'Mutual concerns':

Future development plans for KSC

Dave Tranchida
Equinox Staff

Keene State College is an integral part of the community of Keene. It is centrally located in the city and generates much revenue for the business sector of the community. The cultural impact of a college on a community is immeasurable and obviously beneficial to any city today.

The relationship between the city fathers and the college officials is presently one of openness and cooperation.

These were the views of City Planner Jerry McCullough, college President Leo F. Redfern and Director of Physical Plant of the college, Robert L. Mallat.

When each considered the question of an existing 'problem' between the city and school, the general reply was that there is not any particular 'problem' but rather a "mutual concern" as President

Redfern put it.

As a result of the college being an integral part of the community and its central location with regards to the city, KSC generates $8 million worth of business to the Keene area, according to a study compiled by Peter Parker, Professor of Social Science.

The "mutual concern" of the city and college have pertained to the future development of both.

It is the job of McCullough to plan for the future development of the city of Keene and it is the job of college officials to plan for the future development of the college. The two groups must work together to insure that adequate facilities are provided for both along with trying to maintain the quaintness of the city. This last point does present a bit of a problem however.

According to McCullough, the

Trustee Bill now faces round two

A bill which would give N.H. campus students an elected, representative trustee now faces round two in the N.H. legislature this week. Hb 236, the student trustee bill which passes both houses of state government, was returned to the Senate with an amendment drawn up by Governor Meldrim Thomson. According to Steven Cunningham, the "Thomson Compromise," as it's called by Students for the University System, was approved by Trustee Bill co-sponsor Leo Lessard (D) of Dover over the weekend.

The amendment, if accepted, would allow the three state campuses (UNH, Keene State, and Plymouth State), on a rotating basis to nominate five candidates for the trustee position. The governor would then make the final selection from the nominees. The compromise also included a stipulation that at least two of those candidates must be graduates of N.H. high schools. The bill as originally stated, gave full responsibility of appointing the trustee to the respective student bodies.

Since the Thomson recommendation, the ad hoc committees of UNH, KSC, and PSC have struggled to come to a majority stand. Debbie Child, committee member, said the disagreement was resolved late Monday afternoon after a hectic weekend of long distance phone calls and persuasive rationale.

Activity fee raised by Selectmen

Kevin Landrigan
Equinox Staff

The board of Selectmen have good news for the student organizations, but bad news for the KSC student. First, there's the bad news...

At the board meeting Monday night, the selectmen passed a recommendation to the student body to raise the student activity fee $3.00 per student. Debbie Child, the board's treasurer, estimated that $7,200. could be added to the student activity contingency with the increase.

But student activities proposals passed through the third leg of funding process with the selectmen's approval of the budgets.

"I feel the caliber of student activities will go down unless we raise the fee," Child said. "The Finance Committee has cut the budgets down to the bare-bones and we still are $5,000 in the red."

Edward R. MacKay, director of student activities and adviser to the board, didn't see a need for the increase. MacKay argued the board needed only a 5% contingency fund. Child had promised President Redfern earlier the board would provide for a 10% contingency.

There was also the fear that should a large contingency not be instated, the final student body meeting would include "outrageous" amendments to the budgets by the organizations.

Faculty attitudes:

Summer sessions replace January interim

Pam Penenberg
Equinox Staff

"I think it's lovely," Michael D. Keller head of the History Department, said about the adoption of the two summer sessions to be incorporated during the academic year of 1977-78.

Similar responses have been heard on the matter. The consensus is "let's try it and see what happens."

The proposal to adopt a two summer session as opposed to one six week January interim came out of the Admissions and Standards Committee of the College Senate, William S. Felton, chairman. Enrollment seemed to warrant a replacement to the January interim.

"The January interim was basically unsuccessful," Felton said. "It never should have been institutionalized in an institution of this sort. In order for it to continue, there would have to be a boost in tuition to operate facilities for one extra month in the winter. This type of program is more possible in a private institution where the students are more affluent. In many places, a January term is mandatory as a part of the regular schedule. Here it is not and I don't think it could be made so. The majority of students are left at loose ends with what to do during the six weeks in the winter. The January interim only catered to a few. Overall, the January interim was unadvisable. Enrollment was low. The term was inconvenient to both faculty and students."

The January interim only involved 15% of the faculty and 10% of the total student population, Felton said. The second year was more successful than the first student wise due to better publicity. While the number of students enrolled in the program rose, however, the percentage of student population was lower. There were 100 more students added to the total population than the previous year.

"Now to a more productive experience," Felton said.

The calendar adopted for the academic year 1977-78 is basically identical to the calendar of 1969-70.

KSC plans for stadium and tennis courts in future

city agrees the college must expand its present physical plant and the city welcomes the development. Development will bring cultural as well as other forms of entertainment provided for the city by the college.

Anyone affiliated at all with Keene State easily recognizes the need for development of the physical plant.

Aside from the problem of the school receiving less than adequate funds from the legislature for building purposes, is the problem of where to put the buildings when the money is allocated.

This is the problem currently facing the city of Keene and the college.

In the immediate future plans of the college, concerning building, is the construction of a Liberal Arts building. The sight has already been acquired by the school and blueprints for the building have been formulated. The only thing pending is funds for construction costs which hopefully will come from the State Legislature in June.

Presently the College has plans

Leo F. Redfern, President to put the Liberal Arts building behind the married students housing which means it will be bordering a few homes on the west side of Main Street.

McCullough and the city planners feel this could lead to a degrading of the neighborhood in that area and therefore detract from the beauty of Main Street when looking south toward the square and center of town.

