Assignment + Rubric

Assessment of Student Learning Project

The purpose of all teaching is to help students to learn, whether that learning is of some particular content knowledge, certain skills, or certain attitudes about life or language. At some point during this semester, you will need to document your assessment of how well students have learned something you have taught them. You may select an entire unit, a specific long-term project, or a cluster of lessons and activities. This project is due during my last visit. I will need to keep this project for accreditation purposes, at make sure I am just receiving copies (or photographs) of what you do and not originals.

Components of the Assessment Project

Step One: Select a unit for this assessment. It may be a simple one-week unit or one that takes a month. Your plan for this unit must involve the teaching of literature, must include a writing component including drafts, and must engage students in critical thinking. (Advice: Keep this as simple as possible.)

Sixy Tyo: Describe the class and analyze its composition in terms of the learning environment: class grade and ability level, ethnicity, special needs, the title of the class if it is an elective, class size. Also, explain any particular strengths and challenges of this class, the ways in which they have responded to different kinds of instruction before this, or anything else that distinguishes this class from your others and that you will need to take into consideration in designing your lessons.

Step Three: Explain how the content of this project fits into what has been taught so far in this class and where the students are headed in their learning. You may explain this in terms of the school or the cooperating teacher's curriculum. Make sure that you place this project into the context of their progression of learning throughout the year/semester and in terms of state standards that are being met.

Step Four: Before beginning this project, you will need to devise an assessment tool that will inform you of students' current level of understanding. This may be a pretest of skill level or content knowledge, formal observations of behavior, a formal interview with your cooperating teacher, an evaluation of previous projects they have completed, or any other method that will allow you to assess students' understanding of what you will teach before the project begins.

Step Five: Write lesson plans for all the lessons included in this project. These lesson plans should be typed, but they should also be realistically what you would use to teach the class, not the formal lesson plans you did for methods.

Step Six: If possible, one of my visits should take place during this unit so that your project will include a Danielson observation form from me. However, because our schedule is so tight, if this does not work, your cooperating teacher should conduct one of his/her formal observations during this project, and that observation form should be included.

Step Seven: You will then devise a way to assess what the students learned during this project. You may use any of the assessment strategies we have discussed, but it must contain the same information you asked for at the beginning of your project in Step Three. You will need to provide a copy of your assessment tool and a copy of the rubric/grading criteria you used to evaluate their work. You also need to provide a brief explanation of why you chose this assessment tool and how you designed the rubric.

Step Eight: You will need to provide a copy of three student samples (a high, medium, and low) along with the teedback you provided them. Write a brief analysis of the differences among the three outcomes, how these differences might relate to the students themselves, and how they relate to the methods you used. What might you have done differently to improve student learning?

Step Nine: Reflect on this project and what you learned. What would you change about what you did to achieve better results? If the results met or exceeded your expectations, reflect on why you think the plan worked so well.

Rating Indicator	1	2	3	1 4
	Little or No Evidence	Limited Evidence	Clear Evidence	Clear, Consistent, and Convincing Evidence
Selection of unit Literature (3.5.1) Writing (3.4.1-2) Critical Thinking (2.4)	Unit selected does not incorporate literature, writing, and critical thinking	Unit contains all three areas but they are not well integrated	Unit contains all three areas and they are logically linked	Unit carefully incorporates all three skills so they build on each other and clearly promote student learning
Class description (2.1)	Distinguishing characteristics of this class are not clear	Some distinguishing characteristics are discussed but full picture of class is not presented	Class is described thoroughly	Detailed descriptions of the class clearly indicate an indepth awareness of students and their learning environment
Project Context (1.3, 4.1)	Context of unit is not stated	Context is stated but not analyzed	Context is described in terms of curriculum and standards	Context is explained thoroughly, related to students' learning process / and progress and to state standards
Pre-assessment (4.10)	Pre-assessment does not establish clear criteria for measuring learning or does not correspond to final assessment	Pre-assessment criteria are vague or only partially correspond to final assessment	Pre-assessment criteria are clear and match final assessment	Pre-assessment criteria are carefully chosen to provide maximum information about student learning
Lesson Plans (4.1)	One or more parts of the lesson plans are not completed	All parts of the lesson plan are present but not completed in a careful or thorough manner	All parts of the lesson plan are complete, clear, and logical	All parts of the lesson plan are designed carefully so as to maximize student learning, promote critical thinking, writing skills, and an understanding of literature
Observations (1.2-3)	Danielson observation forms are missing	Danielson forms are predominantly NI	Danielson forms are predominantly ME	Danielson forms are predominantly ME and EE
Assessment (4.1) Tool Rubric Explanation	Assessment tool does not establish clear criteria that are reflected in the rubric, correspond to pre-assessment, and is not	Assessment tool, criteria, and rubric are not clear, do not correspond to pre-assessment, and are not explained	Assessment tool, criteria, and rubric are clear, correspond to pre- assessment, and are explained	Assessment tool clearly shows what students have learned based on pre-assessment, establishes clear and meaningful
18 T 44-18	explained	thoroughly		criteria for

Student samples Analysis (4.10)	Three samples are missing, not clearly distinguishable in terms of levels, and not analyzed	Three samples are included but not clearly distinguishable or analyzed for improving student learning	Three samples are included, clearly distinguishable into high, medium, and low categories, and include an analysis of differences	evaluation that are outlined on the rubric, and the process in thoroughly explained Three samples are clearly illustrating what defined successful learning and analyzed thoroughly in terms of the students and necessary revisions needed to optimize student learning
Reflection (2.3)	Reflection superficial	Reflection completed but not clearly related to results	Reflection completed and used as a guide for reflecting on the results	Reflection thorough in terms of changes needed or analysis of success

•

Assessment of Student Learning Project

Meghan Rounds Professor LeDuc Student Teaching 490 27 April 2009

Table of Contents

- I. Description and Explanation of Unit
- II. Description and Analysis of Class
- III. Relevancy of Unit and State Standards
- IV. Pre-Assessment Assignment Sheet and Explanation
- V. Daily Mini-Lesson Plans
- VI. Danielson Observation Form
- VII. Final Assessment Assignment Sheet and Explanation
- VIII. Samples of Student Work (Student A = High)
- IX. Samples of Student Work (Student B = Medium)
- X. Samples of Student Work (Student C = Low)
- XI. Reflection on Student Work
- XII. Reflection on Assessment of Student Learning Project

I. Description and Explanation of Unit

For this Assessment of Student Learning Project, I chose to create and conduct a unit on grammar. This unit was created to benefit senior students who presented me with work that contained consistent and numerous grammar errors. The ten mini-lessons that make up this unit were all created to target specific errors I found in my students' final drafts of the assignment The Hero's Journey and You. In this assignment, students were asked to write an essay in which they applied the components of The Hero's Journey literary model to their own lives. These essays were graded strictly on content because students would be completing a follow-up unit on the grammar issues found within these essays. Students were then assessed on grammar and mechanics, as well as content, at the end of the unit within a basic five paragraph essay. In this final assessment, students were asked to write a detailed five paragraph essay about a character in The Lord of the Rings The Two Towers that they found interesting. The purpose of this final assignment was for students to prove to me that they were capable of applying grammar rules to their formal writing.

II. Description and Analysis of Class

The class I selected for my Assessment of Student Learning Project is called Nightmare and Vision, Fable and Fantasy. This is a senior college preparatory class offered at Keene High School. I teach two sections of this class, one during Block 1 and the other during Block 3. I conducted my Grammar Unit in both classes because both groups of students were in need of enhancing their grammar skills. The samples of student work included in this project were taken from the Block 1 Nightmare and Vision, Fable and Fantasy class.

There are eleven students in this class. Because it meets during Block 1 (7:25-8:50), the students are often quiet and need prodding for participation. The ability levels are tremendously varied in this class; motivation levels vary, as well. I have students who put in great effort, but still struggle to excel, students who lack motivation and are careless about their failing grades, and students who apply effort and are academically successful. With such a varied group of students, it was a struggle to create a unit that would benefit each and every one of them.

In creating my Grammar Unit, I had to keep many things in mind. First, students in Block 1 Nightmare and Vision (for short) enjoy teacher instruction. I found that asking students so early in the morning to get out of their seats was like pulling teeth. Second, these particular students, like most, understood the material I taught as long as I made it mean something to them. As I taught mini grammar lessons each day, the students began to put into perspective where they were going wrong and what they were doing correctly within their formal writing. Finally, while creating this Grammar Unit I had to consider the ways I would teach students new grammar skills and hold them accountable. With such a low energy group of students, it was important for me to make sure that students weren't just writing notes down, but that they were actually thinking about the skills as they took notes.

III. Relevancy of Unit and State Standards

Throughout my senior students' high school educations, they have been through multiple grammar units and exposed to many different grammar skills. As seniors, my students have been held accountable for grammar in their writing as well as for their formality of writing. After reading the The Hero's Journey and You essays in March, it was clear to me that it was my responsibility to emphasize the importance of strong grammar skills once and for all before my students left high school. The mini-lessons I created took up ten to fifteen minutes of class time each day. While the grammar lessons were not relevant to the literature I was teaching at the time, I made them relevant by asking students to use their skills when writing about some aspect of the literature they were studying.

My Grammar Unit meets the following New Hampshire State Standards for the End of Grade 12:

 Students use a recursive process, including pre-writing, drafting, revising, editing, and critiquing to produce final drafts of written products. (W-12-10)

Students meet this standard by participating in class discussions in which we work together to point out characterization techniques that Tolkien used when writing The Two Towers (pre-writing), writing an in-class draft of the five paragraph essay (drafting), completing the peer revision activity and editing their essays for their final drafts (revising and editing), and participating in group discussions in which students critically analyze each others' essays (critiquing).

Students demonstrate command of the structures of sentences, paragraphs, and texts by...

- using varied sentence length and structure to enhance meaning (e.g., including phrases, clauses, and parallel structure). (W-12-1.1) -using paragraph structures appropriately (e.g., block or indented format). (W-12-1.2)
- -applying a format and text structure appropriate to purpose, audience, and context. (W-12-1.4)

Students meet each of these standards by utilizing their Grammar Journals as reference tools when writing their final draft essays.

