School Song

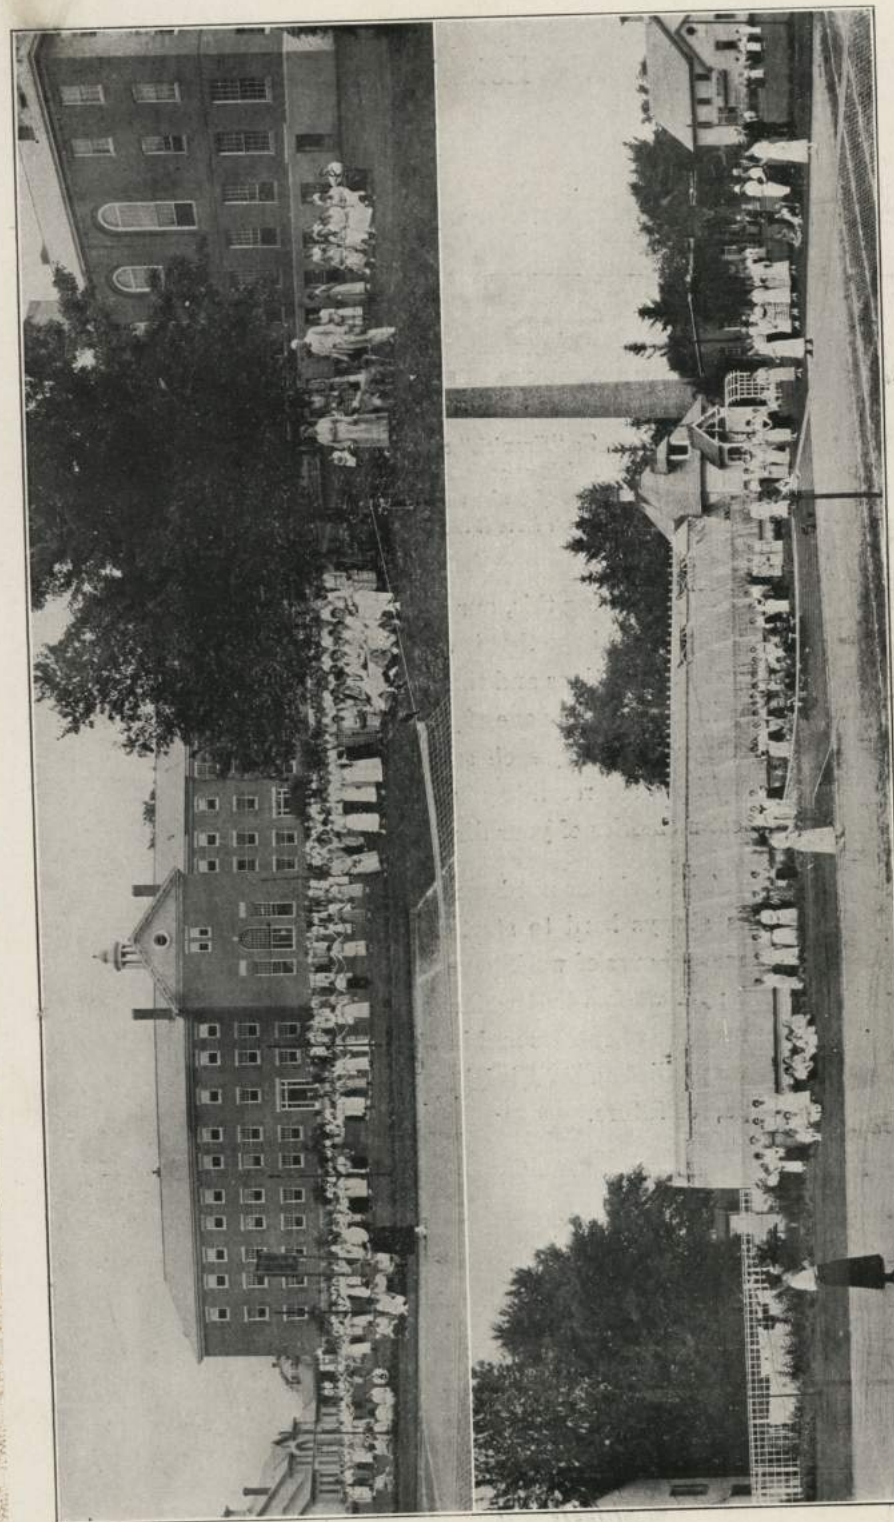

Our Pledge

(Music by Maude M. Howes)