McCullough is also concerned about the parking facilities for the building and the increase of traffic in the area.

In the long-range plans of the school an athletic field, field house and tennis courts are proposed for the same general area. The stadium and field house, in the preliminary master plan of the college, are to be built at the corner of Main and Route 12 but behind the existing homes on Main Street. These additions plus a tennis court in the same area will not be built for at least another 20-30 years according to college officials.

McCullough said he would prefer it if the college didn't expand in a south-easterly direction (towards route 12 and Main St.) but rather in a north-westerly direction where he feels the neighborhoods have deteriorated as a result of their location near the college. McCullough sited the block consisting of Winchester St., Wilson, Davis and Ralston Streets as a prime spot for the college to consider moving to.

Redfern said it was foolish for the school to build Monadnock and Randall Halls across Winchester in the first place and that he would prefer to avoid building across the street again.

Because of state law, the City Planning Board has no direct power over the college's master plan according to Mallat but in order to maintain good relations between the two there should be as much agreement as possible before adopting a master plan for the school.

The master plan of the school will be presented to the Long Range Master Planning Council of the Board of Trustees for suggestions and will then be brought before the full board for final recommendations and approval Mallat said. Then the city will be able to plan for development with the knowledge of what the school plans are.

This last point is imperative to both the city of Keene and the college if the two are to grow together and serve to complement each other.

For anyone interested in seeing the colleges proposed master plan there will be an open meeting in the Science building April 13, at 7:30. Redfern said the meeting will be open to questions and suggestions concerning the plan.

Bill faces compromise by Governor Thomson

Committee members Steve Cunningham, Debbie Child, and John Trabucco revealed the confusing course of events which led to systems approval of the compromise.

"UNH and Plymouth chapters are firmly opposed to the compromise. They will refuse to accept anything short of a student body election for the trustee," Greg Scott, coordinator of the students committees commented Monday morning.

At that time, the Keene chapter was willing to accept a majority decision on the compromise.

"In general, our committee is compromise. But prior to the agreement, Cunningham had a warning for his colleagues.

"I think the governor is setting a trip up for us. Thomson will welcome a defeat of his compromise. Then, when the original bill is passed back to him, the governor will say he gave the students a chance to compromise, but they refused. This will influence many legislators not to vote to override Thomson's veto. I see no other safe course, but to accept the governor's amendment," Cunningham said.

Apparently, UNH and PSC were influenced by such logic. At 5 p.m. Monday, the two committees accepted support of the compromise.

'We feel the Governor is making a concession toward our thinking' behind the amendment," Cunningham said. "We feel the governor is making a concession toward our thinking, not vice versa."

Cunningham added that the three committees are working on other legislation, including the drinking age bill and the Bi-annual University System Budget Appropriation. The chairman felt the KSC committee must coincide with Plymouth and Durham, "or the overall effort will breakdown." So until UNH and PSC conceded, Keene State was prepared to fight the Debbie Child said the decision came about due to the persuasive efforts of legislator Terry Wiggins.

The next step in this political process is a return trip to the Governor's desk. It's safe to say that all parties concerned are anxious for a result.

The Students for the University System of N.H. announced their support of the Thomson Compromise. Both UNH and Plymouth branches were opposed to any compromise until late Monday.

Yes, there will be a concert

The answer is "yes." Keene State will have a concert on Spring Weekend.

The Student Activities Council (SAC) received word that the Pousette Dart Band will play at KSC on Thursday, April 21. According to Greg Noyes, SAC president, the band will perform two shows at 7:30 and 10 p.m. in the Mable Brown Room of the Student Union.

Ticket prices will be $2 for KSC students, $4 for non-students, and $4 for everyone the day of the concert. The tickets will be on sale after Friday, April 8 in the SAC office and in the Dining Commons, Noyes said. SAC expects to lose $1000 on the concert since the cost is about $4000 and the expected proceeds are $3000.

The Pousette Dart Band will send albums to KSC for publicity purposes. They will be releasing a single at about the time of the concert, so the KSC audience will be among the first to hear it.

Walter Asonevich, publicity chairman of SAC, had some words of caution for ticket buyers.

"I hope the Bonnie Raitt concert serves as a warning and Keene State students will think to pick up their tickets early. We only have about 1100 tickets to sell and at $2 a seat they're bound to go fast," he said.

Two more bands have been scheduled for Spring Weekend. The Blend will appear Friday, April 22 at 9 p.m. The site has not been decided.

A concert featuring the KSC jazz Ensemble and the Arwen Mountain String Band will take place between Elliot Hall and the library. The string band is sponsored by WKNH which provided $200 toward the cost. SAC decided to contribute $300 to help WKNH meet the cost of the payment.

Musical entertainment for the Mardi Gras celebration will be provided by the group Flyer. Their performance will take place behind Carle Hall on Saturday, April 23 from noon to 5 p.m. Locomotion Circus will perform between sets. According to Greg Noyes, they consist of "three foot nine-inch giants." They are considered giants because the average height of their race is three feet. Magic, acrobatics and juggling are in their repertoire. They will even conduct juggling seminars for all interested spectators.

A bit of levity will be provided by the Mr. KSC contest sponsored by Huntress Hall. Noyes said it will be basically a Miss America contest with a few added things thrown in. Categories include bubble gum blowing, bathing suit, beer chugging, question and talent competitions. All potential contestants should report to the Mable Brown Room in the Student Union from 7 to 9 p.m. on Friday, April 22.

An ice cream-eating contest will be held at 1 p.m. on Sunday, April 24 at MacKenzie's Ice Cream Parlor. All student organizations wishing to enter should select one of their members and submit their name to SAC by April 15. Six contestants will be picked out of a hat from them.