- In response to literary or informational text, students make and supply analytical judgments about text by...
 - -establishing an interpretive claim/assertion in the form of a thesis. (W-12-3.lb)

Students meet this standard by developing a thesis that makes a claim about a particular character from The Two Towers and by supporting this claim with main plot points from the text.

- In written narrative, students organize and relate a story line/plot/series of events by...
 - -creating a clear and coherent, logically consistent structure. (W-12-4.1)

Students meet this standard by creating a clear, fluid, and detailed essay that is not ambiguous.

IV. Pre-Assessment Assignment Sheet and Explanation

The following pages are the assignment sheet for my pre-assessment. Included with this is the grading rubric for this assignment.

As mentioned before, this pre-assessment was not initially meant to pre-assess my students' knowledge of grammar skills. Essentially, it turned into a pre-assessment when I recognized that my students needed extra instruction and support in order to get their grammar skills to a satisfactory level before graduating high school. Therefore, students' grammar was not graded on these essays. Instead, I devised a follow-up unit and assessment for grammar skills, which is the unit and assessment you see within this Assessment of Student Learning Project.

Name:

The Hero's Journey & You

In-Class Writing Assignment

So far this unit, we have explored how The Hero's Journey is relevant in literature and in our lives. We have learned that many journeys we make throughout our lives are rituals that are unique to our culture and society. For this in-class writing assignment, I would like for you to think about the most important journey you have made so far in your life. Please select an experience that has been life changing for you because, as you remember, one of the most important parts of a journey is the revelation, or the dramatic change in the way you view life.

Please address each of the eleven components to The Hero's Journey in this assignment. I would like your paper formatted as follows:

Heading

Name Name of Teacher Name of Class Date 10 March 2009

Interesting Title

Introduction

2-3 sentence description of the experience you have chosen to analyze in terms of The Hero's Journey (include what it is, when it happened, and why it is significant enough to write about)

Body

Name of Component (ex, The Call)
4-5 supporting sentences

Name of Component (ex. The Threshold)

4-5 supporting sentences

...and so on. Please complete for all eleven components.

Conclusion

5 sentences minimum. Discuss how you better understand this particular journey in your life after applying the components of The Hero's Journey. Briefly restate your revelation and transformation. How has this change in perception/attitude/understanding affected your life?

(Example Conclusion: After applying the components of The Hero's Journey to getting my driver's license, I better understand how failing my driver's test (the Abyss) would have caused me a delay in gaining the new insights that I did. With obtaining my driver's license, I transformed into a young adult with added responsibilities and a new sense of freedom. I realized that I had taken a new role in society; I became a self-reliant individual who accepted that I would have to make informed decisions about the way I drive. This change in attitude affected my life because I realized that my decisions affected the lives others not just when I was behind the wheel, but within all areas of my life.)

You will be graded as follows:

•	Each component is addressed and supported	55 points
	2-3 sentence introductory statement	10 points
•	5 sentence conclusion	15 points
•	Interesting title	10 points
	Paper is properly formatted	10 points

This typed writing assignment is due at the end of class on Tuesday, March 10th. I'm sorry, no exceptions. For full credit, your written journey must meet all the criteria listed above. If you have any questions, Ms. Rounds will be walking around the computer lab and ready to assist you.

		Student's Name:
		Journey Selected:
Gı	ading Rubric for The Hero's Jour	ney & You
•	Each component is addressed ar Comments:	nd supported	55 points
•	2-3 sentence introductory statements:	ent	10 points
•	5 sentence conclusion Comments:		15 points
•	Interesting title Comments:		10 points
•	Paper is properly formatted Comments:		10 points

Grade: _____ / 100 Points

V. Daily Mini-Lesson Plans

March 17, 2009 – Independent vs. Dependent Clauses

Independent clause: a group of words that contains a subject and verb and expresses a complete thought. In other words, an independent clause is a complete sentence.

"Sam studied in the cafeteria for his Beowulf quiz."

Dependent clause: a group of words that contains a subject and a verb, but does not express a complete thought.

"When Sam studied in the cafeteria for his Beowulf quiz..."

March 18, 2009 – Subordinating and Coordinating Conjunctions

Subordinating Conjunctions

These words can change an independent clause into a dependent clause. Words such as: while, after, before, so that, if, as, than...

"Kiera eats her vegetables every day." Independent
"If Kiera eats her vegetables every day..." Dependent
"...so that Kiera eats her vegetables every day." Dependent

Coordinating Conjunctions and, but, or, for nor, so, yet

-connect two independent clauses
What is an independent clause again?

Why do we have to separate independent clauses with coordinating conjunctions? Because we don't say things like this: "I tripped over the computer chair I didn't get hurt." Instead:

"I tripped over the computer chair(.)(;) I didn't get hurt."

In formal writing, you should never start a sentence with a coordinating conjunction. Their purpose is to strictly break up two independent clauses in the middle of a sentence.

March 19, 2009 - Conjunctive Adverbs and Proper Punctuation

Conjunctive Adverbs

also, consequently, furthermore, however, moreover, nevertheless, therefore... -connect two independent clauses, always and only after a semicolon.

Why might we choose to separate independent clauses with a conjunctive adverb rather than a coordinating conjunction? Because if two complete thoughts are connected in some way, and one wants to make a specific point within one sentence, this is the most effective way to do it.

Wrong: "Caroline wasn't in class yesterday; however, she is going to eat soup tomorrow." -Why is this incorrect?

Right: "Caroline wasn't in class yesterday; however, she completed the assigned reading." -Why is this correct?

In formal writing, sentences that begin with a conjunctive adverb can stand alone as a simple sentence.

"However, Caroline completed the assigned reading."

Proper Punctuation of Clauses

Knowing how to properly punctuate clauses will help you prevent run-on sentences!

IC. IC. "Mona went to class. She didn't do her homework."

IC: IC. "Mona went to class; she didn't do her homework."

IC; CA, IC. "Mona went to class; _____ she didn't do her homework."

IC, CC IC. "Mona went to class, but she didn't do her homework."

DC, IC. "Not having done her homework, Mona went to class."

IC DC. "Mona hadn't done her homework when she went to class."

March 25, 2009 - Comma Rule #1

Commas should always be used after an introductory clause (a dependent clause that is used to introduce a statement).

"Because her alarm clock was broken, she was late to class."

"When the snow melts, we'll wear our flip flops."

Commas should not be used to separate a complete thought. (Hint: is there a subordinating conjunction in the middle of the sentence?)

"She was late to class because her alarm clock was broken."

"We'll wear our flip flops when the snow melts."

March 26, 2009 – Comma Rule #2 – Essential and Unessential Elements

Unessential Elements – use commas!

- -an extra detail in a sentence
- -sentence would still make sense without it

"Fred, who often cheats, is only harming himself."

- -We don't need to know what he is doing to harm himself.
- "My niece, wearing the yellow jumpsuit, is playing in the living room."
 - -We already know she is in the living room, so we don't need to know how she's dressed.
- "The Green party candidate, who had the least money, lost the election."
 - -We know which candidate lost, so we don't need to know how much money she had.

Essential Elements – don't use commas!

-these are details that must be included in order for the sentences to make sense

"Students who often cheat are only harming themselves."

"The baby wearing the yellow jumpsuit is my niece."

"The candidate with the least amount of money lost the election."

March 30, 2009 – Transitions

Each sentence in your piece of writing should follow smoothly from the preceding sentence, and each paragraph should follow smoothly from the preceding paragraph. The world is arguably an unstructured jumble of ideas, but anything that you expect the reader to read from start to finish needs to be a linear progression along one single path. Transition words and phrases are what make it possible for a reader to follow you easily as you explore the various ideas in your paper.

 See "Student Handout 3/30" attached at end **

April 1, 2009 - Small, but Important!

Series Commas

-any list of items, 3 or more, should be separated by commas.

"She received an inheritance, a diamond ring and a house."

"She received an inheritance, a diamond ring, and a house."

Geographical Names and Dates

-separated by commas

"We are located in Keene, NH, USA at Keene High School.

Abbreviations

-Never, ever use in MLA formal writing!

Numerals

-Numbers 1-100 should always be spelled out, with the exception of common numerals used for measurement and numerals in an address or used for numbering pages.

April 2, 2009 – Apostrophes

They serve two purposes.

- 1. Apostrophes show possession. What does this mean?
- 2. Apostrophes show the omission of letters in contractions. What is a contraction?

"Someone's jacket has been hanging in my closet for three months, so I've finally decided to find out whose it is!"

"Jon, who's been awarded Best Art Student in the school, finally asked to prom; unfortunately, she's unable to attend."

April 6, 2009 – Verbal Journal Entry

Students must listen to what I say and write down what they believe to be important.

- -New paragraphs should not begin with vague words such as "they" or "it". A new paragraph is a new point...be as specific as possible when introducing this point.
- -Don't expect readers to know what you're talking about. If you state something, make sure you have introduced the concept or plan to elaborate on it. Don't make a reader question what you're talking about.
- -Make sure you can support everything you write with fact. Something as simple as, "I am always a hungry person" to as difficult as "Gandalf is befitting of the Great Father archetype".

April 7, 2009 – Verb Tense

Present "We study in the living room."

Present Continuous "We are studying in the living room."

Past "We studied in the living room."

Past Participle "We have/had studied in the living room."

Future "We will study in the living room."

When writing about literature, always write in present tense:

"In The Two Towers, Legolas and Gimli are friends despite their differences."

When writing about historical events or biographical information, it is safest to write in past tense.

"J.R.R. Tolkien was heavily influenced by the epic poem, Beowulf."

It is appropriate to shift tenses in writing when referring to a change in time frame or a switch from one state to another.

"King is writing (now) a new novel. After its release, it will sell (later) off of shelves in a matter of days."