Girls up and fight, fight, fight for old Keene Normal,
Our loyalty proclaim!
In every contest we must strive to conquer,
For there must be no limit to her fame.
Her honor, ever our inspiring genius,
Upon our strength relies,
So let our hearts knit near,
To raise a rousing good cheer;
Victory's laurels be her fadeless prize.

We pledge and prove our faith to Alma Mater,
The debt to her we owe,
We'll recompense with gratitude and service,
Undoubting pride's the only thought we know,
We'll strive to gain the summit whence she beckons,
Our heart's blood throbbing high,
Though perils it involve
We'll make this granite resolve
In protecting her, we'll do or die.

So kindle bright the fires upon her altar,
To burn while time shall last,
In future years it's flame may be the emblem
Of courage, strength and vigor unsurpassed.
She reigns supreme the loved and honored sovereign,
That through our lives shall rule
Unfurl the red and white, the only colors in sight,
As we hail our dear Keene Normal school.

Editorial

*To "Kronicle" events,
Might seem an easy task;
But if you're really wise,
Don't leave it till the last.*

IN presenting this, our first Year Book, to you, we hope that it will fulfil your highest expectations and that in future years it will have become one of your most cherished treasures. May each smiling face and familiar scene recall to you some of the sweetest memories of your life.

The task has not been an easy one, for it is always hard to start a new thing, and many hours of work have been spent upon it; yet we feel that we have achieved some measure of success and in the coming years we predict an even brighter and more prosperous future.

A Tribute to Keene Normal

AIR—"Alford

Hail! hail to old Keene Normal,
Her students gather here;
Their glad voices high they raise,
To praise her name so dear.
Oh ours to love and cherish,
To shield from every shame;
That she may ever higher climb,
To reach the height of fame.

Onward and ever upward,
Hearts always strong and gay;
We'll strive to answer ev'ry test,
Which life may send our way.
Her cherished motto, "Service",
Shall be our guiding light;
With courage, faith and loyalty,
We'll guard the Red and White.

So hail to dear Keene Normal,
May time her name enthrone;
Our lauding voices high we raise,
To claim her as our own.
We'll stand for all things noble,
And live the Golden Rule;
Oh God, bestow Thy blessings rich,
On dear Keene Normal School.

MISS MARJORIE LOIS WEEKS
President Four-Weeks Class

Our Four Weeks at K. N. S.

THERE are so many things that I might write of our four weeks at Keene that I hardly know where to begin, but the Keene spirit comes first, for as soon as we arrived it began to be felt, and became more and more our own. This spirit was evident in the way we were received, in the spirit of comradeship and friendliness shown us by the regular students, and in the way the "Four-Weekers" were always included in the doings of the school; it was manifested in a score of ways, too many to enumerate. As soon as we learned a bit of the ways of the school we decided one and all to meet the regular students at least half way in everything that called for school spirit.

We were kept somewhat busy in the class-room (or rather, assembly hall, for no class-room could accommodate our number), from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. but for the most part the classes, discussions and lectures were made so interesting that time seldom hung heavily on our hands. Our respective classes were conducted by the teachers of different subjects in the regular courses. The four-weeks' students will certainly long cherish memories of those teachers who worked so zealously for them throughout the course, explaining, discussing and advising. These lessons were given in such a way that now that we are in the midst of the hard work of teaching we surely appreciate their practical value.

We were privileged to enjoy to some extent the social life of the school. During the four weeks there were various activities such as fudge parties, "feeds" and socials; there was a Halloween party, the Julius Caesar farce and the faculty minstrel show. We endeavored to do our part, and gave the school a good time two nights before the end of the course.

