

TRAFFIC COURT

Traffic Court will convene on Thursday, February 1st, at 7 p.m., in the Student Union, 2nd floor, Conference Room A.

COLLEGE GOVERNANCE

The College Senate Executive Committee will consider college governance at an open meeting Wednesday, Jan. 31, 1973 at 7 p.m. in the Hale Conference Room.

GREASE WEEKEND

Great grease, Batman! Big Al and the Hi Fi's. Wed. Feb. 7 & Thurs. Feb. 8, 8-12 p.m. Brown Room, Student Union. Admission KSC students 99 cents, others $1.49.

WOMEN

Thursday night, February 1, at 7:15, in the Equinox office, there will be a meeting for all women interested in working on the special women's issue of the paper. All women are welcome. We need writers, photographers, lay-out people, typists and anyone with a desire to work.

SOC BOOKS NEEDED

Students who were enrolled in Introductory Sociology Sections taught by Dr. Felton during the fall semester of 1972, and have a copy of Sociology of Modern Society they would like to sell, are requested to bring them as quickly as possible to Dr. Felton's office (Science Center 128). Students bringing such copies should indicate the price at which they wish to sell them and should include a self-addressed envelope so that the money may be forwarded to them.

FUTURE SHOCK

"Future Shock," a 45 minute documentary narrated by Orson Welles, will be shown Tuesday (Feb. 6) at 7:30 p.m. at the Keene Junior High School. There will be no admission. The movie is sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Committee of Franklin School.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Girls' Intramural basketball sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association will begin Monday, February 5th. Any Keene State female is eligible to participate. If interested in playing or officiating you can sign up in your dorm or in the gym.

VOICES NEEDED

The KSC Music Department's Collegium Musicum still has some openings for singers and instrumentalists. Male voices are especially needed. The Collegium, directed by Prof. Raymond Rosenstock, performs early music for voices and ancient instruments such as recorders, krumphorns, viols da gamba, and harpsichord. The group performed in the Medieval Festival on campus last semester, and is planning a concert of Renaissance music for this spring. Membership in the Collegium is open only to music students but also to all students and faculty of other departments, as well as to community members not associated with the Collegium. Interested persons should contact Prof. Rosenstock at 352-1909, ext 285 (KSC) or 357-3378 (home). Please leave a message as to how you may be reached.

lege, stated that if he had to make the decision on the A-1 administration, "there will be new leadership for the program." He said that with the proper overseeing the program can realize its potential.

David Andrews, co-director of the A-1 program, said that the administrators had learned from the experiences of the first two years.

"What we see as our major role in the future is to offer to the student who is unsure of his life goals an opportunity to develop motivation."

Andrews went on to attack the idea that A-1 is a "free-for-all." He said that students now sign contracts with their teachers which clearly spell out goals and serve as a basis for evaluation.

The final vote on the extension of the program for one year was: Yea, 25; Nay, 8; abstained, 2.

In other business, the college's physical education requirement was voted out of existence. There was little opposition. Previously, all students were required to take two semesters of P.E. activity.

The end of the requirement, which will begin next year, will also cause credit requirements for graduation to be reduced, Dr. James L. Spangenberg, chairman of the curriculum committee, said.

Non-majors will still be able to elect P.E. courses for credit, however, he explained.

Ted Kehr, chairman of the P.E. Department, speculated that the end to the requirement might make more "free play time" in the gym available to Keene State students.

Two opposing motions on the make-up of the College Senate were referred to the College Senate Executive Committee.

One motion, authored by Dr. William S. Felton, professor of Sociology, would exclude all students from the College Senate. It would also eliminate the College Seante student affairs committee.

Felton said the new system would strengthen both the Student Senate and the College Senate by giving each control of areas of most concern to them — students with students affairs and faculty with curriculum, college standards and employment matters.

Debbie Neuhauser, president of the Student Senate, opposed the motion saying that it further divides the sectors of the college when they need to be united.

Neuhauser has introduced a motion of her own which would establish a unicameral, or one-body, governance for the college.

Both motions will be discussed by the College Senate Executive Committee tonight at 7 p.m. at an open meeting in Hale Conference Room.

Support for athletics poor, says Quirk

By GERRY MITCHELL
Equinox Sports Writer

"Poor," was the term used by Mr. James D. Quirk, associate professor of physics and coach of the KSC swim team, to describe school support for KSC athletics. He stated that there should be a "re-emphasis or new direction" in college athletics at Keene State and that the students are the people who hold the key to bringing about this change.

"At the swim team's home meets attendance has been terrific and the moral support great. But the financial situation is something else," Quirk said.

The re-emphasis in athletic financial support in general at KSC can take place in one of three ways, he said.

One, the students must decide whether they want quality competitive teams on an intercollegiate basis; two, they can forget the teams completely; or three, the administration can budget for college athletics in their requests to the State Legislature, i.e. similar to UNH's athletic appropriations, Quirk said.