Student Handout 3/30

Adding Information

Showing a Similarity

and moreover furthermore in addition likewise similarly

Giving Examples

Showing a Result

for example for instance specifically as a result therefore thus consequently

Showing a Contrast

Establishing Time Relation or Sequence

but however otherwise in contrast in conclusion in summary meanwhile

Showing a Concession

Showing a Condition

yet nevertheless however although despite

whether . . . or if . . . (then)
"Whether one believes it or not..."
"If one keeps up his bad habits, then..."

Showing a Similarity

Explaining or Emphasizing

likewise similarly in fact in other words namely

KSC Clinical Observation Form
Candidate MEGHAN Rouns		School KEENE HIGH SCHOOL
Observer DARRYL LEDUC	-	Grade/Class 12/College Page
Date: 3/30/09	-
	_	Comments
I. Planning and Preparing for Instruction	' 7
A. Knowledge of Students and School Context	_2_	WELCOMED CLASS - ADDRESSED
	_	Sme soudend Individually.
B. Knowledge of Content and	2	Lacos Och
Associated Pedagogy		Lesson Plan Well werten AND
C. Instructional Goals/Activities/	2	MATCH ASIESSMENT STATE
Assessments/Learning Outcomes	5	STANDANDE ARTICULATED.
7 1330357110113, Dealining Outcomes		3, 8,
		Room CONFIGURATION WORKS WELL
		FOR PHIS CLASS, EXCLUSE
II. Creating a Positive Learning Environm	nent_	HIGHER ORDER QUESTION BURING
A. Respect/Rapport		THE DISCUSION. MUT STROWED
 	ゥ	PARTICIPATED BUDY OU MADE
B. Managing Routines and Procedures	_2_	prikmor to willing Everyone.
C. Managing Student Behavior	_3	Managen student Benavium
	-	NOTES - NOT THAT YOU KNOD
		DIFFICULTIES; ZATHEN, UM TOOK
		The sure in wooden Honeketting
III. Instruction	7	wines Aus - the During by Culled
A. Activating and Maintaining Engagement	->-	I HEARD "LARRY WAKE UP!"-
B. Flexibility/Responsiveness	2	GOOD SITUATIONAL AN HENEY
B. Plexibility/Responsiveness		BOOD STEERSHIPSE AN ARE DEST
C. Activities	 	your ACTIVITIES WERE UNDERLESD
	2	AND INTERNETING, ALUS you
D. Pacing and Timing		TRANSITIONED BETWEEN KETIVINES
		very were
IV. Professional Responsibility		Um more posser put clearmon
A. Clear and Accurate Communication	_	AS you server, AS IEID YOUR
with All Audiences	3	STAGE - NEW ODNE,
B. Professional Interactions and Pursuit of	16.	you pohibit an Animatro aco
Professional Development	Wo	ENLAGUE PRESENCE WHILE TEXUBLE
C. Hea of Technology	1/2	this you poster and womente
C. Use of Technology	tho.	year useca.
D. Reflective Practice	_3_	CLOSURE WING AS PLANITO
·	•
Meghan Rounds		Cichelle Jehr
Signature of Teacher Candidate (following confer	rence)	Signature of Observer (following conference)
Field placement: Methods/Practicum		(check one) c Cooperating/Mentor Teacher
(check one)  Student Teaching/Internship		□ Methods/Practicum Instructor College Supervisor
		☐ Site Supervisor ☐ Other Course Instructor

1=Needs Improvement 2=Meets Expectations

Key:

3=Exceeds Expectations N/O=Not Observed

c) Other Professional Educator (please describe)

VII. Final Assessment Assignment Sheet and Explanation

The following pages are the assignment sheet for my final assessment. Included with this is the grading rubric for this assignment.

I chose this assignment as a final assessment for two reasons. First, I wanted my students to use the grammar skills they learned in a formal piece of writing. Second, I wanted my students to dig deeper into The Two Towers and look at the particular characterization techniques used by Tolkien. As shown on the assignment sheet, students were held accountable for their abilities to make a clear, fluid, and detailed argument as well as for proper grammar and mechanics.

Students worked on this essay in steps. They were responsible for writing a five paragraph essay strictly in class within a 50-minute time frame. Many students were angry that I would assign such a thing; they did not understand that it was a lesson. I later explained that many of the tasks they will have to complete in life will be timed. Next, the students peer revised their essays. During peer revision, my students were encouraged to not only write their revisions, but to verbalize and discuss how each essay could be made better. Finally, the students were given a week to turn their handwritten, revised, rough draft essays into typed, formally written, final draft essays.

The content category on my rubric is worth 55 points, over half the total points for the essay. I wanted my students to realize that their abilities to write a formal essay with a thesis and strong, fluid support would earn them the greatest amount of points for this assignment. The format category on my rubric is worth 15 points. I was less concerned about the format of the essay as I was about content and grammar, but I still wanted students to understand the importance of a properly formatted essay. Finally, the mechanics category on my rubric is worth 30 points. Proper grammar and mechanics was what the students were working towards throughout the entire Grammar Unit. For this reason, it was worth a large percentage of the final score.

ESSAY TOPIC

Please discuss the character you find most interesting so far in The Two Towers.

GRADING RATIONALE

CONTENT

- 1) Essay must consist of an introduction, three main points, and a conclusion, a total of five paragraphs.
- 2) Essay must be written completely in 3rd person (no "I think" or "You know that" statements).
- 3) Essay must be specific and detailed; do not expect readers to know what you mean, and do not use statements you cannot support.
- 4) Essay must have a minimum of two quotes from the text to support your statements.

 These quotes will need to be in-text cited using proper MLA documentation.
- 5) Essay must have a Works Consulted box documenting The Two Towers in proper MLA documentation.

FORMAT

- 6) Essay must have a heading in the upper-left corner of the paper with your name, your teacher's name, the name of this class, and the date (Day-Month-Year).
- 7) Essay must be written single-sided and every other line should be skipped. At the top of each new page in the upper-right corner, write your last name and the page number.
- 8) Essay must have a title, NOT underlined, written on the first line of the first page of the essay.

MECHANICS

9) Essay must be written with correct spelling, grammar, and mechanics. Please refer to your Grammar Journals with any specific questions.

This is your chance to shime and prove to me that you understand formal writing. Your essay is due by the end of class today, April 1st, 2009.

Be sure to manage your time well. Good luck!

DIRECTIONS

Please pair up with a partner of your choice and work together to revise your essays.

CONTENT

- 1) Does your partner's essay have five paragraphs?
- 2) Is your partner's essay written in 3rd person throughout? If not, how might your partner reword his/her statements into 3rd person statements?
- 3) If you did not know anything about The Lord of the Rings, would you understand the intent of your partner's paper? Are your partner's points detailed and clear? Does your partner have a thesis? If not, how might you help your partner improve these details?
- 4) Does your partner use quotations or refer to specific details from the text or film? Does your partner properly in-text cite these quotes/details? If not, how might your partner fix them?
- 5) Does your partner have a Works Consulted box at the bottom of his/her essay? Are the sources properly documented within this box? If not, how might this be fixed?

FORMAT

- 6) Does your partner's essay have the proper heading on the left side of his/her front page?
- 7) Does your partner's essay have his/her last name and the page numbers at the top of the right side of every page?
- 8) Does your partner's essay have a creative and unique title centered on the front page, NOT underlined?

MECHANICS

9) Read through your partner's essay with an expert eye. Using your knowledge, and your grammar journal, list here some suggestions for how your partner may be able to revise his/her essay so there are no run-on sentences, no comma errors, no choppy transitions, no errors in repetitiveness, and no informal language/vocabulary. If you need help, please ask!

You will notice that this assignment sheet is similar to the one you received in class on Wednesday, April 1st. Please type and properly format your handwritten rough draft into a final draft copy, due April 9, 2009.

ESSAY TOPIC

Please discuss the character you find most interesting so far in The Two Towers.

GRADING RATIONALE

CONTENT

- 1) Essay must consist of an introduction, three main points, and a conclusion, a total of five paragraphs.
- 2) Essay must be written completely in 3rd person (no "I think" or "You know that" statements).
- 3) Essay must be specific and detailed; do not expect readers to know what you mean, and do not use statements you cannot support.
- 4) Essay must have a minimum of two quotes from the text to support your statements. These quotes will need to be in-text cited using proper MLA documentation.
- 5) Essay must have a Works Consulted box documenting The Two Towers in proper MLA documentation.

FORMAT

- 6) Essay must have a heading in the upper-left corner of the paper with your name, your teacher's name, the name of this class, and the date (Day-Month-Year).
- 7) Essay must have numbered pages, with last name followed by page number.
- 8) Essay must have a creative title, not underlined, at the top of the essay.

MECHANICS

9) Essay must be written with correct spelling, grammar, and mechanics. Please refer to your Grammar Journals with any specific questions.

NVFF Revised and Final Essay	Student's Name:
RUBRIC
CONTENT
Essay is the required length of 5 paragraphs	[10]
Essay has a clear and strong 3 rd person voice	: [5]
Essay has a thesis/is detailed and clear/is no	ambiguous [20]
Essay has two proper in-text citations [10]
Essay has a Works Consulted page or box, p	roperly documented [10]
FORMAT
Essay is headed properly [5]
Essay has accurately numbered pages [5]
Essay has a creative title and strong opening	sentence [5]
	sentence [5]
Essay has a creative title and strong opening
Essay has a creative title and strong opening

FINAL SCORE:

LETTER GRADE:

VIII.

Samples of Student Work

Student A High-Level Student

Student's N

Journey Selected: Playing the Guitar

Grading Rubric for The Hero's Journey & You

Comments: NICe and complete! 55 poir

2-3 sentence introductory statement 10 points

· 5 sentence conclusion

Comments: I'M glad that you're able to recognize this as a journey!

- Interesting title Operate: 10 10 points

Paper is properly formatted 10 points

NIU Job, Let's work together on making some grammar improvements. You could use some work on verb tense agreement, formality, and eliminating run-on sentences.

Grade: 100 / 100 Points

Ms. Rounds
Nightmare and Vision
10 March 2009
The Journey of Music

I have chosen the experience of learning how to play guitar. I started to teach myself about two years ago. I chose this experience because music is a big part of my life and learning guitar helped me further understand music and why I love it.

