methods to be used.

P.E. 451, "Experiential Learning Outdoors: Water Travel," is similar to the course above, but centers around the making, use and repair of kayaks and canoes. During August 9 to 20, the course is for both the beginning and the advanced student. The group will work flat as well as quick white water for illustrating experience-based learning. First aid and land and water navigation will be covered using problem-solving techniques.

The summer's final LIVE course, August 23-September 3, centers around rope and rock climbing courses. "Experiential Learning Outdoors: Ropes and Rocks," P.E. 452, is a student-designed course. It covers both rope course constructions and use, along with basic rock and ropes course safety mechanics.

Running concurrently with and part of the three courses will be a series of experiential learning expeditions for young people of junior high school age.

The courses consist of twelve days of intensified outdoor learning. Two academic credits will be given for each course. Anyone taking all three courses will get six credits for a physical education workshop.

Progress made on Spring Weekend — May 7-9

Last week saw a considerable amount of progress made in plans for Spring Weekend (May 7-9). A number of contests of skill and luck are planned for Friday and Sunday. Friday, the festivities will center on the Fiske Lawn area and will include a skateboard competition, a frisbee competition, and a mixed doubles tennis tournament. Saturday, the main competitive feature will be two bike races; one a drag race down Appian Way, and the other a longer race around the Keene area, perhaps out to Surry Dam and back. Sunday, Randall Hall is sponsoring an "Almost Anything Goes" competition on the Athletic Field (pending confirmation from the head of the physical plant) which will include the raft race, a tug of war, an egg race, a three-legged race, and an obstacle course. Then SAC Spring Weekend Organization committee will be sponsoring football, volleyball, and softball on the Athletic field. The events on Friday will have some cash prizes and trophies, and the events on Sunday will have prizes of cases of beer.

In order to have some semblance of organization the SAC has to have all entry blanks (below) in at least two weeks ahead of time. The tennis tournament will have a $.50 entry fee, and some of the other events may have equally minimal entry fees to help defray expenses. Please leave all entry blanks in the SAC mailbox at the student union or slide them under the door of the SAC office. For the team events, the minimum requirements are ten people to a team. The SAC urges you to hurry so scheduling can be done now.

Senate meeting considered confusing

Michele Marini
Equinox Staff

The April 7 meeting of the College Senate will probably go down in the books as one of the most frustrating and confusing meetings ever held, according to various members of the Senate. Some speculations were made concerning the cause of the confusion. Senator Senator Charles Weed: committees should be trusted to make decisions.

Ann Britt explained her opinion of the situation during courtesy period.

"The trend the Senate is following is spending too much time legislating people's jobs rather than establishing policy guidelines for Keene State College as an institution to follow," Britt said. "This is a flagrant abuse of what the Senate was established to be."

Britt also felt that too much committee work was being done at the College Senate meetings that should be done by the committees themselves.

"Far too much time is spent on work and discussion in the Senate that could be more effectively and efficiently done within the committees," Britt said. "Much of the discussion at the meetings is irrelevant," she added.

Senator Charles Weed shared Britt's views.

"More preparation and involvement should be dealt with on the part of the committees," Weed stated. "There should also be more trust of the committees to make decisions," he said.

Weed commented that the committee he is on — Admissions and Standards — hasn't met for over five weeks.

Senator David Gregory called the meeting "an exercise in futility."

"Too much time was spent on picayune details. We can't afford this, because we won't get anything done," Gregory said. "For example, the Faculty Evaluation and Merit System proposal has been on the agenda for three weeks," he added.

Some speculation was made as to the way the meeting was conducted. Neither the President nor the vice president of the College Senate attended. Senator Larry Benaquist chaired the meeting.

Judi Barrett, secretary of the Senate, said she felt a lot of the problem was that Keller wasn't at the meeting.

"Keller is a main source of direction in the Senate. People listen to Keller and they have a lot of respect for him," Barrett remarked.

Weed felt that the outcome of the meeting was not Benaquist's fault.

"It was unfortunate that the president or the vice president wasn't there, but I think there's a deeper problem than that," Weed said.

The meeting, however, was certainly not a total loss. A few motions were proposed before the Senate and passed. One motion concerning the January term was discussed and adopted. Students will have more time to register for these courses before they close out—until December third. December 10, courses will be decided, then more people can sign up.

There will be a catalog available around October for January courses. It will be a complete listing of all the courses throughout all the consortium schools.

During the January term the coffee shop will be open but the Commons will not. Also, a small amount of financial aid will be available for the interim.