"The entire student body should decide if they want to be adequately represented from the college," Quirk said. Quirk indicated that the students should reveal their feelings as to what their priorities really are.

"If they don't want sports at KSC they have the power to cut the funds allocated for athletics through the Student Senate," he pointed out.

However, he commented that the people who want to decrease funds for athletics are those who tend to be more "socially" oriented and don't realize how much a unifying force athletics is to the college community, he said.

"I don't believe these people realize how important athletics are to Keene State. It's really all they've (the students) got to relate to," he said.

Quirk continued by stating that these same people fail to relate athletics with the educational quality of the college.

"With a qualitative athletic program there is always a chance of attracting really good students to Keene State," he said.

He noted the teams that they have faced up to now as "not passies" and that the caliber of talent has been extreme, although they may drop a few of their weaker opponents from next year's schedule.

"Some of the teams were very strong and we must re-evaluate our talent," he said. "In addition, we are seriously considering replacing some of our present opponents with stronger ones," he continued.

Those teams expected to be dropped are Southeastern Massachusetts University, Holy Cross and Norwich University. Springfield (Mass.) College, the number one ranked team in New England last year, and Williams College, number three in the N.E. standings in 1972, have shown interest in swimming the Owls next year.

Quirk said that the difference between last year's squad and this year's is that the freshmen swimmers have added more depth to this year's team.

"The freshmen members are the backbone of the team right now," he commented. "They complement our veteran swimmers Russ Confroy, Tom Baldwin, Dean Robinson and Dute Otto extremely well," he pointed out.

But no matter how the swimming Owls perform in the second half of the season their efforts as a second year club can be considered nothing short of fantastic.

Vets club begins at KSC

By MIKE O'LEARY
Equinox News Editor

A veterans club is currently in its embryonic stages at KSC.

At an organizational meeting Monday afternoon, Paul Miller, organizer of the club, said that it would be patterned after highly successful veteran fraternities recently established at Plymouth State College and at the Nashua Aeronautics Institute.

"We will use their constitution but here it will be a club, rather than a fraternity, a place where veterans can go for a drink, or to study, or even a place to sleep for a night," he said.

He explained that, like Plymouth and Nashua, the only criterion for membership will be veteran status with the service. "We will accept all veterans from all branches of the service even reserve and National Guard veterans," Miller said.

The Plymouth fraternity has been the most successful, having bought a house and established an informal, helpful atmosphere for veterans.

"At Plymouth you can just ring their bell, tell them you're a veteran, and you have a place to stay," Steve Zakrzewski, a veteran interested in the formation of the club, said at the meeting. "That is what we want for veterans going to Keene."

He added that, to counter the apathy they have run into at Keene, they will have to stress the beneficial aspect of the club.

"We must make the veterans here realize that it will be a benefit and not a hassle, that time will be donated and not demanded," Zakrzewski said.

Miller and Zakrzewski agree that the first priorities are recognition by the Student Senate, and establishment of a large membership, and then the opening of a veterans' center or house.

"We will be getting a copy of Plymouth's constitution this week, by mail. We will present it to the Student Senate as soon as possible after that," Miller said. "After we are recognized we should work on reaching as many members as possible to inform them of the benefits they can receive if they join. Then perhaps we can get a house from the college, or if that fails, rent one in Keene," Zakrzewski added.

Miller said that there are "about 250" veterans attending KSC and if a majority of them can be persuaded to join, then a minimal donation from each would insure the club's success.

Both Miller and Zakrzewski are encouraged by the success of the other two veterans groups. They said that they believe their success proves it can be done.

James Saunders, a veteran attending his first meeting, said that the older age of veterans might make it easier for the club to find a home.

Steve Zakrzewski is one of the students organizing the veteran's club.

Class dues, offices voted out by Senate

Class dues and officers will be abolished as of this fall, the Student Senate voted this Wednesday.

"This action will show to the legislature that the students, along with everyone else, are willing to tighten their budgets," Senate president Debbie Neuhauser said.

Neuhauser also said that the motion would encourage the mixing of classes.

"Many students are not in the same class that they started with in their freshman year," she said.

Although the class due of $2 will no longer exist, this does not necessarily mean that student's bills will be $2 less, Neuhauser said.

"The $2 might be dropped all together, but it might also be added to the student activities fee."

The Senate action also stipulates that the senior class be exempt from the abolishment of class offices.

In other business, the Student Senate voted to approve a proposal by Douglas F. Mayer, director of the Student union, to finance a secretary to operate the college's accounting machine, Harold.

The proposal would call for the Student Senate to give the interest form its bank account to the Student Union, along with funds from the college. In return the college would pay for the Senate's mailing costs, and the senate would no longer help to pay the salaries of the Student Union secretaries.