The Soleil laser light show, which won acclaim recently in New York, will take place in the Spaulding Gymnasium at 9, 10, and 11 p.m. on Sunday, April 24. The show consists of red, blue and green laser beams. Two-dimensional images will appear and disappear on the walls and ceiling. The visual effects will be complemented by a musical soundtrack, with sounds ranging from raindrops and flutes to heartbeats. General admission is $1 and free for KSC students. The light show should provide a bizarre and spectacular ending to Spring Weekend 1977.

Interviews begin for seniors

Seniors seeking teaching positions in secondary English and social science, and in elementary education have an opportunity to schedule an interview on Thursday, April 14th, at KSC, Mr. Peter G. Dolloff, Superintendent of Schools, Supervisory Union Number 27, Hudson, N.H., will be conducting interviews at Elliot Hall.

Qualified seniors wishing to be candidates for the above positions should contact the Career Counseling and Placement Office in person to schedule an interview, before 1 p.m. on Tuesday, April 12th. It is important that candidates have registered completed and up-to-date placement files with the Placement Office at Elliot Hall before interviewing.

Marijuana bill defeated

The bill to decriminalize the use of marijuana was defeated in the N.H. House last week by a vote of 205 to 167.

Steve Cunningham, chairman of the KSC students for the University System, said he was not terribly surprised at the outcome of the vote. He said that opposition from police chiefs throughout the state and pressure from the Manchester Union Leader were major reasons for the defeat.

According to Terry L. Wiggin, Democrat from Ward Three in Keene, the bill was defeated due to a lack of understanding of the legislation.

"There was much confusion between the terms 'decriminalization' and 'legalization,'" he said.

Wiggin was a co-sponsor of the bill and was disappointed in the outcome. He also said that it was disappointing to see such a lack of understanding among the people who make the laws concerning such an important issue.

William F. Lynch, Democrat from Ward One in Keene said it was hypocritical for a state to promote alcohol for tax revenue purposes while at the same time keeping strict marijuana laws. Penalty for the use of pot under the defeated bill was not dramatically different than current penalties, Lynch added.

Nurses sponsor workshop

The extra number of nursing students on campus last Thursday was not due to a spring fever epidemic.

The students were attending the annual Spring Workshop of the Student Nurses Association of New Hampshire. This year Cheshire Hospital School of Nursing's students hosted the workshop in the Mabel Brown Room.

Laura Reynolds, RN, spoke to more than 75 students on psychiatric nursing. Reynolds is Director of Nurses at New Hampshire Hospital.

Helen Archer, director of the National Student Nurses Association, at the University of Pennsylvania spoke to the group on community health projects.

The nursing students, all attending nursing schools in the Granite State, participated in discussion groups sharing the experiences they have gained through a nursing education.

RA Selection process continues

Group RA in the RA selection process will have an Administration Orientation, April 11 from 8-10 p.m., in Randall Lounge.

The purpose of this meeting is to better relations between prospective R.A.'s and administration. Refreshments will be served.

Enrollment increase expected

The total enrollment at KSC this September is expected to increase just slightly from last September's. This fall's freshman class is also expected to number about the same as last fall's according to Admissions Director John J. Cunningham.

The number of matriculated students is expected to be about 2789, up 2 percent from last year's figure of 2738.

Cunningham said as of March 1, 1977, admit letters have been sent out to 891 freshmen, 80 transfers, and 3 re-admits. Of the 891 freshmen, 298 are in state and 543 are out of state. The transfers number 50 out of state and 30 in state. As for the re-admits, they include 2 in-staters and 1 out of-stater.

because the number of them admitted is restricted and the advised application deadline is March 1, though Keene State operates on a rolling admissions program. In-staters are also advised to apply by March 1, but Cunningham said, "We guarantee admission to any New Hampshire student who has accumulated an average or better record in a high school college preparatory program, provided he is recommended by his counselor." As a result, New Hampshire applicants will be considered right through the summer.

In addition transfers are advised to apply by July 1, according to the College Catalog.

Thus the number of in-staters admitted will increase, and in September the freshman enrollment will be about 60% in state and 40% out of state. The transfer enrollment is expected to be about equally divided according to Cunningham.

Finally, Cunningham said the growth in enrollment is based on long range plans and budgetary expectations and if more out-of-state students had to be admitted because of budgetary problems it wouldn't be at the expense of the number of in-state students admitted.

Law conference planned

A free conference on "New Hampshire Women and the Law," sponsored by the New Hampshire Civil Liberties Union, will be held April 16, at New England College in Henniker N.H.

The conference, entitled "Tools For Tomorrow," will run all day with registration beginning at 9 a.m. Workshops will follow at 9:30, covering such topics as divorce, day care, equal rights, education and women in state institutions.

The day will conclude at 8 p.m.

with a lecture by Karen DeCrow, noted author on the women's movement, who will summarize the days workshops and deliver a major address.

All KSC women who plan to enter the law field are recommended to attend. Free day care will be provided and lunch can be bought in the New England College Cafeteria for those who pre-register. City might help KSC to renovate tennis courts

John Kyrle
Equinox Staff

A gleam in his eye and a smile from ear to ear. Tennis Coach Ted Kehr was obviously happy.

He said an agreement between KSC and the city of Keene to renovate KSC's dilapidated tennis courts was signed this week by Leo Redfern, president of the college and sent to the Keene Department of Parks and Recreation.

Robert L. Mallat, director of physical plant, said the agreement, if fully funded, would provide for the complete renovation of the courts behind Rhodes Hall and in front of Huntress Hall.