When I found my great grandmother's old acoustic I thought it was meant to be that I

So isn't appropriate write and learned how to play. So I cleaned up the guitar went out and bought new strings. I learned how to restring it so that it was ready to play.

The threshold of my journey is realizing that I want to play the guitar and that I was going to do it now that I found my grandmothers acoustic buried in junk in my basement. I knew that I wanted to play but I also knew that I didn't know how to yet. I barely knew anything about guitars.

The threshold guardians of my journey were the guitarists that I looked up or was? to in all my favorite bands that made me feel like I am ready to learn how to play They encourage everyone to become better acquainted with music and they tell people they are ready and that they should do it. This Sent. Is uncuar.

repetitivi — The helpers of my journey are the lesson books that I bought from rely too much on "that" to Cheshire Music that helped me learn all the notes and fingering. Without my helpers I make your points.

probably would have just learned how to use tabs and that isn't reading actual music. **

my helpers did actually help me understand music more in the long run.

The mentors/guides of my journey were probably the people at Cheshire who - they are people, not things! who that helped me when I had questions on things that were harder to understand in the book. They helped me along the way when I got stuck.

The challenges and temptations along my journey would have to be getting frustrated when I didn't get things right away. It would get to the point that the strings would rip up my fingers so badly they would bleed, and it really made me want to stop and just give up. But because of the work had put in so far I decided to just deal with it, take a little break and keep going.
This is True!

The abyss of my journey was definitely when I had to play in front of people for the first time. I am extremely nervous in front of crowds as it is but then put the guitar in my hands and it got worse tenfold. The night I was supposed to play Devon told me to pretend like we were just back in my room and I was playing for him like I had done many times before. He told me to just look at him the entire time and to not worry about anyone else there.

The transformation of my journey was when Devon had told me that it oray was going to be ok and to just look at him the whole time and not worry about what anyone else was doing. This is when a little part of my stage fright died and of course, I was still extremely nervous, but he helped me get over it a little bit and become better at what I want to be better at doing.

slightly.

The revelation of my journey was when my "show" was overal had realized that I did it and nothing overly horrible happened. There were a few mistakes here and there but in the end it turned out ok. I realized that even though I hate being in front of people and playing in front of people and worrying about not being good enough, if I just suck it up and do it, it will turn out ok.

The atonement in my journey was when I realized I had learned how to play the guitar, and quite well actually. I realized that I did it and I taught myself how to very non on do it and I was happy that Devon was proud and that I was proud of myself. Devon then bought me a very nice and extremely expensive Fender Highway One, American Standard Edition Strat that he couldn't afford to give me a way to further my learning on playing guitar.

The return of my journey is now that I have a nice new guitar I just mess repetitive around and teach myself new things and just play for fun whenever I find the time. I can play very well now and have written quite a few songs. Now all I have to do is work on my tone deaf singing voice and (ill) be all set.

Now that I have looked at this experience as a journey I realized all the steps of the way and people involved served a purpose in helping me reach my goal. It award has affected my life in the way of learning to overcome fears or at least deal with them for a little while when you can't afford to be afraid. My revelation and transformation was basically Devon telling me to pretend its just me and him back in my room and me playing for just him, and to look at him the entire time I was playing. That helped me forget about all the people watching me and made it easier for me to succeed. Today I am still extremely stage fright but now I know at least I am capable if I try.

 	Bekah	is dres	sed for st.	Patty's Do	14 Conde	te .
: 1	SURIECT		redicate		ナ ハ 十	neugn
	 		manasa araba a		. •••
1001			Se - N, V, C
	depende	ent Clau	se-N, V, No	compute 1	novants	· ·
[i i
1	10 - "s	am stuc	lued in the constudied in -	afekria "/s	tands al	(ene)
		nigi san	10100 IN	the cateseru	en Copena
					· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·	الان م تعدد
	Vienn	. .	ace a table			1 7
	Fiera	eats nu	r vegetable	s everyou	ay'
					مر به
	* add	a 5000	ndinating c mplete th	onjunction	ns to p	Bake
	it D	Clunco	movete th	mont	-
7	"V
	Reira	eats.	She w	more.
	ordinating Co	njunction
	~A subordi (dependent	nating conjur t) clause. It ca	nction signals the beg in transform an inde	ginning of a subord pendent clause into	linate na dependent	-
	clause.	•	•		o a acpendent
 			> When I walked to nating Conjunctions	·
	while	after	though	in order that	as
	when where	since	although	as soon as	if :c
* : : : : : : : : : : : : : : : : : : :	·	until	before	as though	as if
}	because unless	once	provided	rather than	till 1
!		that	wherever	inasmuch as	how	e teur
	so that	than	whenever	as much as

	Comma Rose 4-1 3/25/07 commas should always be used after an introductory clause/a dependent clause
Y	that is used to introduce a statement),
	Because her alaim clock was broken,
	She was late to class."
	social taken The snow mets we'll wear our she was late to class." swarding when the snow metts we'll wear our flip Hops."
	If a dependent clause comes offer
	o main clause of no commas,
	"She was late to class herause
	She was late to class because her adarm was broken:
	VIC/DC.
Large-programme (A. Alf A.
	Comma Rule 42 3/27/09
 	unessential vs. Essential element.
	- an unessential element is an extra detail
: الأمداد :	in a sentence, the sentence would make sence without the unessential elements

,

•

- an essential element is a dotail that has to be therefor it to make sence UNESSENTIAL ELEMENT "The Green party candilate, who had the least money, lost the electron" * we know who the specific canditate 15, so the fact that she had the least amount is just an extra detail ESSENTIAL "the baby wearing the yellow Right Jumpsoil 1: my nerce * don't know which baby they're taking about wouldn't know it was here myo the yellow. JUNIO T

:	4-
	3,	Conjunctive advertos -also, futhermore, however, moreover, nevertheless, thereforeetc
Le L		X It says something about what is comer next. It connects the 2 sentences. connect 10 with CA.
	rong:	however she is going to eat soup tomorro
	Right:	"Caroline wasnt in class; however she competed ner HW."
		Proper punctuation of clauses.  prevents run on sentences. examples?

Showing a Similarity
Showing a Similarity	i
likewice	·····
Sillinus ly .
Showing a Result
as a result therefore thus consequently Establishing Time Relation or
Sequence	~~ ~~
·
in conclusion	Ì
in summary
meanwhile
Showing a Condition	-
whether or
	(
	and Arma
then"	فر
Explaining or Emphasizing	i. #
in fact
III OWIOL WOLUS
	therefore thus consequently Establishing Time Relation or Sequence in conclusion in summary meanwhile Showing a Condition whether or if (then) "Whether one believes it or not" "If one keeps up his bad habits, then"

109 4/1/09 Cen et Commo diamond ring, and a house." "She recieved an inheritance: a dramond ring and a house." Geographical Names and Darks Commas "We are located in keene, NH, USA at Keene High school." FORMAL MLA WRITING! #1-100 should be spelled out XCEPTIONS: Dif commonly used, use numerous for measument

(a) do not begin a sentence with a numeral.

(b) use numerous in addresses, decimals, and page # 's.

Apostn	ophes	4	12/09
	sions-what dues ossesion 15 ou		7
;	's pen" "1	Mike's face
- 0 100	tractions practions not -> dor	rombines 2 w	ords postrophe
can	$not \rightarrow car$ $not \rightarrow wor$	n'+
Someon	us Jacket has	s been hand	ging	€
in mu Pre	closet for the finally decided with the series	ed to find), SO	** ***********************************
-O.O.T	WI 10 SOFT

V	specific Detail in formal writing 4/6/09
phe	-they are important so youknow what someones trying to say start all rew -new paragraphs not*-mey·It·that·s/ne· Yes* names, or person /thing proper noon -dont expect readers to knowwhat your -airing about. aways explain forther. ex. liz's brown boots contribut to her outfit.
	-make sure support everything you say with fact.
	-Say what you want to say and say why. ex. "I'm always hungry. BECAUSE" NO VAUGUE WORDS!!

47.09 verb tense ocesent "We study in the living room" present Continuous "We are studying in the living room" past "We studied in the living room" Past Participue "We have/had studied in the living room" Future "We will study in the living room" When writing about literature, write in present tense: In The Two Towers, Legolas and Gimli are friends despite their differences." Whenwring about historical events or biographical information untern past tense "J. R.R. Tolkien was heavily influenced by the epic poem Beauvif." Shift tenses when achangin timeframe "King is writing (now) a new novel, after its realease it will sell (later) off of shelves in a matter of days"

NVFF

Revised and Final Essay

Student's Name:

RUBRIC

CONTENT

Essay is the required length of 5 paragraphs [10] [0]

Essay has a clear and strong 3rd person voice [5]5

Essay has a thesis/is detailed and clear/is not ambiguous [20]18 - Remember to be specific for reacters who haven't read Lotr!

Essay has two proper in-text citations [10] [0

Essay has a Works Consulted page or box, properly documented [10] 9

FORMAT

Essay is headed properly [5] 5

Essay has accurately numbered pages [5]5

Essay has a creative title and strong opening sentence [5] 4

MECHANICS

Essay is virtually free of grammar errors! [30] 27 - Refer back to your journal for comma and punctuation rules.

S

Nice formal writing! your essay is fluid and strong. This could be stronger with perfect punctuation!

FINAL SCORE: 93

LETTER GRADE: A-

Ms. Rounds NVFF 8 April 2009

Aragorn: The Lost King of Gondor

The most interesting character in The Two Towers po far would have to be former Aragorn. Aragorn is a man who is the heir of Isildur, the king of Gondor who cut off Sauron's finger. He is the rightful king of Gondor but is hiding from the responsibility because he doesn't want to become like his ancestor who morally failed. Aragorn has impeccable morals, strength and intellect, which makes him the most interesting and complex character.