"The sork load was just too much for the office secretaries that we have now," Neuhauser said.

"Hiring a new secretary will free our other secretaries, and will allow Harold to be used by other departments."

"Harold shouldn't just sit around."

The proposal must also be approved by the Student Union board and the college.

The Senate also voted to recommend acceptance of a College Senate proposal by Professor Roy Duddy to do away with mandatory attendance at commencement exercises.

At present, a graduating senior must attend the ceremonies to get his diploma.

Students busted in Union

One KSC student has been suspended for one semester and another is facing a hearing in connection with a bust in the Student Union last Friday.

Ernest O. Gendron, dean of men, confirmed that the bust had taken place but refused to give out the names of students involved. Keene police have not been contacted, he said.

Douglas F. Mayer, director of the Student Union, said that he had received a number of complaints about the smell of marijuana in the Union building earlier in the week. The bust occurred at about 1:30 p.m. Friday in the second floor men's room of the Student Union.

A third youth, not a KSC student, was also involved Mayer said.

Gendron explained that the suspended student elected to have his case dealt with by Gendron without the customary hearing. The hearing for the second student has not yet been set, he said.

Sculptor Mico Kaufman to perform at Carle Hall

By RICK HARTFORD
Equinox Staff Writer

Professional artist and sculptor Mico Kaufman will sculpt for the public at Carle Hall, 7 p.m. Monday Feb. 12.

Kaufman will carve a bust and display some of his works of art.

Kaufman was born in Romania and studied at the Academy of Fine Arts, Rome and Florence. His activities include architectural decoration, design, commercial sculpture, art education and fine arts. He instructs at his studio-home at 23 Marion Drive, Tewksbury Mass., and heads a course of sculpture at the New England School of Art, Boston.

In August Kaufman was named recipient of the "R.V.T. Steeves Memorial Award" at the Rockport Art Association, Rockport, Mass. This award was established for the most outstanding piece of sculpture in the three summer exhibitions at the Association. Kaufman won the award for his stainless steel sculpture "The Artist".

Other recent awards include the Alma and Ulysses Ricci for the best conservative painting or sculpture, Rockport, the Bronze Medal of Honor, Concord Mass., the Plymouth Arts Festival first Prize in sculpture, and the NSAS Memorial Award, North Shore Art Association, Gloucester.

Kaufman has received medallic commissions from the National Commemorative Society, the American Negro Commemorative Society, Longines Wittnauer, and the Medallic Art Society. Kaufman has recently received another commission to sculpt 200 medallions for $1500 to $1700.

One man shows

Kaufman has had one man shows in New Hampshire and Massachusetts, invitational shows in Massachusetts and New York, and has been in participating shows in Massachusetts, New York and Italy.

Kaufman was invited by Carle Hall's student council. Dr. Lydia Zakrzewski, the dorm's house director has known Kaufman for about eight years and studied under him in Lowell Mass. in the early 1960's.

A sculpture by Mico Kaufman, who will be at Carle Hall Monday, Feb. 12 at 7 p.m.

Winter Weekend's theme is 'The 50's'

Highlighted by Big Al and the HiFi's, Winter Weekend swings into action tonight at eight p.m. in the Brown room. Big Al returns tomorrow night, preceded at six p.m. by the movie Rosemary's Baby in the Waltz Lecture Hall for those of you who really want to make a night of it.

Friday night, the Owls basketball team hosts Husson College.

As evidenced by Big Al's presence, the theme of the weekend is "The 50's". The same theme is being used for a snow sculpture contest to be judged Saturday morning with the results to be announced at the half time of the Plymouth-KSC basketball game Saturday night.

Judging will be based on creativity, craftsmanship, and originality. There will be a $50 first prize, a $25 second prize and a $10 third prize.

Snow sculpture entry forms can be obtained from Rita Sheinker in the Union office, or at the Merrimack House.

Big Al and the HiFi's feature rock and roll music of the fifties. Members of the group are Rocco Genova, guitar and vocals, Luscious Lars, piano and vocals, Cheno De Sol Gadda, bass and vocals,

The Turd, percussion and vocals, and of course, Big Al Butler on guitar, piano, organ and vocals.

According to Karen Bandouveres of the Social Council, "the fate of Spring Weekend rests on the Student support of the Big Al concert." She said that if students turnout is as meager as it has been for past activities, the students shouldn't expect much entertainment for Spring Weekend.

"The main point is if the kids show up then we'll go through with Spring Weekend. If they don't, forget it," she said.

Big Al and the HiFi's will perform Wednesday and Thursday nights in the Brown Room to kick off Winter Weekend.

Senate to consider membership, new major

By RON BOISVERT
Equinox Managing Editor

KSC's College Senate may see action on three motions on college governance and a motion to create a new major in geography when they meet this afternoon at 4 in the Keene Lecture Hall of the Science Building.