Arthur Jones, director of the Keene Department of Parks and Recreation, said he has received the agreement and is ready to act. Jones said he will send the agreement to the city attorney for review and then on to the city council for approval. If the council approves, and Jones expects they will, he will then draw up a grant request for the city's share of the funds. The grant request would go to the state government for review and then to the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation in Philadelphia for final approval and allocation of funds.

Mallat said the agreement is a joint endeavor by the city and the college. If the full amount requested by the city is granted, then KSC would try to provide matching funds. If KSC couldn't match the funds, they would try to match half the amount of the grant and only be able to repair the courts in front of Huntress Hall.

Coach Kehr is hoping for the full amount.

"Those courts behind Rhodes Hall are unbelievable. When you play on those courts and call a fault, it isn't a tennis term, it's a geological fault," Kehr said.

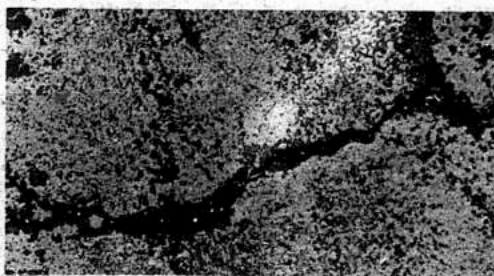

"On a campus with 2400 students, four courts just aren't enough. The demand is too great. The tennis team ties up the courts three hours a day in practice and the rest of the day only eight people at a time can play," Kehr said. "And you really can't play a game on those courts behind Rhodes," he added.

"These renovations, if they are done, will certainly be a great improvement, but what we really need is about a half dozen new courts," Kehr said.

Mallat said there has been discussion of building some new courts, but there won't be any immediate action on it. Concentration is now on the renovation project.

Kehr said the renovations, if funded, would begin by giving the courts a thorough cleaning and then filling all cracks and holes with a sealer. Once this is done, a new surface would be laid, allowed to dry, and then the final surface would be put down. Kehr said the whole process takes about four days.

But, as of now, the whole thing depends on the Keene City Council and then, hopefully, the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation. If the funds come through, bids will be solicited, a contractor chosen, and the work begun. But, right now, the ball is in their court.

Kehr: "I've enjoyed my seven years here."

Kehr Leaving-- accepts Guard post

"Leaving higher education is probably the hardest decision I ever had to make," Ted W. Kehr, member of KSC's Physical Education faculty said.

Kehr is resigning from Keene State as of July 1 and will be accepting a full-time position in the New Hampshire National Guard in Concord.

"I enjoy what I do here - that's why the decision was so hard to make. But this position is an opportunity for professional and personal development and I had to come to grips with myself and make a decision," Kehr said.

Kehr's position will consist of personnel work coordinating full-time technicians in the Air and Army National Guard.

"My job will be to coordinate all activities, training, labor negotiations and budgeting. I've been a part-time officer in the National Guard for 14 years so the job isn't foreign to me," Kehr said.

Kehr's position is initially a one-year appointment. He said he hopes that the opportunity will present itself to continue.

Kehr is currently KSC's tennis coach and assistant basketball coach. Last year he received tenure.

"People ask me why I'd want to give all this up. I ask myself that too. I've enjoyed my seven years here, and I'm really going to miss it," Kehr said.

Yes, the last song seemed quite appropriate. After spending 28 hours on the dance floor, the sixteen remaining contestants in last weekend's dance marathon looked ready to just "lay around the shanty and put a good buzz on."

The dancing began at 7 p.m. on Friday evening and ran straight through until 2 a.m. Sunday morning. The contestants danced during four hour sets, with a half-hour break between each set.

By Saturday morning, the Mabel Brown Room smelled more like a hospital than an auditorium. The strong odor of Ben Gay ointment, used by the dancers for their aching muscles, was the first thing one noticed upon entering.

The marathon, sponsored by SAC, WKNE, and Interface Sound, was held for the purpose of raising money to help fight multiple sclerosis. MS is a neurological disease which distorts or blocks nerve impulses which control such functions as walking, talking and seeing.

According to Pauline Corsini, student coordinator of the marathon, the dance probably netted $3000 to $3500 for MS.

A portion of this money will go directly to research grants to help find the cause and cure of MS. The rest will go toward patient services. These services include the provision of walkers, wheelchairs and physical therapy treatments.

The dancers, while extremely tired, seemed pretty satisfied with the marathon.

Sylvia Corley, a junior from Simsbury, Ct., said, "I'm pretty sore right now. I had a good time doing it but I'm glad its over with. I did lose five pounds though."

Dancing on the hard floor got to everyone's feet after awhile. At times, many contestants chose to dance on the soft cushioned seats in the Brown Room because their feet had become so sore. They also got some relief when they were allowed to dance outside for awhile on the soft grass.

Others found themselves losing their voices in the early morning hours on Saturday. Some needed Tums for their upset stomachs after eating free food provided by MacDonalds.

"There was no time for it to digest," said one contestant.

Lou Bolster, a sophomore from Wayland, Mass., said "you really had to concentrate on what you were doing at all times. You had to remember to keep your feet moving.

Bolster, whom many will remember for the tuxedo he wore at the end of the marathon, was the only contestant to put Transcendental Meditation to use.

"During the break I would meditate for about fifteen minutes. It made the half-hour seem much more relaxing," he said.

"At the very end, the emotion just poured out of everyone. There was a lot of satisfaction, both with ourselves and everyone else. The big crowd was great," Bolster added.