The K. N. S. spirit was especially manifest when, on our last morning at chapel we were sung on our way, and at supper on the last evening when students and teachers, with evident enthusiasm gave cheers and songs for our benefit. Then, as our train pulled out of Keene, when we looked down on a crowd of cheering, singing students, we again felt the throbbing of the spirit. I am very sure that in the heart of every "Four-Weeker" was deep gratitude that our ways had led us to a school whose students and teachers had given us so much in so short a time.

GAMMA CHAPTER of the Kappa Delta Phi Fraternity, a Normal School organization for men, which has chapters established at Bridgewater and Salem, Mass., Normal Schools, was established at Keene Normal School May 7th, 1921. A degree team from Boston came to Keene to assist in instituting the local chapter.

The Normal School has been the scene of many unusual happenings and many festivities have been held there, but the one Saturday night was an innovation in which only men were concerned. The founder of the Kappa Delta Phi Fraternity was Nahum Leonard, superintendent of schools in this city and a member of Alpha Chapter. He and Franklin Roberts of the Normal School Faculty, a member of Beta Chapter, were instrumental in establishing the chapter in Keene.

The ceremonies of the evening started at 6 o'clock when the visiting degree team from Boston, in charge of Charles J. Fox of Roxbury, Mass., attended a dinner in Parker Hall. Initiations were started at 8 o'clock in Parker Hall and the first degree was of a public nature, the girls of the school being invited to attend. This degree furnished much amusement. The second and third degrees were not public and were held in the Hale Building, which was reserved for the use of the fraternity during the evening. Following the institution of the chapter and pledging of the members to full membership, an invitation dance was given by the girls at the school and the election of officers was left until a later date.

The degree team which came from Boston, was made up of graduate members of the organization. Several other members of the fraternity accompanied the official delegation and enjoyed the proceedings of the evening.

It is expected that the establishment of the chapter may be an inducement for young men to enter the Normal School. The organization has in the past been influential in creating and preserving an interest in teaching and a professional spirit in educational work.

Founded May 1920.

AT the beginning of the school year a reception to the entering class was given. Other social functions for the benefit of the school as a whole have since been conducted by the association. Meetings are held for informal discussion concerning practical religion as it affects individual living.

The Y. W. C. A. Christmas Party

'Twas one night before Christmas, when in Parker Hall,
 Not a girl was attired as if for a ball,
 But the tree on the stage was decked with great care,
 For they hoped that Saint Nicholas soon would be there.
 The first thing on the program was "Big Sister's Dream",
 In which more clever actors had never been seen.
 In a dream Big Sister wished that she had not been
 So selfish with Sister and dear Sunny Jim.
 She begged that the fairies send dolls just the same,
 For to spoil the dears' Christmas would be such a shame.
 She declared she'd been selfish, that it made her feel sad,
 That she would make Christmas for them bright and glad.
 Then across the stage came Saint Nick with a bound,
 Now in that hall did you hear any sound,
 As the gifts he took from the tree with care,
 And quickly he gave them to each one there?
 Some bundles were big, and some of them small,
 Everything was there from elephant to doll.
 The evening ended with a right jolly dance,
 Everyone was happy you could see at a glance;
 And we heard them exclaim as they turned out the light,
 "Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good-night."

—Ruth G. Chisholm, J. H., II.

Dramatics

"The Flag Raising"

THE production of an original four-act play entitled "The Flag Raising", adapted from Mrs. Wiggins' "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm", was the outcome of the class work in dramatization done by the Juniors of C Division. The work was staged on the evening of December 18th, for the entertainment of students, faculty and guests.

The Forum

"THE FORUM" otherwise known as the debating club, was organized in 1919, with Mr. Roberts as Faculty Advisor. The purpose of the club is to provide instruction and practice in debating, the art of public speaking and the uses of parliamentary law. Questions of current interest are debated, and a current event paper is read at the weekly meetings. Last year the public meeting took the form of a mock court trial. This year there will be a mock town meeting. Its practice has been of invaluable service to the members, and much praise is due Mr. Roberts for his interest in the club. Members are admitted upon application and selection by the club.