A Senate By-Law amendment, authored by Dr. William S. Felton, professor of sociology, would exclude students from College Senate membership and would dismiss the Student Affairs Committee of the College Senate, now a standing committee.

Felton argues that the amendment would increase the powers of both the College Senate and the Student Senate by making each responsible for areas of most concern to them — students with dormitories, student activities and faculty with curriculum, college standards and employment.

Felton said that students do not have the experience, training and ability to handle the responsibilities of making decisions in areas of "professional concern".

Felton cited what he called "lack of effective student leadership" in the organizing of elections for student representatives to the college Senate.

An opposing motion to create a unicameral or one-body government on campus is also on the Senate's agenda for today.

Authored by Debbie Heuhaus, Student Senate president, the motion would

Dr. William S. Felton

The rationale for the motion cites increasing demand for a geography major from among both students and government and commercial firms.

The report states that the college is already prepared to offer an excellent program in geography using existing faculty and facilities.

Finally, the Student Affairs Committee will submit a report recommending that the Hildebrandt-Kerr Anti-discrimination bill be dropped saying that adequate protection against discrimination already exists in rules outlined in the 1971-72 Student Handbook.

The Hildebrandt-Kerr bill would cut off college support from any organization which was discriminatory in its membership practices.

abolish the Student Senate and add a faculty and a student caucus to the governance system.

Neuhaus has also said that she would like to see some 30 students on the college senate (there are now 18).

Neuhaus rejected the idea that students were not needed on the College Senate and said that students should take part in all decisions that affect them.

She cited the need for the students, faculty and administration to start working together rather than move away from each other.

The Senate is also slated to hear a report on a third motion which would change the way in which students are elected to the College Senate.

The motion, which was submitted by the College's Academic Council, would have 16 students elected to the Senate four from each academic class. Students are now elected from each academic department with freshmen excluded from membership.

The proposal was referred to the Academic Council last year when questions were raised about increasing student membership as a result of new academic majors.

In other business the Curriculum committee will recommend that the College adopt liberal arts and secondary education majors in geography.

DR. KLAUS BAYR, assistant professor of geography, is a member of the social science department. The Curriculum Committee has recommended that the college introduce a new major in geography for next year.

Social life near collapse

Social activities at KSC, in the mildest of terms, are in a near-state of total collapse.

The Student Activities Council and the Student Union are complaining because no one shows up at their events, and the students are complaining that it is because the events are terrible.

Indeed, a vicious circle has been perpetuated. No one sticks around on weekends because they figure nothing is happening that's worth staying for, and since no one shows up for the few things that do go on, nothing happens any more.

The solution to the dilemma is not easy, but we do have a few suggestions.

First, we would like to see the SAC and the Student Union lean away from gimmick events like Kreskin and Bigelow. These people insult the intelligence of the students. We would prefer more educational entertainment with a purpose to it, like interesting speakers and quality movies.

We would also like to see a little more local talent. Not only would it provide decent music, but also more could be gotten for the money. Groups like Fidgety Feet and Stage Fright are already fairly well-known, and could draw a sizable audience.

Finally, we suggest that the students scream a little louder, rather than just mumble to the walls. The SAC is open to anyone who attends the meetings. Otherwise, what you get is what you deserve.

We do not see any reason why the SAC should waste money on occasional medium-sized events of dubious quality, when it could be getting a steady stream of relatively inexpensive good entertainment. However, we don't see why they should assume all the responsibility when the student body remains silent.

In any case, someone is going to have to break the vicious circle that presently renders KSC a disaster on weekends. If someone doesn't, the situation will deteriorate hopelessly.

It was standing room only at the Mabel Brown Room when Fantastic Ferland and his Freaked-out Fleas was presented.

the other sex Status on campus

Correspondence to this column may be addressed to Anne Descoteaux, c/o this newspaper.

According to the 1972 Virginia Slims American Women's Opinion Poll, conducted by Louis Harris and Associates, "American women, in a relatively short period have accelerated their desires for a changed role in society." The observation of Harris and Associates continues, "those who are most concerned with strengthening women's status represent an essentially urban coalition of young, well-educated and black women."

Last spring, the New Hampshire Commission on the Status of Women held hearings at KSC and on the other campuses in the N.H. University system. Their report, "Women On Campus", presented to the governor of the state, is a composite of what was said on all three campuses. Although the hearings were held last spring, not much has changed. Some of the statements in the testimony

"A husband's signature was required on one woman's application for an educational loan."

"There are age limits for women who do not want to live in dorms."

"Graduate course schedules are sometimes difficult for women who have children. They could attend classes while the children are in school but cannot go out to late afternoon or evening sessions."

There is no public transportation to offset the alternative of hitchhiking with all of its risks."