Aragorn has a very strong sense of morals. In The Fellowship of the Ring, he joins the fellowship and promises his sword to protect Frodo in his mission to destroy Sauron's ring of power. Aragorn is tempted by the ring but resists because he does not want to become like Isildur. He tells Frodo that he would have followed him to the end but he had to do what was right (Fellowship). He follows his heart when making decisions; however, he takes into consideration what is the right thing to do. "And now may I make the right choice, and change the evil fate of this unhappy day...I would have followed Frodo to the end but if I seek him now, I must abandon the captives to torment and death. My heart speaks clearly at last" (Tolkien 11).

NICO grown

Aragorn has great strength because, no matter what the risk, he fights for what is right. He, Legolas and Gimli run for many leagues without stopping to rest. Aragorn does not want to stop and risk losing the Orcs that have Merry and Pippin. In The Fellowship of the Ring, when Frodo is stabbed by one of the Nazgul, he carries Frodo to safety after fighting bravely against all of the other Black Riders of Mordor (Fellowship). Aragorn fights to the fullest in every battle, showing true strength.

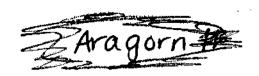

Aragorn shows his intelligence in the way that he leads. He knows when to run after Merry and Pippin and when to stop to rest. He is a very good tracker and hunter because of his quick thinking. "We will not walk in the dark… The peril of missing the trail or signs of other coming and goings seems to me the greater. If the moon gave enough light, we would use it, but alas" (Tolkien 19). He is also very smart when it comes to knowing the layout of the lands that they travel and the languages spoken there.

Overall, Aragorn seems like a complex character that can easily be seen as the guardian of the story. His cunning, bravery, strength, intelligence and moral standards make him a great man and a fantastic warrior. He will not fail in his mission to aid, in anyway he can, the destruction of the ring. There still have much to learn about Aragorn in the coming story. Surely he still has a lot up his sleeve to surprise and impress his readers with.

Works Consulted

- The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring. Jackson, Peter. 2001. DVD. New Line Home Entertainment, 2001.
- Tolkien, J.R.R. The Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers. New York: Ballantine Books, 1954. 11-20.

N. FF 17/09 1/APRIL 2009

The most interesting character in The Two Towers Sofar would be Aragorn. Aragorn is a man who is the neir of Isildur, the King of Gondor who cut off saron's finger. He is the king of Gondor but is hiding from the responsibility because he doesn't want to become like his ancestor who morally failed. He has impecable morals, strength and intelect.

Aragorn has a very strong sense of morals. In The Fellowship of the Ring, he joins the fellowship and promises his Sword to protect Frodo in his mission.

Aragorn is tempted by the ring but resists, because he doesn't want to become like Isildur (from movie). He follows his heart in making decissions; however he takes into consideration what Is the right thing to do. "And now may I make the right choice, and change the evil fate of this unnappy day... I would have followed Frods to the end but if I seek nim now, I must abandon the captives to torment and death. My heart speaks clearly atlast, (Tolkien 11).

Aragorn has great strength. because, no matter what the risk, he fights for what is right. He, Eegolas, and fimili run for many leagues without rest. because Aragorn does not want to Stop and risk lossing Merry and Pippin. In The Followship of the Ring, when Frodo is stabbed by one of the Nazgúi, he carries Frodo to safky after fighting bravely against all of the Black Riders (Fellowsnip). He fights to his follest in every battle, showing true strength.

Aragorn is very smart because of the way he leads. He knows when to run after Merry and Pippin and when to rest. He is a very good tracker, and hunter because of his quick thinking. "We will not work in the dark ... The peril of missing the trail or signs of other coming and going seems to me the greater. If the moon gave enough light, we would use it, but alas," (Tolkien 19). He is also smart in the knowledge of the lands they travel.

Overall, Aragorn seems like a very complex character that is very easily Seen as the guardian of the story. His cunning, bravery, strength, intelligence and moral sense makes hum a great man and a great warmor. He will not fail in his mussion to ald, in anyway he can, the destruction of the ring. WORKS CONSULTED

The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring.

Beter Jackson. 2001. OND. Newline Home entertainment. 2001

Tolkien, J.R.R. The Lord of the Rings: The

Two Towers. New York: Ballantine Books, 1954.

In-Class Five Paragraph Essay
Peer Revision Notes
Due: End of Class 3 April 2009

DIRECTIONS

Please pair up with a partner of your choice and work together to revise your essays.

CONTENT

- 1) Does your partner's essay have five paragraphs?
- 2) Is your partner's essay written in 3^{rd} person throughout? If not, how might your partner reword his/her statements into 3^{rd} person statements? $\sqrt{c} > c$
- 3) If you did not know anything about The Lord of the Rings, would you understand the intent of your partner's paper? Are your partner's points detailed and clear? Does your partner have a thesis? If not, how might you help your partner improve these details?
- 4) Does your partner use quotations or refer to specific details from the text or film? Does your partner properly in-text cite these quotes/details? If not, how might your partner fix them?

Yes she and your quies

5) Does your partner have a Works Consulted box at the bottom of his/her essay? Are the sources properly documented within this box? If not, how might this be fixed?

No

FORMAT

- 6) Does your partner's essay have the proper heading on the left side of his/her front page?
- 7) Does your partner's essay have his/her last name and the page numbers at the top of the right side of every page? $\bigvee_{i \in \mathcal{A}} e_i$
- 8) Does your partner's essay have a creative and unique title centered on the front page, NOT underlined?

MECHANICS

9) Read through your partner's essay with an expert eye. Using your knowledge, and your grammar journal, list here some suggestions for how your partner may be able to revise his/her essay so there are no run-on sentences, no comma errors, no choppy transitions, no errors in repetitiveness, and no informal language/vocabulary. If you need help, please ask!

IX.

Samples of Student Work

Student B Medium-Level Student

Student's I

Journey Selected: The Soldier's Journey

Grading Rubric for The Hero's Journey & You

comments: Your transformation and revelation 55 points are addressed in the same paragraph. Nill Job telling a fluent story, though; your day at MEPS truly was a journey with lots of challenges within it.

2-3 sentence introductory statement

Comments: NIU!

10 points

- 5 sentence conclusion

 Comments This doesn't conclude according to 15 points

 the assignment sheet, but it concludes your thoughts.

- Interesting title
 Comments SO True!

10 10 points

· Paper is properly formatted Comments: Remember to Indent paragraphs! 10

9 10 points

What a nice, fluid journey! you would benefit from grammar ussons on commas and how to write clearly. Also, let's work together on your formal writing Skills.

Grade: 85 / 100 Points

Ms. Rounds

Nightmare and Vision

10 March N. 2009

para-always 1" indentation

The Soldier's Journey

The experience that I have chosen to analyze is the journey of enlisting in the Army. I enlisted November 4th, 2008, on voting day. I think it is significant because it will change who I am and affect me for the rest of my life.

The Call

It all started with my decision to join the military. It was years ago, when I decided, and I didn't know which branch I wanted to join yet. I wanted to do something significant with my life, see the world and do something for the country that I call home.

The Threshold

My "jumping off point" was when I first went into the Recruiting office to talk about eight.

what I wanted to do. I had just turned 18, so I didn't need my parent's permission for is anything. That when I felt like Sam in The Fellowship of the Ring, saying, "One more step and I'll be farther away from home than I've ever been." I had to make decisions now about the rest of my life.

Threshold Guardians

My threshold guardians were definitely my family and my girlfriend. They were always telling me to not completely trust the recruiters and making me justify my decision to understand them so they could know that it is something I really believe in, not just an un-thought of decision.

Knowing & understanding are different! lox

Helpers

Mhink the biggest of helpers was my thele Keith. He had been in the Army and so he had me run all of my plans by him to see if he thought I had enough information. He also many to question

gave me a lot of things to think about and things to ask.

Mentors & Guides

Think the recruiters were my mentors and guides. At first, I didn't fully trust them, but they gave me advice about their experience in the Army and helped me with the development of my plans. Whenever I had a question, they had an answer, and they weren't pushy or trying to persuade me to do a certain thing. Most of heir job is to be not mentors, instead of getting a certain number of people to join the Army.

Challenges & Temptations

I think the biggest challenge was the medical exam at the MEPS (Military Entrance Processing Station) at Westover Air Force Base. I got there the night before and stayed in barracks with other kids like me. Some were already enlisted and shipping out for Basic Combat Training the next day. My day started at 4:30 in the morning with a Staff Sergeant pounding on my door to wake me up and tell me to line up downstairs with my stuff. After that it was time for breakfast and then to face the battery of tests waiting for me.

Abyss

The abyss was the day ahead of me at MEPS. When I got there, there was an introduction given by the base commander and a power point telling us the rules for personal conduct and such. After that we did the personal information packet and the psychological evaluation. Then, after some waiting, they took my blood sample, checked my eyes, ears, is staff in ?

and person reflexes, height, weight, and everything else you could imagine. After all that it was about time for lunch. The nerve-wracking part was over. During the medical tests, if you so mush as coughed, they would tell you that you were to sick to continue the tests. One kid about my age missed his son's N birthday to be there and they did that to him. After that we had lunch and then went on to do a lot more waiting. After that/slowly went by, we met with a "guidance councilo" to choose our jobs and benefits and tell them, once again, that we weren't psycho killers with a murderous past. There was a lot of signing. I think the weirdest part was writing down who gets my body if I'm killed. After that was more waiting.

Transformation

My transformation was when all my paperwork came through and they took me into a room with a few other people to learn the oath that I would be sworn in with. Standing at attention, with my right hand raised, repeating after the Army officer in front of me, I realized: I'm a soldier now. This is what I went through these tests and all that waiting for. It was 3 in the afternoon at that point. After that I was done. I joined the Army.

Atonement

With no more tests, no more waiting and my copy of my signed contract in a folder with "Pvt. Whippie" written on the front, I was on my way home. No more going into the recruiter's office for paperwork, just for checking in and going to training. It was then I knew that this is what I'm going to be happy doing. This is where I belong.

The Return

The first thing I did was get my picture taken at the recruiter's office so he could put me up on the bulletin board with the other Future Soldiers. When we were done, I went to see my girlfriend, who I would propose to in a few weeks' time. Then I finally got home you could elaborate here about at just before and just in time to vote for the president.