La Societ  Francaise

"LA SOCIET  FRANCAISE" was established in 1919. Its meetings are held once a month. The purpose of the club is to gain a better appreciation of the manners and customs of the French people of today. Many interesting phases of French life, manners and customs have been portrayed through literary, dramatic and musical entertainments.

The Spanish Club

THE Spanish Club is an organization of distinct worth to the Spanish students. Admission to membership necessitates an average grade mark of 85%. Its purpose is not only to be a means of enjoyment and aid in mastering the language, but also to attain the real atmosphere of Spanish life. At the meetings, held twice a month, the Spanish language is used, Spanish games are played, and the refreshments and the manner of eating all savor of Spain.

On December 11th, 1920, the club produced two short plays, "El Doble Robo" and "Uno de Ellos Debe Casarse". These were given under Mrs. Hawthorne's coaching. Graceful Spanish dancing, songs and musical duets were also features of the entertainment.

The Glee Club

ONE of the principal musical organizations of the school is the Glee Club, consisting of thirty-five girls. Rehearsals are held every Monday evening, at which time, various types of music are taken up and studied, under the leadership of the Supervisor of Music. Miss Hilda Hayward and Miss Madelyn Aldrich of the Music Supervisory Course are the accompanists.

Since its formation, some years ago, the club has frequently been called upon to sing at various club meetings and other social functions in the city. The annual concerts also have been of the highest type and one of the important musical events of the school year.

Free membership in the Keene Chorus Club is given to the out of town girls, affording them an unusual opportunity along musical lines.

A Midnight Scare

"Who is it? Someone's out in the hall. Wake up! Can't you hear them? They are opening our door. Oh! What will they do to us?"

It was midnight. A group of jolly girls crept silently (?) through the corridors singing merrily, "Juniors, Come Out and Play With Us". Doors were thrown open, accompanied by shrieks.

Having aroused everyone in the "dorm," the happy group next visited the Elliot, Marlboro, Shedd and Brick houses.

"Oh! See that flashlight? Someone is outside."

Scared? Indeed they were. Is there anyone who likes to be waked at midnight by wierd sounds? Shaking with fright they peeped through the curtains. Who was it? What was it? The Seniors serenading the Juniors.

Better Speech Week

Slogans

JUNIOR A: "Good English is like good fruit; it must be cultivated."

HOME ECONOMICS II:

"Good, better, best!
Never let it rest
Till you make your English better
And your speech the very best."

HOME ECONOMICS AND HIGH SCHOOL III:

"All hail to 'Better English Week!'
We've had to think before we speak.
It has been hard, but never fear,
Let's keep it up thru all the year."

JUNIOR D: "Aim not for instant perfection in English, but for improvement."

COMMERCE I:

"Our poor Mother Tongue gets sadly abused;
Just think of the words we so often misuse."

MUSIC I: "Stand up for good English and good English will stand up for you."

Better Speech Week at Keene Normal School

IN accordance with the general custom throughout the United States, Better Speech Week was observed at Keene Normal School. Several definite plans were carried out.

First, large posters, designed and painted by members of the art classes, were exhibited in prominent places in the Hale Building, Parker Hall and Fiske Hall. These bore appropriate pictures and inscriptions.

The second part of the plan consisted in recording on tags the errors in grammar and good usage made by the students. These tags were given out in chapel. On one side was a space for errors made; on the other, for errors corrected. The tags were worn conspicuously by the students during Better Speech Week. When one student heard another make a mistake, it was properly recorded by that student as an "error corrected" on his own tag, and as an "error made" on the tag belonging to the other. Each group elected a leader who collected the tags at the end of the week and reckoned the total number of mistakes made and corrected by her group. Also, each group worked out together a suitable slogan about better speech.

The following week the results were announced in chapel, and the slogans were repeated in unison by the various groups.

Winter Fun

Field Day, 1920

EARLY on the morning of June fourteen, there assembled on the campus the classes of '20, '21 and '22. Alive with colors—green, purple, blue and white—jolly with laughter and cheers, the time and place were auspicious. The athletic standing of the respective classes was to be upheld.