WKNE opened the event with a live broadcast for the first three hours. After that three WKNE disc jockies, George Edwards, Rick Taft and Tim Smith, had a marathon of their own by staying for twenty hours spinning records.

Medical supplies such as Ben Gay, footspray, Tums and Chapstick were donated by Medical Hall. The sound system was supplied by Interface.

First prize, which goes to the couple that collects the most money, is the choice of either a $200 scholarship each or a trip for two to Montreal each.

Second place finishers will receive a Seiko watch, valued at $115, both of which were donated by Simons Jewelers. All other contestants will receive prizes also.

Those contestants that made it the full 28 hours were: Sandra Barakis, Chuck Mahony, Sylvia Corley, Louis Bolster, Alphonse Fredette, Leslie Houston, Michael McKnight, Susan Fitzgerald, John Thaute, Beth Monick, Gail Grafton, Bill Bristol, Timothy Dion, Cindy Lupien, Linda Pawlowaki and Marty Towle.

Prizes will be awarded as soon as all the pledges are collected.

Slide show features students

A free show is always a good thing, and if you're in it, it's even better. The Brown Room of the Student Union will be the scene for two slide shows on KSC Thursday, April 7, from 12:30 to 2 p.m.

The shows, "KSC Services" and "Look into the Future," are two slide-show portraits of KSC, with dialogue and musical backgrounds. They were produced by Edgar Bernstein, director, of the Media Center, as an orientation aid to incoming students. Bernstein described "KSC Services" as a straightforward description of services available on campus, such as financial aids and career planning, while "Look into the Future" is a more free-form approach.

The shows were made simultaneously between May 1 and July 1 of last year. About 2500 slides and 30 hours of taped interviews were edited into two shows of 450 slides and one half hour each. Bernstein was assisted by students, among them Daniel Conrad and Bruce Donnelly. Bernstein said he walked around campus and asked people at random for pictures and comments. It was a tight schedule to work under but, as he said, "I knew what I had to get and I got it."

Both shows utilize a six-projector set-up which shows a triple image. Bernstein praised the cooperation of the maintenance staff in assembling and adjusting the scaffold used as a base for the projection equipment.

Bernstein came to KSC four years ago from Boston University with a degree in Education Media.

Somehow students resist warm weather's call

Sean Cummings
Equinox Staff

When you're relaxing on a sunny, warm Friday afternoon and your four o'clock class draws near, a certain logic pervades the mind. "Everyone else in their right mind is skipping the class, so why shouldn't I?" True enough. But some professors on campus think this logic doesn't control the student.

Some random questioning of professors resulted in like conclusions on student attrition. Although the warm, spring days haven't been too numerous yet, most professors find no shocking rise in attrition during warmer weather. Students in higher level courses rarely cut classes, regardless of weather.

History Prof. Richard Scaramelli notices no marked decrease in attendance due to desirable weather, with the possible exception of a Friday before vacation. He takes no attendance, but admits, "Obviously there is a percentage that drops out of sight." He emphasized the good rapport he developed with a lower level course last year; a looseness that stimulated interest and resulted in superlative attendance. Occasionally Scaramelli receives requests for holding classes outside which usually prove too distracting.

In the Physical Education Department, Glen Theulen does take attendance for the only two courses he teaches; two high level courses. He also notices the absences on Fridays before vacation, though experiences little attrition regularly. He said students of higher level courses attend regardless of weather, probably due to a genuine interest in the course. Dr. Frederic Layman of the Geology Department also confirmed this logic that students rarely skip an upper level course that is involved with their major. Dr. Layman no longer takes attendance, but can notice empty seats on a lovely Friday afternoon. He points out that advanced courses usually have fewer students and "in a class of ten you're aware when someone is missing."

Prof. David Leinster also experiences fine attendance in his history classes. Any skipping that does occur is usually evident in lower level courses during the afternoon. He emphasizes maturity as the motivational factor which overcomes the urge to skip classes. Attrition tends to afflict upper classmen less because they have developed "a more vital interest in history. This interest proves to be a product of maturity."

So when the next period of beautiful weather strikes and everyone is talking about the classes they're supposed to be in, remember this. Either they're lying to you or they're more motivated than you thought. And as that final class draws near, forget these words of Prof. Scaramelli. "The temptation is always present."

Euripedes 'Trojan Women' April 13-16

"Trojan Women" will be presented at KSC April 13-16. Under the direction of Edith Notman, theatre director and assistant professor of English, the Greek drama will begin at 8:20 each evening in Drinan Auditorium.

The Greek tragedies and comedies, religious in origin, were part of a civic festival which occurred every spring in honor of the god Dionysus.

"The plays were entered in contests by playwrights who had been invited to submit them. The three best groupings of four plays were presented and judged and then somebody won a prize," Notman said.

Notman is planning on a very minimal set and costumes that will be simple and Greek. The theatre director views her presentation of the first, great anti-war play as an "attempt to do something unusual in the theatre." The Chorus sections, basically dance pieces, will be fully choreographed. Alta-Lu Townes, English department lecturer and dance instructor at KSC, has been working with the chorus teaching them the dance movements.

Notman said she chose Euripedes' play because Greek plays are very seldom seen around here.

"They are the foundation stone of our theatre and it is good to look at the foundation once in a while," she said.

Notman's original plan had been to do "Oedipus Rex," but she decided on "Trojan Women" because of its large chorus of women.

"There were enough talented women around so it would have been a shame not to do it," Notman said.