"There is no maternity leave policy for exempt personnel but there is for non-exempt employees. They testified that the policy is not uniformly and fairly enforced."

"Women testified that the professional staff lacks representation where policies are made, i.e., at the administrative level. They felt the existence of a hierarchy and that policy and standards of classification are not explained or understood."

"The business managers sort of have to be males. The assistant could be a woman, I guess," said the manager of one campus office.

"A women from the same office said that men accountants get promoted while women are unnoticed, unaided, and dead end."

As it now stands, men and women students are pretty well equal in numbers. It's not the same with college employees or staff.

If it is true that the most concerned women should be the ones on college campuses why aren't we doing something about the above figures and statements? Your voice can be heard. UNH has their own commission on the status of women and KSC has the women's Council. Their potential has not been taken advantage of. Let's Start!!! You can contact Mr. Hobart, who is KSC's liaison with the Affirmative Action Program for the university system, if you are a college employee. Students can contact Dean Keddy, Dean of Women and adviser for the Women's Council or Diane Ready, President of the Women's Council.

This weeks note: Get your man to the VD Seminar tonight! He may learn something, and it won't hurt you either.

Students respond to charges of neglect

Lack of funds

To the Editor,

This is in reference to last week's article on KSC entertainment which is obviously lacking in Student support. Mr. Mayer and Mr. Reynolds sound as if the only solution for this campus is to lock all the doors on campus Friday afternoon and send us all home not to return until Sunday night.

Mr. Reynolds claims lack of student motivation is the cause. Try lack of student funds, Mr. Reynolds. We are not rich people. We have paid a fifty dollar activity fee, which I realize is not going to bring in the Stones or Chicago, but there must be something else besides a witch, a magician and an escape artist, all costing students at least a dollar! Kreskin may be a good performer, but you can see him on TV, and somehow he lacks the appeal of a concert band, and it hurts to part with $1.50!

We realize our fifty dollars is not going to pay for everything, but I doubt students would mind paying for something worthwhile. Why can schools comparable to Keene have names like Sha-na-na, Seatrain, The Band, Tom Rush, and Livingston Taylor, when all we can boast of is Kreskin and a witch... it sounds a little poor. The Athletic Department tried with the Hollies, but they are a private organization and unfortunately had to charge too much for too little.

All letters must be typed (double spaced) and should not exceed 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit all copy. Final deadline is 5:00 p.m. Monday.

Yes, the entertainment should be for everyone. It should offer more than bands and singers. But magicians? Witches? There must be something more appealing or less expensive.

It is sad to see this school turn into a giant suitcase on Friday afternoons. It has as many interested students and as much potential as any other, but something must be wrong in the social organization and direction, as I sincerely believe the enthusiasm is there, but something has to arouse it.

Maybe Kreskin could have mass hypnotized us into permanent stupidity. Then we'd support your entertainment.

R. Thomas

No appeal

To the Editor:

We were very displeased and disappointed to read the article in January 31, 1973 issue of Equinox about, "KSC Entertainment Dying from Student Neglect." We fail to see how the "Amazing Kreskin" would appeal to the social interests of students here. It would seem as if Doug Mayer was reprimanding the students for his mistake. If Winter Weekend was in jeopardy, why plan costly entertainment without first giving the students a choice?

It is a shame that the social functions of this campus have been left up to the fraternities. Besides meals, the fraternities seem to be the only means of social contact offered and even these means are at a minimal.

We offer no solution to the social problem, but feel that if social events, such as dances, were held with popular area groups, things might improve.

We hope our screams will be heard!

More movies

To the Editor,

I suggest to Bruce Reynolds and Doug Mayer that the reason for the lack of student support for their programs may be an indication of the quality of these programs.

Don't blame the students for your poor sales pitch. Don't blame the students because they don't want to support social events of dubious quality.

The fourteen hundred dollars you lost on the Kreskin event would have been better spent on movies of proven worth. Movies are popular and easy to see on a weekday night, and we'd certainly get our money's worth.

J. Crook

A Christian should definitely have a concern for social problems. "Cease to do evil," Isaiah says, "learn to do good; seek justice, correct oppression..." But a Christian is socially concerned; his concern does not make him a Christian.

A Christian does read his Bible, pray, and worship God in ways most appropriate to him. But he worships because he is a Christian; his worship does not make him a Christian.

A Christian follows the moral and ethical teachings of Jesus, but because he is a Christian - not to become one.

A Christian, the Bible teaches, is actually someone who believes in and loves God enough to want a personal relationship with Him through Jesus Christ. Because Christians love Jesus, they obey him and worship God. Because Jesus loved men, Christians are socially active.

But Christians - whatever name they call themselves - do not worship actions, only the Person who makes such actions worthwhile.

'Soul Food' defines Christian

To the Editor,

The following article is called "Soul Food" by Ken Ripley, and is an evangelistic column written for campus newspapers.