You could elaborate here about what it felt like to vote, for your is time, as a soldier.

I picked this journey, because it is really important to me and it is something that I am really proud of but mostly because it truly was a journey. Starting at 4 in the afternoon and going until 8 the next night, my journey to become a soldier lasted a full 28 hours.

Only 2 servences?

RJ	1	P	5
$I \setminus V$	1	U	′

- - -

. 1

. . .

...

	RVIES
	1) Journals will be collected at the end of everyweek 1) each entry (1 mr day) is worth to class work points 3) Journals can be used on all work.
,	1) Journals need to be brought to class every day 5), you are responsible for knowing and understanding all
	; old nat content please ask grestions. 3/1/69

Tuesday, ma	Ut 17,200	W^3	√o.•0.
59/9	is Tressed	for St. Patrick	i Dayly
	Prto			overen nomen : Ed Tears in Joseph	- All Allen Plans
		a kt a complete th	voval t	and the second of the second o	··
independent-	Stavils ala	melhas called	predicational ma	. lac.	a :
(ompleteth	m/d.t	The state of the	William Curt now was	er-() 4	· ,
COMITATION	\vi	er e	enterente de la companya de la comp	— »
····· " y···	~ \	Political III Committee on the Committee of the Committee of the Committee of the Committee of the Committee on the Committee of the Committee
4/18/0	SUB	ord inating
	(68	ordinating roinating	er er en		· ************************************
			to the comment of the	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
	1	16	. 1
SULOFO	rating (o	ninetion - c	hange an indep	endant d	assl
ANTO a depen	rating (or dant cla	VSE wordslike:	hange an indep	endant cl	lat,
f, as, than	ndant cla	VSP words like.	white, after ber	°619, 50 +	aust lat
f, as, than	ndant cla	VSP words like.	white, after ber	°619, 50 +	aust_
nto adeper	ndant cla	VSP words like.	white, after ber	°619, 50 +	aust lat
nto adeper	ndant cla	VSP words like.	hange an indep white, after ber iv - Independan iii - de rendant	°619, 50 +	aust lat
nto adepent, as, than Lifa equations Co	nd ant cla	VSP Words life.	while, after ber V. Inderendan II - de rendant estimate of a subordi	of, so the	lat, nto adepent, as, than Litale If" coordinating Co	nd ant cla	VSP Words life.	while, after ber V. Inderendan II - de rendant estimate of a subordi	of, so the	lat,
Ato a dependen	nd ant cla	unction signals the b	while, after ber I - Independent eginning of a subordilependent clause into	of, so the	lat,
Ato a left, as, than Lifa eq ordinating Co A subord (dependent clause. (I walked to	nd and classification inating conjunction it clause. It is the store.	unction signals the b can transform an ind	while, after endanger of a subordint clause into the store,)	of, so the	lat,
Ato a left, as, than Life a left ordinating Co A subord (dependent clause.) (I walked to some Come	onjunction inating conjunction of the store.	unction signals the b can transform an ind	while, after endanger of a subordint clause into the store,)	6/1, so the	lat,
Ato a left, as, than Lifa ea The ordinating Co A subord (dependent clause.) (I walked to some Comwhile	njunction inating conjut) clause. It to the store. after	unction signals the b can transform an ind => When I walked to though	while, after ber In of rendant eginning of a subordi lependent clause into the store,) ns:	inate a depende	lat,
Ato a defer f, as, than Life of Continating Co ~A subord (dependent clause. (I walked to Some Corr while when	onjunction inating conjunction of the store.	unction signals the b can transform an ind	while, after endant I - de rendant eginning of a subordi lependent clause into the store,) in order that	tate a depende as if as if	lat,
Ato a left, as, then Life of a left ordinating Co A subord (dependent clause. (I walked to some Community when where	njunction inating conjut) clause. It to the store. amon Subore after since	unction signals the b can transform an ind => When I walked to dinating Conjunction though although	eginning of a subordilependent clause into the store,) in order that as soon as as though rather than	inate a depende as if as if till	lat,
And a dependent of the subord (dependent clause. (I walked to while when	onjunction inating conjunction to clause. It to the store. It is the store of the store of the since until	unction signals the becan transform an independent of the second of though although before	eginning of a subordi lependent clause into the store,) in order that as soon as as though	tate a depende as if as if	lat,

MINIO

a comprised sentance has me independant claver

coordinating conjunctions and, but, or, for, not, 50, xet connect 2 independent claver

3/19/00

conjunctive Adverbs

also conservently further more however, moreover, nevertieless, connect 2 independent classes a luals and only after a service punctuation? Make Sure you know it!

MWich 15, 2009

Comma VII #4

Commas should always be used after a dependent clause used to in firduct a statement

If the de revolunt clare comes after the main clare, commo

ıden⁻

classe

+ lat,

al

f

32609 Unessential element is an extre defact in a send with. An 1860 TO DIE 1877 IN IS WHO I TO WAS SUISE

Strifts (ommas - 1:4 of 3 or more items, separated by commas The recitied an inheritance: a diamond ring, and a holse Geographical Names and Dates Commas We are in keene, NH, vs4 at Ketne High school NOABBREVIATIONS Numerals - Should be spelled out exceptions. Units of measurement don't begin a sentence W/ a mameral Use numerals in adress can decimals and page Hs 4/2/59 grostropher Prssigion-shows who owns something David's Coffee Contraction - Don't Do not 4/2?

46/01/ Frankonic bennant of hacer MY NY

NVFF

Revised and Final Essay

Student's Nan

RUBRIC

CONTENT

Essay is the required length of 5 paragraphs [10] [0]

Essay has a clear and strong 3rd person voice [5]5

Essay has a thesis/is detailed and clear/is not ambiguous [20] 17 - Clear thesis and argument Some informality

Essay has two proper in-text citations [10] O

Essay has a Works Consulted page or box, properly documented [10] O - Leaves something to be desired.

FORMAT

Essay is headed properly [5] 5

Essay has accurately numbered pages [5] 5

Essay has a creative title and strong opening sentence [5] 4 - NILL TITLE, Weak opening Sentence

MECHANICS

Essay is virtually free of grammar errors! [30] 23 - Comma and Capitalization errors

You, of all people, should know that the race's are capitalized! Refer to your yournal for dependent VS. Indepenolent clause rules.

This has so much potential!

Your argument is clear and strong.

Be aware of your informal nature.

How can you communicate your final score: 69

Vast Knowledge in an effective way?

LETTER GRADE: D

Ms. Rounds

Nightmare & Vision

76 April 2009

The Warrior

Boromir, Son of Denethor, is one of the most interesting characters in J.R.R Tolkien's

The Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the book for long, he is a catalyst for some

"In the Two Towers (Although he isn't in the boo

Boromir is a very just and fair character, and that is why it is such a change when he tries to take the Ring. Boromir's father, Denethor, is a pretty closed-minded and "appears to be"? selfish person and that is probably why Boromir comes out good. Boromir comes from Gondor to Rivendell for news, but volunteers for a dangerous quest for the greater good. Inf.

He also never tries to run or save his own skin in Moria, even though they face an unknown amount of orcs. That is enough to make anyone think that he is a very interesting character.

It is obvious that Boromir wants the Ring for Gondor, but he knows that it could bring evil on them, so he helps the Fellowship to destroy it. In Rivendellhe first sees it and the idea comes to him to use it against Mordor like a weapon. Also after leaving

This is one of the state of the second who is the specific who is the specific and its readers ab. Lot

Lothlorien, Boromir tries to persuade the Fellowship to bring the Ring to Minas Tirith in Gondor. He wants it because he thinks that it should have stayed in Gondor and should have been passed down to him. The Ring corrupts him enough so that he even tries to take the Ring from Frodo. repetitive

When Boromir tries to take the Ring from Frodo, Frodo escapes and Boromir is released from the power of the Ring. He immediately realizes what he did and he tries to call out to Frodos because he knows that he was weak and that he should have been protecting Frodo. In sorrowshe returns to the Fellowship and tells them what happened and goes after Merry and Pippin when rush off to look for Frodo. Boromir has a very who? Be specific. strong sense of honor, and so when they are attacked by orcs, he knows he must protect the Hobbits to redeem himself. Although he was wrong to try to take the Ring, he with not the state of the state they meet orcs. Although he wants the Ring for Gondor, he doesn't lose his head or refuse to help the Fellowship because of his disagreement. He protects Merry and Pippin to redeem himself for trying to take the Ring. Boromir has many kinds of strength, and that is what makes him an interesting character.

Tolkien, J.R.R. The Lord of the Rings.

Mr. Rosel 1 ham LAPRITURE

The WELLION

Boromir, non of Denethor, is one of the mort interest characters in J.R.B.S. Tolkiens The Two Towers. Although he isn't in the book for long, he is the costalist for some important charge in the Series. For omin is a very noble warrior of bonder and a fair mindel, just person. He is corrupted by the Bring, but I resists it for a long time longer than solder does and he

1 My sorry for his betraya, to the Point where he redress himself for it. He Protects Merry and Rittin flow the Jouk hai, even after he is shot many times with allow

Baramic is a very just and fait character, and that is why It is such a change when he tries to mke !

King. Poromit's father, Denether is a pretty dosed-minied and selfish resum and their is probably who focume comes and south Boromic comes and south Boromic comes and from bonder to Riverdel for news, but solventeers for a language given for the greater good. He also a never tries to the or save his own skin in Moria reventh the face an inknown amount of orcs. That is enough to make and think that he is a vilv interesting Character,

100

.