"The Trojan Women" cast

includes: Tom Travers (junior, Troy, N.H.) as Poseidon, Jean Proulx (freshman, Salem, N.H.) as Athena, Nancy Coutts (English instructor) as Hecuba, Pam Sanderson (junior, Concord, N.H.) as Cassandra, Rebecca Johanson-Hurst (Peterborough, N.H.) as Andromache, Tommy Durnford (Alstead, N.H.) as Astyanax, Kathy Mitchell (sophomore, Derry, N.H.) as Helen, Brian Tewksbury (sophomore, Charlestown, N.H.) as Menelaus, and

Exchange students arrive

Arriving today from Bishop Lonsdale College in Mickleover, Derbyshire, England, are fifteen British students accompanied by Mr. Norman Evans, the principal of the college. The students are participants in the on-going six-week exchange program with KSC's Education Department, coordinated on campus by Robert C. Andrews, Associate Professor of Industrial Education. While living with host families in the Greater Keene community, the first four weeks of the visit will be spent visiting local schools; attending seminars, classes and social events at the college; and travelling to Boston, Concord, the White Mountains, and Old Sturbridge Village. During the final two weeks of the program, they will be travelling independently throughout various parts of the United States.

Mr. Keene State who will it be?

An attempt to determine who is Mr. Big at Keene State College is already underway as posters spread over the KSC campus announce that it is time to nominate candidates for the Mr. KSC Contest to be held during Spring Weekend.

Contestants will participate in five stages of competition including: bubble-blowing, talent, beer chugging, bathing suit, and questions. Five judges chosen from the faculty and staff of Keene State will have the task of selecting Mr. KSC.

Entries for the Mr. KSC competition should be submitted no later than Monday, April 8, in the Social Activities Council Office, Student Union Building, second floor.

"I see advantages to the summer session program" - Battenfeld

David H. Battenfeld, chairman of the English Department cites why he feels the January interim was unsuccessful.

"There was not enough backing of the program for success. The Keene State program was not competitive with the program which is less expensive. There are similar courses offerings but Plymouth is subsidized more. There was poor publicity, not the fault of Shirley Keddy (director of College Information Office) but due to the funding of publicity. There was also no commitment to success. A lot of students did not want to attend the program. I wish it had gotten a better chance for success."

David P. Gregory, professor of science, taught over the January interim.

"The January interim was not successful in attracting enough students. Students want the standard courses, not the experimental courses. The new summer sessions will offer both. I hope there will be enough students to take advantage of the program. I we can get 500-1000 students, it will be a success."

Over one half of the courses offered during the last January term were cancelled before they began due to lack of enrollment, Gregory said.

Felton expects a larger turnout for the first session than for the second session because the first session ends in June and leaves a major part of the summer remaining. Both Gregory and Battenfeld agree.

"We'll only know when we try it out," Felton said.

"I see advantages to the summer session program," Battenfeld said.

"There is much flexibility. There can be some three week experimental courses. There is not the confines of six week blocks. There will not only be standard courses offered. The Board of Trustees is pushing for year round operation in the University System. Theoretically, a student could take two years of summer sessions in addition to the academic year and graduate a year early."

Gregory said the courses have to be aimed at the students who will attend.

"I would think that students would jump at some of the courses to be offered," he said. "I hope it is a success."

Both Gregory and Battenfeld said a summer session should be required by each student as part of the mandatory requirements for graduation.

Gregory said this is the only way it is going to work.

Battenfeld suggest the requirement if enrollment in the summer sessions is low to "guarantee contract success."

"This will utilize the campus facilities to the fullest with year round operation. There is a similar program at Dartmouth," Battenfeld said.

"I hope it works it's not such a far out idea," Battenfeld said.

"We'll only know when we try it out. But I'm hopeful," Felton said.

"I don't see why there would be more motivation. But I certainly hope so," Gregory said.

Many are hopeful for a successful summer session for the academic year 1977-78. Enrollment in the program will be the determining factor.

"Those students who participated in the January interim got a lot out of it. I really enjoyed it," Gregory said.

This is the second in a series of three articles concerning the loss of the January interim and the adoption of two summer sessions. The next article will concern student attitudes on the subject.

"Workman" coming to KSC

The Hartford Stage Company Touring Theatre will present "Workman! Whoever You Are..." at the Mabel Brown Room of the Student Union at Keene State on Monday, April 11, at 8:00 p.m.

Compiled by the company, this documentary drama about working America was inspired by Studs Terkel's brilliant bestseller Working, from which many of the speeches and real-life characters were taken. Walt Whitman's Carol of Occupations provides a frame for the work.

Performers take on 35 characterizations during the 40-minute presentation. A newsboy, press agent, steelworker, gravedigger, housewife, and a corporation executive are heard as they go about their daily work. Their insights are funny, sad, sometimes tragic, and often uplifting. As Terkel puts it, these are people who "perform astonishingly to survive the day."

The Hartford Stage Company Touring Theatre has carried a wide variety of documentary dramas and children's productions to schools, civic and church groups throughout southern New England. They perform for over 60,000 people annually.

Board needs surplus funds

"I have a lot of faith that the student body meeting wouldn't be chaotic. If so, I'll recommend to the President that he exercise his authority and alter the budgets himself," MacKay responded.

Vice-Chairman Lindsey Pinkham spoke in favor of the contingency increase for a different reason. Pinkham said the board needed a large supply of surplus funds to "protect ourselves from large budgetary cuts by the President."

After 20 minutes of heated discussion, the board motioned to vote. The final tally was 8-1 in favor of the $3.00 increase. Constitution chairman Rick Bouchard was the sole dissenting selectmen.

On a more positive side, the board passed every recommendation on the activity budgets made by the finance committee. The selectmen failed to aid any increases until the student body voted on the student activity fee raise. The board of selectmen voted to call an emergency student body meeting for next Tuesday in the Waltz lecture hall at 7 p.m. The board's recommendation on the activity raise will be the main topic for debate.