Forty-five minutes were spent discussing whether or not the College Senate secretary should be paid a stipend from the Office of Financial Aids. It would be in accordance with the standard hourly wage of the work-study program, however, it would not come from work study funds. The proposal stated that the wage would only be given for the spring semester of service, however, an amendment was made to extend payment to both semesters. The proposal, as amended, was passed 21-9.

A series of curriculum changes and additions in the Industrial Education Department were passed as a package. One course that will be offered will deal with Vocational Education for students with special needs. A graduate program was also proposed along with this, however, it was not adopted because of the current evaluation of the graduate program.

A motion was accepted at the meeting to reconvene the next day. However, approximately 16 people attended the meeting, so the Senate failed to achieve a quorum. Therefore, the agenda of last Wednesday's meeting will continue today at 4 p.m. in the Science Building room 102.

apathetic about the functions of the student government, then it is probable that the rest of the student body are at least as apathetic as those officials.

Wiggin has also claimed that it is difficult to find time to get his committee together. Recently, however, it is learned that he discovered some time. Catalyst to this discovery was a contestation of the warrant of the last Student Body Meeting. It appears that some crass outsider went snooping into the constitution.

Because the Judiciary Board has not yet been established, simple process of appeal has become a more serious complication. Nominees must be chosen, a board appointed, and a hearing set. All of this must be done before the next Student Body Meeting, just in case the contestation is good and the warrant is invalidated.

Once established the Judiciary Board will remain in effect until the end of the year. At that time it will disband. Next year, who knows?

Possibly the easiest thing to do would be to eliminate the students' right to appeal. If Wiggin's bill to abolish the Student Affairs Committee passes, there will be no one delegated to establish a Judiciary Board. That might just be the easiest thing to do.

Coach Ruwell's batmen win, lose doubleheaders

Jeanne Dennis
Equinox Staff

The Owls swept a doubleheader from New Hampshire College last Wednesday by scores of 9-2 and 9-1. Coach Bill Ruwell called them both "good games" and had high praise for the players both defensively and offensively.

Pitcher Bill Welch went the distance of the Owls allowing only two runs in the first game. According to Ruwell, "he pitched extremely well striking out seven and walking just two batters."

Centerfielder Jon Moriarty collected four hits in ten attempts, including a double. KSC's catcher, Tom Giroux, went .346 in contributing to the Owl's victory.

In the second game, freshman David Root was the winning pitcher for KSC. He allowed only five hits, walked two, and struckout seven. Offensively, the Owls scored four runs in the first inning, giving them an immediate edge over New Hampshire College.

Ruwell admitted that even though "we committed two errors in the game, New Hampshire College had no control," they could not capitalize on the mistakes. Ruwell added, "the pitching is really good at this time."

Friday, the Owls traveled to Buzzard's Bay to compete against Massachusetts Maritime Academy (MMA). This time, the tables were turned. KSC lost a doubleheader to the Academy by scores of 7-6 and 7-0.

"The first game could have been won," Ruwell said, "if it hadn't been for the five errors we committed." Only three of MMA's seven runs were earned.

Keene was leading 4-1 up until the fourth inning when MMA exploded with five runs. The Owls managed to score two more runs in the sixth, but it wasn't enough, as the Academy scored its seventh run to win the game. Joe Kay collected two hits in four attempts for the Owls. Kevin Smith was the losing pitcher of KSC.

Ruwell said the weather was a definite factor in the loss of both games.

"We played in extremely cold weather with almost gale-like winds blowing in from the bay," he said.

KSC lost the second game by a score of 7-0.

"A combination of cold weather and lack of ability to field cost us the game," explained Ruwell.

"We just couldn't hit."

The Owls collected only three hits off MMA's pitcher, and made four errors in the field; both decisive factors in KSC's loss. Pitcher Randy Murdock gave up seven hits to the Academy.

The Owls record stands at 2-2 in the North, and 3-8 overall. Keene travels to Plymouth today for a game against Plymouth State College.

Track team is fast in opener

The Owls opened the 1976 track season with a bang as they finished second in a field of five teams last Saturday. The Owl cindermen reeled off five first places, for 63 points. Wesleyan captured first place with 83½ points; Marist of NY was third with 51.5 points.

Until the last five events of the day, Keene found itself in last place. The mile relay team of Pete Alvarez, Bob Moul, Tom Neary, and Paul Trocki then proceeded to run a 3:27.7 relay; good enough for first. It put Keene into second place.

Greg St. Laurent captured the javelin event with a toss of 168 ft. 8 in. Coach Taft said he feels that with continued success on St. Laurent's part it won't be too long before the school record of 174 ft. set in 1973 by Pete Adamovich falls.

Tom Neary set the pace in the 220 as he dashed in a full 20 yards ahead of his next competitor. Neary's time of 22.5 was considered by Taft to be an excellent one, "especially for this time of year when a 23.0 is considered excellent," he said.