Peer Revision Notes

Due: End of Class 3 April 2009

DIRECTIONS

DIRECTIONS
Please pair up with a partner of your choice and work together to revise your essays.
CONTENT 1) Does your partner's essay have five paragraphs?
N. Z
2) Is your partner's essay written in 3 rd person throughout? If not, how might your partner reword his/her statements into 3 rd person statements?
and person
3) If you did not know anything about The Lord of the Rings , would you understand the intent of your partner's paper? Are your partner's points detailed and clear? Does your partner have a thesis ? If not, how might you help your partner improve these details?
4) Does your partner use quotations or refer to specific details from the text or film? Does your partner properly in-text cite these quotes/details? If not, how might your partner fix them?
No, use them
5) Does your partner have a Works Consulted box at the bottom of his/her essay? Are the sources properly documented within this box? If not, how might this be fixed?
No set one
FORMAT
6) Does your partner's essay have the proper heading on the left side of his/her front page?
7) Does your partner's essay have his/her last name and the page numbers at the top of the right side of every page?
8) Does your partner's essay have a creative and unique title centered on the front page, NOT underlined? July, when it underlined

MECHANICS

9) Read through your partner's essay with an expert eye. Using your knowledge, and your grammar journal, list here some suggestions for how your partner may be able to revise his/her essay so there are no run-on sentences, no comma errors, no choppy transitions, no errors in repetitiveness, and no informal language/vocabulary. If you need help, please ask!

inse movie quote and such

X.

Samples of Student Work

Student C Low-Level Student

Student's No

Journey Selected: GITL Fight

Grading Rubric for The Hero's Journey & You

- Each component is addressed and supported 35

 Comments: More detail is necessary. 55 points

 What is the lesson you learned from this Journey? How did you grow/change?
- 5 sentence conclusion 5 Comments: NOT a fluid argument. 15 points
- the comments: NILL explanation! 10 points
- Paper is properly formatted 10 nents: 10 points

Im worried about why you chose this event as a journey. Let's talk! I would like to work with you on how to properly punctuate dialogue, voice, formality, and basic writing rules. Let's Strengthen your grammar!

Grade: 70 / 100 Points

Mrs. McLaughlin and Ms. Rounds Nightmare and Vision March 10,2009 10 March 2007

Girl Fight!

I once got into a fight at school.

I am choosing to write about the time when I got into a fight at school. A girl I ride the bus with had been causing problems with my best friend, Kasandra, and me. She addressed me in the cafeteria, and it lead to a physical fight. I chose this one because I think it has taught me a lot about the drama of high school and how to avoid Good Startsituations like this.

Life Before the Call

I would ride the bus every morning and hear students in the back of the bus call kids names.

Kasandra was the target of many because of a rumor that went around about her calling a girl a particular derogatory name. Kasandra and I would hear whispers about people waiting at her bus stop to beat her up. She was afraid so she asked me to get off the bus with her. Nobody would say anything to her while I was there.

The Call

One day when I got off the bus one of the girls' mom was waiting there. As Kasandra and I made it around the corner we heard them yelling something at us. We turned around and asked them what they said. We ended up getting into a huge argument and her mom was yelling at us. We thought there was going to be a brawl right there. That only started things between us all. A girl punched Kasandra in the face the next day.

The Threshold

The next day I was in the cafeteria eating my pop tart when the famous group of girls walked by. One of them realized we were sitting there and said on, let's go this way as they walked around the wall. I said loud and clear, Wow that is pretty immature.

Threshold Guardians

There were many witnesses to this event. There were hall monitors and teachers all over the café. The girl had left the café and came back in. When she came back there seemed to be no teachers left. There were only students left as witnesses.

Show did they guide you?

Who guided you through any

Challenges and Temptations

When she came back in she came up to me and asked me if I had just said something. I told her I did and what I said. All She wanted to do was fight. I told her I didn't want to fight her, But she wouldn't listen. By this time there were a ton of students gathered around expecting a fight. What was I to do I couldn't let them down.

The Abyss

I stood up and walked towards her. At the same time she walked towards me with a ready fist. There was no way I was going to let her hit me. 3 I hit her in the face. She immediately grabbed my hair. We wrestled a bit. She outweighed me and so her leaning on me made me fall. I hit my head on the table. She got up and tried to attack me while I was on the ground, so I kicked her in the face about 's times. Then I said all right seriously leave me alone." And That was it.

Helpers/mentors

My sister helped me by rolling the girl off of me after we fell. She helped me up at the end and made sure I was okay. Kasandra was there to comfort me and tell me how awesome the fight looked.

A helper is someone that helps you prepare for the Abyss.

A Revelation

I thought it would solve things by fighting but it didn't. I now realize this because she didn't leave me alone. We don't talk now but there are days when things are said on the bus and we exchange dirty looks or things are mumbled to friends.

Transformation

are After fighting I found that there is always going to be problems and fighting doesn't solve them, but it does make you feel better about yourself. I learned not to fall into the drama of other students. I also learned that the resource officer could help if you let them know what is going on ahead of time.

The Atonement

I was at one when I found out that she got in more trouble than I did. She technically started the fight and so she got 4 days of suspension and I only got 3. It was so satisfying.

The Return

When I got back to school everyone was so happy to see me. They were anxious to tell me all about a fight that I had experienced first hand. It was nice hearing that I had won the fight. There were many rumors though that I had a broken nose and a concussion. I had to set these rumors straight. I still have to defend myself to some who haven't heard the real story.

Conclusion

The fight made me realize all the drama that goes on in high school. It is everywhere and the easiest way to avoid it is to not spread rumors. They are THE best way to get someone mad at you. I learned other ways to avoid physical fighting. The resource officer can help as long as you let them know as soon as the problem began. It makes me question friendships because I don't want to be friends with someone if I hear them talking about other people. I learned to defend myself so I am prepared if I have to fight again.

Journal Rules 1 journals will be collected at the end of every week.

- 2. Each entry (I per day or more) is worth 10 class work points.
- 3. journals can be used on all work.
- 1 journals need to be brought to
- J. you are responsible for knowing and UNDERSTANDING all journal content. Please ask ions!

10 3/17/09

prechicane for St. Panic's Day! Suggest, predictive 1002 no compute thought Independent clause can stand alone basically a sentince, not suggest previous complete thought, Has a point and purpose M Studied in the MARTHUR. 30m Studied in ine

march 18,2009

	: } 		and the second s
*	SUNDORGINAC	dinc.	conjuction		Fd-44	J
			conce		THE CONTRACTOR OF THE STATE OF
	i			i a ayen	(0/H	and the second s
	Clause.			* `
	; ""	cio as	. while of	Hr. mellye.	The property of the second of withat,		,	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
	Angeline de la companya de la compa Angeline de la companya de la compa		سىدى رىنى بال ى سائىدى بالمۇنىدى ئىلىنى بالىرىنى بالىرىنى بالىرىنى بالىرىنى بالىرىنى بالىرىنى بالىرىنى بالىرىنى		The second of the second	\
	MY 21A A		N JONAC BUR	s energelage		!
		apena.		- UNUX	The second secon
٠			1000	Alla at World	day
	L. E. L. C.L.			iakhoj every	any	and the same of the same of
			Y K WILL			Land the state of
	So tha	y Kiji	a counce v	edepopez eneig	1/104"	And the second second
	e un company de la company	20		Į,	4	e Standarda e de esta e de esta e
					1
•	Subordinating Con			hanianiaa afa adaa d		And the second of the second beginning of a subord idependent clause into		en :
,	clause. (I walked to	n the store	. => When I walked	to the store	•	No.
			rdinating Conjunction
٠.	while	after	though	in order that	as
	when	since	although	as soon as	if	and the second of the second of the second
	where	until	before	as though	as if because	once	provided	rather than	till unless	that	wherever	inasmuch as	how
	so that	than	whenever	as much as		:

so than eigene will eather regulables provided Heather goes in class The reacher work ser a her DE 1907 THE PROVINCE AND MORE 221 OF CLASS Simple Sentence - has just one irrependent clause Compound Sentence - has at wast the margentiat clauses Coordinating Conjunctions and, but, or, for, nor, so, yet iden -connects two independent clauses + cannos begin a service.

march 9 2009

L'Conjunctive Adverbs
-auso, consequente de revolución de Moulever,	i
majecia reversioners, Timeria	:
- connect - wo modeprouse.]
clauses, and and only afair a San Folian
Worn and an want on
LOUIS PERIOD OF TOWERS
1000 -10 la la primario
Right May 2007 Man 1
1950 Gisterally; however
Sign Contract - Mark VIII
soe anguete the assigna
in Tarnal Julius, Seriera in in	THE STATE STATE OF THE STATE OF 1015 21,2 1200 21200 1200 1200 1200 1200 120
1 R Suraphy iconto Co.
This buffer, I care to a consideration of the second secon

PACPET DUNCHURATION ICIC. Mona were so close she KIRCH LO YELL DONOLEWOYK! ICIC Mona successions sne dight as her homework! ICCA, C. MONO NEAR 10 (1955) one didn't do her homework IC,CC, iC. MONO WENT O CLOSS out she dian do ner honeway DC, K. "Not making done ner namework Mana went to chass" ICDC "More bodo + done the YOMENVOIR NIPPO SOR MEDI 10 C. Varia

wednesday March 25,2005

	March 25,2005	د .
Ar	Commo Rossin	%# ************************************
	commas should alluay we used
ĭ	After an invode on cource	, ,, typenant- clouse box it come to milloduce a statement)
	Beause du claim cione was
I	broker, since was late to class. I
	The state of the s
	When the snow melts, we'll Near our flip-flows."	.
	NEOR OUT + 11/2 (10/25)
	Subordina- ma conjunctions	،
al	tiske was the and the was
3	believe met a som com com was
5 ·		.
	"Ne" I wear our flip flops
a.	Me'll wear our flip flops	_ ~
		_, ~

essent of unessentia livings main au sous with an extra devolution a senting . SAUTHOUT TAKE THE LINE OF CHE WHADOUR · must be included to make stable. LIKELE JANE - LIN CONTROL "Elect who chest cheats, is only hambru hasse? * DOWN DEED OFFICE TROUBLES "The green party conditate, 10:11/22/6/6/1 SSEPTICE - DON'T USE TOMORIE "Stucucii Ima Gira Chan are only noner; revolution "The Call of With E. Le least amount of no oney have the