Barnes' books are a bargain

What a bargain.

In an attempt to rid the Mason Library of duplicate, gift and old, torn and mutilated books, a book sale was held last Wednesday. A total of $255.60 was achieved which will be placed in the library fund to buy new books.

Paperback books were sold for ten cents a piece and hard cover books were sold for fifty cents a piece.

About half of the 3,000 books were sold according to Chris Barnes, head librarian. The remainder were sent to a bookdealer, The Homestead Press in Marlborough.

The sale ran from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. After 3 p.m., the doors were closed and persons were permitted to come and just take what they wanted.

Barnes was pleased by the large turnout. It was a good opportunity for people to start their own collections, Barnes said.

Barnes plans to have more book sales in the future, but not for two or three years. It takes a while to build a collection of this sort and until then, the library will hold on to what it has.

Clark attends Nationals

The Women's National Ski Championships were held on March 10-12 at Stowe, Vermont. Lauren Clark from Keene State was there along with 17 teams including teams from as far away as Alaska and Mexico.

There were only 15 individuals from the United States selected to compete in the Nationals and Lauren Clark was one of them.

Miss Clark peaked at the right time as is seen in her 24th place finish in the Slalom and her 31st place finish in the Giant Slalom. In both events, 85 skiers competed.

The winning time for the Slalom was 39.0 seconds and the girl who turned in that time was Toril Forland, a member of the University of Utah ski team and the Norwegian Olympic champion. Miss Clark's time for that event was 41.0 seconds just two seconds off the winning time.

Next year the National Championships are to be held in New Mexico and Cathi Savoie, Keene's Coach, hopes to be there with her team.

Spring weather cancels baseball debut

Brian Harrison
Equinox Staff

Unpredictable spring weather continues to plague the Keene State College baseball team. Since the beginning of practice on Monday, March 7 the squad has been able to get outside only once. On Sunday, April 3 their game against Western New England here, was cancelled due to poor playing conditions.

At the moment 25 players are out for the team. The majority are freshmen, only one senior is out for the team. Soon final cuts will be made and the squad will be trimmed to 18 players.

Coach Glenn Theulen returning to baseball after a few years absence still does not have any idea as to who will be cut.

"You can't judge a player by aching him work out indoors. When you get them outside, fielding on grass and hitting in game situations you can get a much better view of a player's abilities."

This week, hopefully the weather will be right for a couple of intrasquad practice games. There is also the possibility of a practice game against Lyndon State College.

Theulen remains optimistic about the upcoming season.

"The players are working hard right now and if this is any indication I feel we will have a good season."

The Owls open their season on Monday, April 11 at Southeastern Mass University at 3 p.m. Their first home game will be against Rhode Island College on Sunday, April 17. A doubleheader is scheduled beginning at 1 p.m.

Lacrosse club ties opener

The KSC Lacrosse Club opened up its 1977 season last Saturday, playing Winchendon Prep School to a 6-6 tie at Sumner Joyce Field.

The game was played under typical Keene early spring weather conditions. Wind whipped snow, sleet and rain fell down onto the already muddy field, causing the footing to be sloppy. Despite this handicap, the Winchendon team jumped out to a 4-0 halftime advantage, and the Keene squad seemed off to a very poor start.

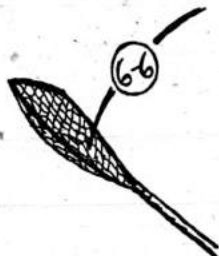

However, the third quarter brought about an amazing turnaround by the home team. Mark Diorio fired a shot past the Winchendon goalie midway through the quarter for the team's first goal of the season, which was followed by a barrage of four straight Owl goals. Winchendon tallied another score and it was 5-5 at the end of the quarter.

The score remained tied through the fourth quarter until John Haskins made a pretty score coming around from behind the net, and Keene gained a goal advantage. Winchendon quickly answered with a score and it remained tied 6-6 at the end of the regulation time. It was decided that the game would not go into overtime, and the final score stayed at 6-6.

Leading scorers for Keene were John Haskins and Peter Hendriks with two goals apiece, Mark Diorio with one goal and two assists and Mike Silverman with one goal.

The game scheduled for Sunday afternoon against the Mass. Lacrosse Club was cancelled as the visiting team did not show up. Keene's next game is April 6 at Dean Jr. College.

Local radio plays for charity

When in the cause of charity the game of basketball can be a thing of fun.

That's exactly what the atmosphere was last Saturday night at Spaulding Gym as the Keene Sentinel battled Keene radio stations (WKNE and WKBK) in what best could be called a Sunday afternoon pick up affair at the local gym.

The Sentinel won the contest by the score of 44-16. Not really your basic night at the Garden watching the Celtics exhibit their style of basketball.

A crowd of about 110 faithful watched the two clubs struggle to the finish. Donations of one dollar went in support of the Big Brothers Big Sisters of the Monadnock Region.

Although the game grossed about $115 they will net considerably less as the College gets a $100 fee for use of the gym for the game.

Assistant to Theulen

Sweeney appointed coach

Dave Root
Equinox Staff

When KSC head baseball coach Glenn Theulen called Chuck Sweeney and asked him to be the assistant this year, he immediately accepted. And if the first three weeks of practice are any indication of the way Sweeney will contribute to the success of the club, the team has good cause to look forward to a better season.