In the high jump, Kevin Fitzpatrick took up where he left off last year, winning the event with a jump of 6-2. Paul Trocki backed him up with a jump of 5-10.

In probably the most satisfying race of the day, freshmen Steve Lavorgna and Henry Phelan finished 1-2 in the three mile, with times of 14:48 and 14:52 respectively. Said Taft,

"With the times they've just finished with it wouldn't be unreasonable to see them qualifying for the National. The two staged an exciting duel for much of the race, but with just over 200 yds left Lavorgna, summing up all of his strength, pulled to the front and outkicked Phelan by 4 seconds.

In addition to the first places recorded Keene also showed its depth by capturing the always important second and third places. Jim Sears captured third place in the discus with a toss of 126-6 which, even though it was only good enough for third, toppled the school record of 123-4 set in 1972 by Ken White. Bob Moul also had a good day, finishing third in the 440 with an excellent time of 51-1.

Elaborating on Saturday's race, Taft said he felt his team did well and could have done much better, except for injuries to key members. Glenn (Rocky) Stone also was hurt. Not to be outdone, Bob Meehan extended the medical cases by pulling a hamstring muscle. All were projected winners of their respective races.

The Keene State College baseball team is playing ball today at Sumner Joyce field. Originally slated to play at Plymouth State College, the location was changed because the field at PSC was washed out by heavy rains coming from the sky above not too very long ago in the month of April, which is known for its showers.

Dave Root and Bill Welch are pitching in that game.

Shown here is a member of this year's lacrosse club competing against Franklin Pierce College. Keene State won the game by the score of 11-4. Scoring for Keene were: Peter Hendricks:3, Mike Pascale:3, John Haskins:3, Mike Silverman:2. This Thursday the lacrosse club travels to Plymouth to play their toughest opponent.

Women's softball loses a squeaker, wins an onslaught

The girls' softball team started the season last week with a 9-7 loss Thursday but came back Monday with a decisive 39-1 win.

In Thursday's game against Westfield College, the Owls had a four run lead in the fifth inning but lost it. The Westfield team came back with three homers, scoring all their runs.

Coach Cathi Savoie said, "there wasn't any fence to stop the balls so they kept on rolling and our girls couldn't get to them in time to stop the runner from scoring. Our starting pitcher was line driven in the eye and put out of the game. We couldn't hit, either. The bases were loaded three times but we couldn't hit off their slow pitcher. We had only four errors against them. Other than that we played a good game."

On Monday KSC played Smith College. The game wasn't even competitive. After the varsity squad had scored 31 runs Coach Savoie put the JV squad in and they scored another eight runs.

Savoie said, "It was an excellent offensive game for us. They couldn't handle the pitching by Linda Jennison and Anne Keenan. The team didn't have to do any fielding against them because Smith hardly ever hit the ball. We had excellent hitting and base running."

Jo Halaquist was one of the best hitters. She now has a .857 batting average for the season. Val Comerford and Lori Levi also had a good day at the plate.

Penny Merritt had an excellent day for running with three stolen bases which were key plays in the beginning of the game.

Poulton and trustees seek increase

In testimony before the House Appropriations Committee last Wednesday, Chancellor Bruce R. Poulton of the University System of New Hampshire said System trustees were seeking an appropriation of 3.5 million dollars to enable the System to operate through fiscal year 1977, second year of the current biennium.

Poulton said the supplemental budget bill (HB 34) would provide assistance in three basic areas: salary adjustments for all System personnel, funds to meet inflated costs, and money to operate the new campus at the Merrimack Valley Branch in Manchester.

"Just over 2.7 million dollars would fund salary improvements for all University System personnel," Poulton said. He added that since the regular session of the legislature did not make an appropriation for salary benefits in the upcoming fiscal year, the present request is the same as that originally made.

Poulton said that from 1973 through 1976 University System personnel barely held even with increase in the consumer price index, with less than one-half of one percent gain overall. The average System employee, he indicated, "is struggling simply to maintain purchasing power."

In addition to the request for salary appropriation, the chancellor testified as to the need for $782,000 to offset, "unavoidable inflationary costs of goods and services" and $64,000 to operate and maintain the Merrimack Valley campus.

Senate meets today

President Leo F. Redfern said he would like to remind all College Senators that there will be a senate meeting this afternoon at 4:00pm in the Waltz Lecture Hall of the Science Center. At the last meeting, not enough senators showed up to make up a quorum, so the items on the agenda had to be put on the agenda of tonight's meeting.

Redfern asked all senators to make every effort to be in attendance.