The first event was the tug of war set for '20 and '21. How they pulled and tugged; tugged and pulled, until '20 was forced to acknowledge the superior strength of its opponents, and the class of 1921 was declared victorious.

The quoits' honors fell to the class of 1920; these were won by Isabel Robertson. Marguerite Davis for the class of '21, and Grace Gile for '22, aimed straight and true, and were worthy opponents.

The most exciting event of the day was the basket ball game between the teams representing classes '20 and '22, headed by Captains Brian and Dwyer. It was a close game. The excitement ran high and reached its climax when 1920 again carried off the honors.

Then tennis doubles were played, when against the well directed strokes of Jeanette Grover and Marian Gillingham, Thelma Whitney and Mr. Brooks succeeded in winning the game, and to the class of 1921 the honor was awarded. The singles were played by Fredonna Leitch, '20, and Gladys Young, '22. Miss Young won by a narrow margin.

Promptly at two o'clock the base ball game was called. After a most exciting struggle final victory crowned the efforts of 1920. Amusing races followed, after which came the closing event—the volley ball game whose score favored the class of '22.

The final reckoning disclosed the fact that the senior class of 1920 had won the cup and after the usual rousing demonstrations of good will—cheers and snake dances participated in by the various classes—the athletic sports of 1920 were at an end. But the dinner that evening gave opportunity for further celebration. The senior "heroines" drank toast from the cup, there were songs and cheers, and at eight o'clock every member of the school gathered around a rousing bonfire to raise again their ringing songs and cheers. Not until ten o'clock, after dancing, did the festivities cease.

Jane Weeps

WHAT a picture she made as she stood in the tiny bungalow door. Her black hair combed close to her head shone like a raven's wing; her blue eyes sparkled and reflected the blue and white checked apron she wore, while her red lips smiled at the retreating figure going down the white pebbly walk. The figure disappeared and Jane stood for a moment with uplifted arm like a bird poised for flight. With a happy sigh she blew a kiss to the figure which had vanished, to the flowers, the trees, the birds and to the world in general. Jane was happy. She turned and said half aloud as she passed thru the doorway, "It can't last, I know it can't. I've never been so happy before. Why I can almost feel something disappointing is going to happen." And then as she lifted her eyes she saw and remembered her one unhappiness.

Now to any ordinary spectator nothing seemed to be lacking in the tiny kitchen. Everything shone brightly. The boiling kettle reflected the shining black surface of the stove. And the wee yellow canary over the red geranium at the window sang merrily. Jane was conscious of these things, but her gaze was fastened intently upon a row of lamps upon the kitchen table. There they stood in a stately column, the tallest one first and the smallest one last, waiting to be put in readiness for the evening.

Wonderful dreams had Jane not so very long ago of a wonderful house and here it was. The dreams were almost realized—but those lamps! With a sigh of impatience she turned and entered a doorway on the opposite side of the kitchen.

What a marvellous old room greeted her. Surely nothing could be wrong with it. The sun shining brightly thru the small window panes danced lightly on the ceiling and walls and displayed a remarkable collection of old-fashioned furniture and china. The brown painted floor set off the braided rugs which in turn displayed small, round and square tea tables attractively arranged with their flowers and brightly polished silver. Here stood an old, curiously carved buffet and across the room the china closet disclosed exquisite treasures of antique china and glass. One might well have imagined that this was such a tea room as our grandmothers might have had.

It was unique. Jane knew this, but if only there had been electric lights instead of those terrible lamps. She had thoughtfully planned the room, but always had imagined small electric lights for each table. Oh, those lamps! It did look so poor and meager without electricity. Jane wept. What else could she do? For fully five minutes of the precious morning she sobbed bitterly, her hands against her eyes as if to shut out the scene.

Finally, with a sudden movement, she dried her eyes for the last time and giving a long look at the attractive little room turned and fled to the kitchen.

