Thursday afternoon,

My darling,

Just finished printing a letter to your Mom + Pop and hope they understand what I wrote. The wind is howling all around me and I'm sitting in the funniest position while writing this. I'm using a log as a writing table while sun basking near the beach - near the lake. It's such a cool spot.

This morning we had a little excitement. One of the newlyweds lost her gold band while swimming and about 6 people started diving for it. It was finally retrieved by one of the women guests and all were happy again.

The weather is still grand and I'm getting browner. All the guests - about 30 - are walking around in shades varying from shell pink to rectum brown.

Time is flying but not fast enough until I see you again - your letter each day is a real tonic and with all the sunshine I'm getting I hope to be myself again

when you see me.

I still love you as much as ever and try to dream of you each night.

Al sends his best and I'll see that he mails that card to Bill and Mickey.

Regards to both families
and all my love to you.

As always,

Flarence

P.S. - My back feels much better.

Your reservation is made.