Rick Cogswell
Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship

"Don't call me a Christian," she surprisingly insisted. "I am a follower of Jesus Christ."

Things are pretty bad when even Christians don't like to be called "Christians," but she had a point. The word has been misused. "Christian" isn't a bad word, historically meaning "a follower of Christ." But the word has been given so many meanings it has come to mean nothing.

Commission on ROCKS

To the Editors:

As members of the Swansey Conservation Commission, we were most interested in your recent article concerning ROCKS (Recycling on Campus at Keene State). Our commission has been involved in recycling for over six months. In August, 1972, we opened our paper collection site at Wilber Brothers Supermarket in North Swansey. Since then, we have collected and recycled over 30000 pounds of paper.

One reason the operation has been so successful is that we do not have to depend on volunteers to transport the paper from the site to the recycling plant. Once before, recycling was attempted in Keene, but met with little success because it was dependent on these volunteers.

We hope Mr. Abramson and his group realize that organizing and maintaining a recycling program is hard work and cannot be approached as a one shot, money making deal. Last semester we were unable to make contact with Mr. Abramson, but we would be glad to speak with him about our recycling program. We hold meetings every first and third Thursday of the month at the Swansey Congregational Church in Swansey Center, N.H. We invite Mr. Abramson and members of his group to attend one of the meetings.

Also, we hope Keene State students will take advantage of our collection site. Magazines and newspapers should be tied separately and securely. Scrap paper should be laid flat in boxes or paper bags and tied securely.

Owls lose to Portland-Gorham 85-77, top Husson 64-53

By PETE HANRAHAN
Equinox Sports Editor

For followers of the Keene State College Basketball team, this past weekend proved to be an interesting one. The Owls travelled to Maine, losing to Portland-Gorham on Friday, and defeating Husson on Saturday. Both games were played with the Owls having only seven men available.

Friday morning, as the team was preparing to depart, Owls Coach Glenn Theulen told Jose DeCousey, Ron Pier-son, Ollie Dunbar, Joe Amaio and trainer Billy Papajohn to get off the team bus. The four players had been a few minutes late in getting on the bus, and Papajohn had rounded them up. To Theulen, it was a matter of principle, and the five did not make the trip.

Friday night the Owls had an unbeaten NESCAC Eastern Division record spoiled by Portland-Gorham. Pogo's flashy guard, Matt Donahue scored 28 points to lead his mates to an 85-77 win over the Owls. Keene's divisional record is now 3-1, identical to Eastern Connecticut's mark.

The man who really destroyed the Owls was Pogo's 6-7 center Faye Morrill. Morrill, who has shown marked improvement this season, collected 26 rebounds and 19 points. His work on the boards more than offset Keene's big front line of Sterling Symonette, George Roy and Al Hicks.

Sterling Symonette tied Donahue for game-high honors by scoring 28. But James Drew was the only other Owl in double figures, scoring 14.

The Husson game was an entirely different story. The only trouble the Owls ran into in this game was having enough players to properly execute the pre-game layup drill.

With George Roy and Sterling Symonette controlling the boards, the Owls were in control almost all the way. Keene won 64-53.

After falling behind, 7-0, the Owls switched to a 1-3-1 defense. They recovered to lead at halftime, 33-28. The Owls held their lead in the second half with excellent pattern execution on offense, and with the fine rebounding job by Symonette and Roy.

Symonette led Keene with 24, Roy had 15 and Phil Pena had 10.

Owls host Plymouth this Saturday night

By PETE HANRAHAN
Equinox Sports Editor

The Keene State College Basketball Owls will host Husson and Plymouth State this weekend. Both games will be played at KSC's Spaulding Gymnasium. The Husson game will be played Friday night, and on Saturday night the Owls will host Plymouth. The Owls have whipped both teams on their own home courts.

Husson has had an outstanding season, and currently have a record of 8-2. Two of their victories have come at the expense of Western New England and Eastern Connecticut. The Owls, short-handed this past weekend, topped the Maine club by strong efforts from Sterling Symonette and George Roy.

Plymouth has been suffering through a mediocre season, lacking the ability to score consistently. Games between Keene and Plymouth always have the added flavor of rivalry, which causes previous records to be somewhat unimportant. Both games will begin at 8:00.

Ms. Owls lose to Springfield

By PRIS JEAN
Equinox Sports Writer

The Keene State College Women's basketball team travelled to Springfield, Mass. on January 31 where the Owls lost their first game of the season by a 64-37 score.

Springfield's strong defense and well patterned offense proved to be too much for the Owls.

First quarter action saw Springfield's Diane Shumacher dominate both offensive and defensive boards and penetrate the Keene defense for easy inside shots, giving Springfield a 13-4 first quarter lead.