As she hurried about her household duties, her brain worked continually. How could she make it possible to put the lamps away for good? At first there seemed no possible way. The tea room was netting a good little sum every afternoon and evening towards the new auto that Jack might not be obliged to take the early car every morning. Of course,—why hadn't she thought of that before? And Jane stopped short in the middle of the kitchen. "Why not?" she said to herself. "Yes, why not use that money to install the lights now?" No doubt the patrons of the tea room would be twice as many and she could soon return the borrowed money. Thus she reasoned and pacified her conscience.

Without a moment of hesitation Jane walked to the telephone and asked for the General Electric Company. After what seemed ages someone answered.

"Hello! This is Mrs. John Robbins, 425 Park Street, Colebrook, speaking. I would like to have electricity installed in my house here. Yes. When can you come? What's that? Begin today? But you can't finish it? Yes, that will be all right. Yes, ten o'clock. Certainly. Thank you. Good bye."

Jane hung up the receiver and dropped into the nearest chair. Her sense of responsibility overwhelmed her and for a few moments she trembled nervously. But, finally gathering herself together she went about her neglected household duties.

But, oh, how her conscience bothered her. What if the electricians couldn't come after all? What if Jack didn't approve of the plan? What if the customers of the little tea room —? But, no, it couldn't be. No, she was not going to think any more about it. But try as she would little "what ifs" kept coming to her mind all the rest of that eventful day.

Finally the electricians arrived and began their work. Jane explained and described to them the small individual lights she wished for the tables. The work progressed smoothly and by night everything was ready for the fixtures which were to be installed the next day.

As she lit the lamps she said to herself, "Just think, Jane Robbins this is probably the last time you'll ever use these old lamps. My, aren't you glad!" Then she heard Jack's familiar step. For a moment she was panic-stricken but she faced him exclaiming: "Oh, Jack, I've done something awful but it's going to help us. It will take all the auto money, I guess, but I know I'll have enough customers to get it all back soon."

Gradually Jack understood. Perhaps he was disappointed but he didn't say so and Jane was once more at peace with her conscience.

Towards noon the next day the work was finished and the little old-fashioned tea room was open for customers.

The afternoon was bright and sunny. A soft wind made the curtains flutter in the breeze and a calm contentment rested over all. It was an ideal day for a motor ride and before long a car drove up and out stepped two of the little tea room's most frequent guests.

They noticed almost immediately the electric lights but said nothing. The little waitress Jane employed took their order and departed while Jane stood near the door and peeped in at her customers, waiting to hear their comments upon the additional attraction of the tea room. She did not have long to wait.

"Just look," one said, "at these terrible electric lights. It spoils the antique effect. It was so quiet and charming with the mellow glow of the little oil lamps. What ever made her change?" Thus they chatted their disapproval, while just outside the door—Jane wept.

Much Ado About Betty

PLAYS have abounded this year. Probably never before have so many been given. Of the large number of talented players who have given so freely of themselves to our amusement, the Senior group which gave "Much Ado About Betty" on February 23, no doubt leads all. The characters in the cast made a real impression upon the audience which was very enthusiastic over the humorous passages with their intensely dramatic climaxes. The cast of characters was as follows:

Lin Leonard, Betty's one best bet Lillian Henderson
 Major Jartree of Wichita Rose Foley
 Ned O'Hare, a jolly young honeymooner Mary McQuade
 Mr. E. Z. Ostrich, writer of a wonderful picture play
 Mary Gookin
 Dr. McNutt, solid ivory from the neck up Astrid Norling
 Jim Wiles, a high school senior Mary Mulcahy
 Archie, a black bellboy at the Hotel Poinsettia, Albert J. Brooks
 Officer Riley, who always does his duty Helen Ahearn
 Officer Dugan, from the Emerald Isle Catherine Maloney
 Mr. Ebenezer O'Hare, sick man and a submerged tenth
 Marvel Proctor
 Mrs. Ebenezer O'Hare, "Birdie", the other nine-tenths
 Dorothy Colby
 Aunt Vinnie, Betty's chaperone Dorothy Houston
 Lizzie Monahan, Betty's maid, with a vivid imagination
 Edith Carleton
 Ethel Kohler, a high school admirer of Betty Flora Ruiter
 Violet Ostrich, a film favorite, Ned's Bride Marjorie Pagan
 Mrs. K. M. Diggins, guest at Hotel Poinsettia
 Marjorie Cummings
 Daffodil Diggins, her daughter, "Yes, Mama"
 Jane McDonald