Sweeney led the team in practice for the first week as Coach Theulen was with the basketball team in Kansas City. The players were immediately impressed with his organization and discipline, two qualities that were missing on last year's team. Both he and Coach Theulen are stressing discipline as an important component towards a winning season. Sweeney saw six KSC baseball games last year, and he felt that the club lacked team competitiveness. This year he hopes to make the squad competitive as a unit, and his goal is to "hand in tough in every ballgame." Sweeney wants to build up the baseball program so that it won't be considered a sport played just to pass the Spring away.

Coach Sweeney attended Keene High School for three years and then went to Mount Hermon Academy for his senior year. He went to UNH for three years and then finished up his education at KSC. Sweeney played football and baseball all through his scholastic career. He continued to pursue baseball, playing third base in the Boston Park League and the Collegiate League. He had a few pro offers to play baseball but he did not feel that he had enough foot speed. As a result, Sweeney decided to follow a career in coaching and teaching and is presently football coach at Keene High School. Although he is not getting paid for the assistant coaching post, he feels that it is a good opportunity for him and his future. His role as assistant includes making up the practice plans and coaching third base during the games.

At this point in the season, Sweeney is pleasantly surprised with the team. "They are taking an excellent attitude toward a serious conditioning program," he said. The squad has only been outside once this year due to the muddy field conditions, but at a first glance Sweeney feels that the team has several strengths. "The infield is strong all around and our hitting should be okay. The trouble spots at this point are a questionable outfield and a lack of overall pitching depth," he said.

Following last year's disappointing 4-21 record, this season's ballclub is eager to prove that it can improve on that score. Having the positive atmosphere that Coach Sweeney has created can do nothing but help the team's attitude as it heads into its first game April 11 at Southeastern Mass. University.

Women's lacrosse prepares for their fifth year

In their fifth year of existence, the Women's Lacrosse Club is preparing for a new season. Coach Marilyn Gelish said the team is still building, but it is "coming up" and looks good.

Team practice began Feb. 19 with 35 players, and now has a roster of 19. Gelish said this is a good size team to work with.

This year's team has more experience than last year's with many returning sophomores and new temporary goalie was used.

Another advantage is its strong midfield positions: the center and wings. Betsy Rounsefell, Penny Rickel, Joanna Walsh, Sharon Goupil and Mary Diani are some of the stronger players, Gelish said.

The team's weakness lies in the absence of a permanent goalie. For the scrimmage Monday, April 4, at Stonleigh-Burnham School in Greenfield, Ma., Gelish said a temporary goalie was used.

Intramural basketball playoffs underway this week

Playoffs in both the men's and women's intramural basketball leagues are under way this week. Both league championships will be determined by best-of-three series next week.

Roster forms are available in the Physical Education office for men's and women's softball. Both leagues will be run on a tournament basis. Pairings will be posted on April 19. The deadline for entries is next Wednesday, April 13.

VICA contributes money

KSC's Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) is dead, but it leaves behind a generous contribution to this year's Spring Weekend.

Steven Brown, VICA's former president, announced the termination of VICA a recognized, funded student organization at Monday's board meeting. Brown allowed VICA's 1976-77 allocation of $500 to be transferred into the Student Activity Contingency Fund.

"Our biggest problems have been lack of firm leadership and student apathy," Brown said. "It was hard just to get a meeting going regularly."

The former president also cited a change of adviser as a reason for the students at a seminar on alcohol and drug abuse Thursday.

The main speakers at the seminar were Robert Kelleher and David Wilson, field consultants for the Program for Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

organization's downfall.

"I sincerely hope VICA can re-organize in the future. It will take the participation of more younger, on campus, vocational students for this organization to succeed," Brown said.

SAC Vice-President Roger Memos then requested $350 of VICA's funding be invested into the Spring Weekend Mardi Gras, Saturday April 23. Memos said the money could help fund cost of the rock band, free beer or the comical entertainment of the Locomotive Circus, a two man acrobatic team.

The board then voted unanimously to allow SAC to use $350 for contracting the Locomotive Circus.

Concord, N.H. The pair, who have visited several other New Hampshire colleges, visited KSC to discuss the purposes of their organization and how they might help to establish a program for the college in conjunction with the recent formation of an Alcohol and Drug Abuse Task Force on campus.

Wilson said the program is education and prevention to help people aware of the problem of alcohol and drug abuse. Dr. Richard DeSantis of the Education Department who also teaches a course, "Alcohol Education for the Classroom," said, "The level of ignorance about alcohol as a drug is amazing."

The program would also provide alternatives to alcohol oriented activities for the abstainer according to Wilson.

"Abstainers have a problem in relation to alcohol," he said.

That they will help to establish a program unique and responsive to the needs of KSC was emphasized repeatedly by Kelleher and Wilson. Wilson said, "Each campus is different. The program we consult is your program."

The formats the program could take might be small discussion groups or workshops, according to Kelleher and Wilson. Also films and lectures on physiological effects of alcohol and drugs might be given. The Whole College Catalog About Drinking, containing ideas for programs on alcohol and drug abuse from other colleges and universities was also presented at the seminar.

Before a possible program will be initiated on KSC though, a survey on the alcohol and related behavioral concerns on campus and recommendations for programs on alcohol and drug abuse will be conducted, according to Rusty Youst. Youst, who along with Bill Jackson, Carle Hall residence director, and Ron Wadja, Pub manager, all members of the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Task Force, said the survey should be completed by the end of April.

In addition, Suanne Yglesias, coordinator of student activities, said at this summer's orientation a program trying to establish awareness of alcohol and related problems will be presented to incoming freshmen.

If and when a program is established, Kelleher and Wilson will consult the program, "If the college wants it," Kelleher said.