Keene adjusted their defense in the 2nd quarter and contained Springfield while making them work for their shots. Keene outscored Springfield in this quarter 14-11. Senior Nancy Balla connected on four consecutive 20 footers to put Keene in comeback position, trailing only 24-18 at the end of the half.

In the 3rd quarter Keene found itself in deep foul trouble as four starters had four fouls each. This enabled Springfield to capitalize on the somewhat loosened defense and they outscored Keene 22-6, to take a 46-24 third quarter lead.

In the final quarter Keene's high scorer Nancy Balla fouled out with 7:06 remaining in the game. Keene was only getting one shot at the basket while Springfield was getting two and three.

Springfield had three players in double figures. Nancy Balla led Keene with 14 points followed by Judy Lacasse with 6. The next Varsity Home game, Feb. 8, will feature Keene vs. Westfield.

JUNIOR VARSITY

In the J.V. game it was Springfield over Keene by a 54-37 score.

Keene was outrebounded throughout the game and was in early foul trouble in the 2nd quarter.

In the first half Springfield was in control of the game both offensively and defensively. Keene was unable to penetrate the tough Springfield defense and was forced to take outside shots.

In the second half Keene almost came back as the Owls outscored Springfield 14-7 and only trailed by eight points at the end of the third quarter, 34-26.

However, Springfield's consistent shooting and rebounding handed the Keene J.V.s their first loss of the season.

Top scorers in the game were Donnie McCurdy and Dann Bailey of Springfield with 14 points each. For Keene Senior Joy Eck had 12 points, followed by Sophomore Sue Navin with 9 points.

Girls work for Booth

(This is the fourth in a series of columns on KSC's Athletic Coaches)

There are as many approaches to coaching successfully as there are successful coaches. The quiet but firm approach of Karen Booth has certainly been a successful one.

Mrs. Booth coaches Women's Basketball at Keene State and has had a good share of success. Her team of 1970-1971 went all the way to third place in the New England.

But that third place means a lot more than just any third place conference finish. Her team had to play the best of all New England's colleges and universities, large and small. The participants included the University of Massachusetts, Northeastern and UNH, all of whom finished behind Keene State. Besting teams such as these would be quite an accomplishment for a school much larger than Keene State.

Coach Booth works her teams long and hard. And the record shows it. Her teams do not in any way resemble the typical semi-competitive girls team. On the contrary, Mrs. Booth's teams are highly competitive, well-conditioned and well-drilled.

Girls who are less than competitive soon lose interest in Coach Booth's program and usually end up in WRA. Coach Booth had made Women's Basketball at Keene State an athletic sport, and any girl who thinks differently is usually in for a rude awakening.

Rugby Club picks officers, faces beefed-up schedule

The Keene State College Rugby Club will plan an expanded schedule this spring with three new opponents in Holy Cross, Wesleyan and the Providence Rugby Club. It was announced by match secretary Bruce Stephenson.

The schedule will open against Holy Cross and Providence in two games on March 31. Home games are slated against the University of New Hampshire, Johnson State College, the Mad River Rugby Club and Springfield.

The KSC rugburs will compete in the First annual Northwoods invitational Rugby Tournament, sponsored by Dartmouth and set for May 19 and 20 in Hanover, N.H. The other teams in the tourney are UNH, the Concord (N.H.) RFC, the Montreal RFC and the Mystic RFC from Boston.

New officers elected at the spring organizational meeting are:

Tom Baldwin of Keene, president; Buu Holdsworth of Concord, N.H., secretary-treasurer; Randy van Coughnet of New Hampton, N.H., groundskeeper; Bruce Stephenson of Keene, captain and coach, and Art Trottier of Berlin, N.H., vice captain.

The complete spring schedule;

March 31, Saturday, at Holy Cross and Providence (2 games); April 8, Sunday, UNH (2 games); April 15, Sunday, Dartmouth (2 games); April 21, Saturday, Johnson State and Mad River RFC (2 games); April 28, Saturday, Springfield (1 game); April 29, Sunday, at Concord (1 game); May 5, Saturday, at University of Massachusetts (2 games); May 12, Saturday, at Wesleyan (2 games); May 19-20, Saturday and Sunday, at Northwoods Invitational Rugby Tournament, Hanover, New Hampshire.

The KSC swim team split two meets in the last week as they were blasted out of the pool Saturday (Feb. 3) by Southern Connecticut State College 80-33 and returned to the victory column with a 75-38 sinking of Lowell Technological Institute Monday evening (Feb. 5). Team record now stands at 9-2.

It was just another one of those meets for the Owls Saturday as they were able to capture only four first place finishes.

Carl Arlig, KSC's answer to Mark Spitz, continued his excellent showing with two firsts. Arlig was able to take nine pool records while winning eleven of the thirteen scheduled events. The only events which KSC did not score firsts in were the one and three-meter diving.