Millinery Opening

WHERE but in a shop would you expect to find a millinery opening? Behold hand made and decorated announcement cards sent out by Miss Murphy's Home Economics, II Girls, inviting friends to an "opening" to be held in the sewing-room in Parker Hall. The guests found themselves, upon the appointed day, in an attractive, dainty little shop, evidently enjoying its first "coming out". From their stands on the table hats of many colors, styles and shapes nodded a welcome to the visitors.

They were not ordinary hats either, for besides being artistic and stylish, their covering, trimming and linings would bear inspection. Many visitors admired and exclaimed. Suddenly remembering this was not the opening of a new store uptown, "Are these hats for sale?" some one asked. Upon the negative reply the expression on their faces somewhat resembled that of the small boy who sees something that he wants very much yet knows he cannot have it. You've seen those wistful sidelong glances. The girls served tea, the victrola added its bit, and truly it was a charming affair.

Making Mistakes

WHEN a lawyer makes a mistake, it is just what he wanted; because he has a chance to try the case all over again.

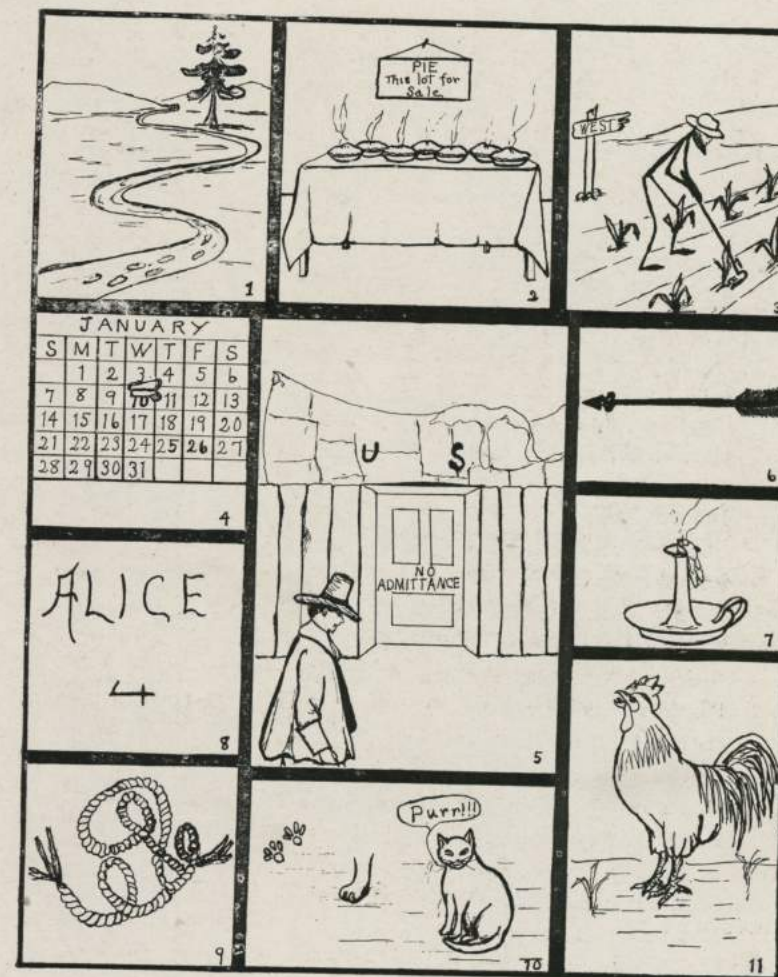

When a doctor makes a mistake; he buries it.

When a preacher makes a mistake; nobody notices it.

When a judge makes a mistake; it becomes the law of the land.

When a plumber makes a mistake; he charges twice for it.

But when a K. N. S. girl makes a mistake—"lack of responsibility." ! ? * † ?