Morday March 20

All I il		 ;
Adding Information	Showing a Similarity
and moreover	likewise similarly	-
furthermore in addition		- -
Giving Examples	Showing a Result	+
for example for instance	as a result therefore	·
specifically	thus consequently	-1 -
Showing a Contrast	Establishing Time Relation or Sequence	1
but however otherwise in contrast	in conclusion in summary meanwhile
Showing a Concession	Showing a Condition
yet nevertheless however although despite	whether or if (then) "Whether one believes it or not" "If one keeps up his bad habits, then"
Showing a Similarity	Explaining or Emphasizing	خدر.
likewise similarly	in fact in other words namely	ىـ ى
	20/20	,_ ·

April 1995 Series Compass and 122 of 3 herries should be seen seen in a man. "She addive in a premium a dones with a result Many let apply an one harry Goographical occurs and with comme "Ne are lacter in kire, NH, Joh In MIA FINOS + FOUL POINTS at kuns might NEVER use abprovious EVER. · MUMMAN SYNOUNG NOW MINE MAN erceptions of Amagnin with, USE properties the units of modest convol DE BON A BRIDGE CONTRA SAFE

Thursday April 0/2/09

	Apostrophes
	Showing passes ion
	-mains it is showing sumeone
e de la companya del la companya de	anns somethin
	W. Della Kills pelicules acol to combine two words together to make a contaction.
	dont coorismi, working
	1000 Man
7055 6
Fr 10 - 1	And the second s honging with the first of
	to-firm ou whole it is.
	totime of whole this.
	- pasession
	In Mark the State of Francisco
	Jon, who's been project Basi
	AG SAVOIT TOR SCHOOL
• • • • •	Williams Comment of the party o
	MINING WAR TO THE WAR TO THE TOTAL TO THE TOTAL TO THE TOTAL THE T

Morrison A 16

dons in a anagraph with they or he or she be specially use names the specially use names who you are leaders to know who you are leaders accom made she you can back U) shating with faces

__

~~~

| ·                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Tussia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--|
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | ADVA                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Verb rense                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Present "We study in theliving room!"                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | HIMA DODAY.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Present continuous lue are                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Studying in the living room?                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Past "Ne Stodied in The Living                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | (am)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |  |
| .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Pasa Panagre Inc. Marchine                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | TALL TO THE THE STATE OF THE ST |  |
| ······································                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | FULL WALL BY                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | The same and the s |  |
| out the state of t | William Vac Milliant, MD                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Dresi, Pare                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |  |
| The second secon |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |  |

NVFF Revised and Final Essay

Student's Nam

RUBRIC

CONTENT

Essay is the required length of 5 paragraphs [10] §

Essay has a clear and strong 3rd person voice [5] 4

Essay has a thesis/is detailed and clear/is not ambiguous [20] 10 - Thesis not supported; more summary than argument

Essay has two proper in-text citations [10] ?

Essay has a Works Consulted page or box, properly documented [10] O

FORMAT

Essay is headed properly [5]5

Essay has accurately numbered pages [5] 5

Essay has a creative title and strong opening sentence [5] 4 - Weak title | great first sentence!

MECHANICS

Essay is virtually free of grammar errors! [30] 17 - Let's work on: formality, clarity, Specifics, Some on ollalogue, and comma rules.

S

rewrite thus. We should work together to form strong points to support your thusis. Also, we can pull your final score: 60 grammar journal out and see what we can tweak in your essauletter grade:

Ms. Rounds, Mrs. Mclaughlin

Nightmare and Vision

8 April 2009

ntenus cuss mplex

Nazgul

The Nazgul are the nine former kings who were given right of power. When they had the what do you mean by that? "now work for"? rings they could not stand up to the evil of its powers. They are working with Souron the deciever. The Black Riders are spies for Sauron. They have one goal; to get the ring at any cost.

The Nazgul, also knows as Ring Wraiths, are very intersting characters, they are very the film mysterious and they seem to pop up out of no where. In The Fellowship of the Ring movie the specific spot Sam, Frodo, Merry and Pippin. They confront them and try to take the ring from Frodo. In an effort to try to avoid this, Frodo puts the ring on. He is able to see what the Nazgul looked like when they were kings. As one gets close, it stabs Frodo. The blade that stabbed him was This isn't a strong example made to make its victim surrender to the evil forces. (Fellowship) to prove that they pop up.

After being pierced by the blade, Frodo was in rough condition and was slipping into the shadows. Luckily Aragorn's love, Arwen Evenstactook Frodo on horseback to Rivendell to The House Of Elrond.* Elrond is the "head elf" and has the ability to cure. On the way the riders start gaining on the hobbit and elf. Arwen spots them and does her best to aviod them by swerving. She makes it to the river and successfully crosses. The Nazgul stayed on the other

More of a summary than an argument side. Arwen told them that if they wanted Frodo they had to come and get him. They began to cross but Arwen obliterated them with magic horses made of water. (Fellowship)

"The winged messenger!" Cried Legolas. "One that you cannot slay with arrows" Said

Gandalf. "You only slew his steed. It was a good deed; but the rider was soon horsed again. For he was a Nazgul, one of the nine, who ride now upon winged steeds. "(The Two Towers 106).

This passage from the book explains one of the Black Ridersthat they see. He is on an eagle. He what?

cannot be killed with arrows but the eagle can. It didn't do much but it wasn't a complete waste informal of time. The Nazgul definitely changed it up a bit by flying in order to spy.

The riders are definitely interesting characters. They sort of represent Sauron. They are always out there looking for the one ring to rule them all.

XI. Reflection on Student Work

Student A's writing shows an impressive amount of growth in formal writing. She used the new skills she learned to create a strong, formal essay that showcases her writing abilities. Often during grammar lessons, Student A would be the one and only who had questions about what I was teaching. It is a mix of her drive to succeed and my teaching style that helped her successfully complete this final assignment. She benefited from having the lessons on an overhead projector and listening to me explain how to apply each grammar skill. Her interest in how to improve her writing was obvious to not only me, but to her classmates, as well. She often encouraged her peers to write their grammar journal entries and pay attention. While there is still room for grammar improvement in Student A's writing, it is clear to me that she benefited from the grammar mini-lessons and will continue to benefit from whatever notes she wrote down in her grammar journal during these lessons.

Student B is a strong writer, as well. What holds Student B back from success is his lack of effort, which I believe largely stems from my inability to engage him. Despite my multiple attempts to pass him positive encouragement, Student B continues to do just enough to get by. His final essay grade reflects his inability to follow directions more so than it does his writing. While Student B's writing is strong, his clarity and informality did not change much from preassessment to final assessment. His writing shows how knowledgeable he is, but he doesn't communicate this knowledge in an effective way. It is my opinion that Student B needs more grammar instruction than fifteen-minute-lessons a day. Knowing his personality and tendencies, Student B would likely benefit from grammar lessons that explain a skill and further analyzes that skill's purpose. Student B is curious and interested; while he may have retained some of the skills I taught him, he likely would retain them deeper if he were taught all of the ins and outs of how the skills were important and relevant to his writing.

Student C truly struggles with writing, and this shows in both her pre- and final assessment essays. Her grammar journal entries are the most detailed and complete out of the three. She is engaged, interested, and wants to learn. Yet, Student C's struggles with writing seem to stem from her inability to apply the skills she understands to her actual writing. Student C needs one-on-one help, something that I have offered her on numerous occasions. She would benefit from someone sitting down with her and showing her how each grammar skill applies to her own writing. She is also overwhelmed by formal writing. She has a hard time distinguishing between what kind of vocabulary is considered formal and informal. She refuses to use any kind of documentation in her writing assignments because she doesn't understand how to correctly document sources. Student C feels that her writing abilities are too low level to even try anymore. Her essays show no growth and similar weaknesses because she needs someone to explain to her how to strengthen each area of her writing.

Students A, B, and C are each very different from each other. Both students A and C want to succeed, but Student A learns and applies her knowledge much more easily than Student C. Student B is bright, but chooses to do just enough to be average despite his potential. Each student has shown me what my different roles as a teacher are. Student A gained from my grammar mini-lessons because she was engaged and confident enough to ask questions in front of class. This isn't the case for Student B, who wasn't engaged and didn't care enough to ask questions. He would have cared more if I had directly related each lesson to him. Student C, also, would have grown much more from the grammar mini-lessons if we had the opportunity to work one-on-one to strengthen her writing. I realize that it is my responsibility to make sure I am doing my best to engage each and every student. I must make it clear to every individual that I am available to work with them independently, and I must do this on a daily basis. It is clear to me that I could have reached more students with this unit if I had done a number of things differently.

XII. Reflection on Assessment of Student Learning Project

My Grammar Unit did not meet my expectations; yet, for my first time teaching grammar, I am pleased with the outcome. If I were to teach this unit again, one of the things I would do differently is I would assign more writing during the unit. I would ask student to write me short pieces using the grammar skill that they learned each day. This way, students would be referring to their notes (journal entries) on a daily basis in order to complete their homework. The reason I required students to take notes in a journal to begin with was because I wanted them to have their journals to use as a resource even after they left class.

Another thing I would change about my Grammar Unit is that I would keep the daily lessons consistent. Unfortunately, with the hustle and bustle of student teaching, I neglected to have a grammar lesson each and every day. The students would have gained much more from the Grammar Unit if they had the consistency to rely on each day. Without it, they never knew if they should expect a lesson or not, and they didn't take the unit as seriously as I had hoped.

I would have liked to have taught more requirements/characteristics of MLA documentation. The students would have benefited very much from this, and proper documentation is an important part of understanding the mechanics of writing. I also would have liked for my students to have looked at examples of their own writing in order to understand new grammar skills better. I didn't provide them with enough examples. I feel that many of my grammar lessons may have been more "telling" than "teaching". When using this unit again, I would have students do more analysis of their own writing.

While there is a lot I would like to change about my Grammar Unit, I am happy with the participation I had from the students in my class. Most of the journals are full of detailed notes and, if they choose, this journal is something they can continue to use as a resource. This was my goal to begin with, and even if only two students decide to keep their grammar journals, those are two students who benefited from my first attempt at teaching grammar.