It was a complete team victory as three swimmers were triple-winners, three were double-winners and two KSC natators captured one win apiece.

Carl Artig, Eric Bickford and Ron Demers took triple-winner laurels for the Owls against LTI. For Demers it featured the second time this season that he has won three events in one meet while it was the initial occasion for Bickford and Artig.

The Owls' next two meets are at home against Husson College (Feb. 9) and Colby (Feb. 10). Friday's meet against Husson will begin at 4:00 p.m. while Saturday's encounter with Colby starts at 2:00 p.m. Both meets will be held at the Spaulding natatorium.

Fraternities close parties

By MIKE O'LEARY
Equinox News Editor

The Interfraternity Council (IFC) last week unanimously adopted a policy which closed "all houses regarding open parties."

The policy states that "all independent males and females will be barred from house parties." It stipulates that any fraternity wishing to sponsor an open party will have to contact the IFC seven days prior to the proposed date of the party. The policy provides for a "$100 fine for any fraternity not complying with the rule."

"The action was in response to an increasing reliance of the campus on fraternities to provide entertainment for the campus, Jason Handfield, IFC President, said.

Handfield said that another consideration was the "excess damage done by independents after attending fraternity parties."

"We (the college fraternities) will not accept any more responsibility for the excessive damage done by independents, or to provide entertainment for the campus," he said. "Now it will be the responsibility of the Social Council to provide entertainment, and the administration to control damage to the dorms."

Ernest O. Gendron, dean of men and advisor to the IFC, said that he "indicated to the IFC some of the problems connected with happy hours." He said that judiciary boards' investigation into cases involving damage to college property showed that, in many cases, the people involved had been drinking, at happy hours.

Handfield concurred with Gendron, and explained that their has been damage to fraternities as well.

"After parties and happy hours we have found toilets broken, light fixtures off the walls, and even walls blown in," he said.

"Non-fraternity students don't know the workings of fraternity life, and what the fraternities mean to the members," he added.

Handfield explained that the ruling would not mean that the "fraternities would ignore the campus completely." He said that the IFC would coordinate interfraternity functions and even sponsor campus concerts in the Brown Room.

Handfield said that this is not a new development. The fraternities and sororities have been working towards stronger ties for some time, cooperating on such ventures as the Christmas party, and the blood drive, he added.

"Delta Zeta has helped immensely on these projects," Handfield added.

Handfield explained that closer interfraternity ties would be assured by the establishment of an interfraternity social council consisting of social directors of all three fraternities. Their job will be to organize and coordinate interfraternity parties and campus events.

The IFC is represented by three fraternities: Phi Mu Delta, TKE and Alpha Pi Tau. Each fraternity has six representatives on the council.

Geography major OK'd, governance motions delayed

Geography majors in liberal arts and secondary education were OK'd last week by the KSC College Senate. The proposal will now be forwarded to the Educational Policies Committee of the University Board of Trustees for final approval.

The principal reason for the new programs, according to the rationale of the proposal, is student demand of the subject. The document also expresses the need for geographers within local governments and commercial firms, and in secondary schools.

The college now has adequate staff (four geographers) and facilities to successfully support the new programs without new additions, the document states.

Three separate motions, all designed to change college senate membership, were delayed at the Wednesday Senate meeting.

Dr. William S. Felton, professor of sociology, who authored one of the motions, asked that his proposal be tabled until next month so that more discussion could take place on it.

He complained that most faculty and students were unaware of his proposal or of its consequences.

The Felton amendment would exclude students from serving on the College

Senate and would do away with the College Senate's Student Affairs Committee.

The Senate also decided to create an ad-hoc committee to study unicameral or one-body government structure for the college which was proposed by Debbie Neuhauser, president of the Student Senate.

The Neuhauser proposal, essentially the reverse of the Felton amendment, would abolish the Student Senate and create student and faculty caucuses to work with the main College Senate. The ad-hoc committee is slated to report back to the Senate in the fall.

A third recommendation from the Academic Council was stalled on a parliamentary question, and will be considered next month.

The proposal would have students elected to the College Senate from each of the freshmen, sophomore, junior and senior classes. Presently students are elected from academic departments with freshmen excluded from membership.

Next College Senate meeting is slated for March 7.

New KSC hockey club starts with bang

Keene won the game in the third period as the Guilderson-Tower-Nelson line combined for three goals. Tower accounted for two of the, raising his total for the night to five.

Sophomores Dave Guilderson and Glenn Braunhardt each scored two, while Ron Manseau added one.

Monday night was a different story. Although the Keene Men's Team started the scoring on a goal by Dick Lawson, Keene State dominated the play. They outshot the Men Team in the first period 10-2 while taking a 2-1 lead.

Although the play in the second period was more even-the Men's Team outshot KSC 10-9-Keene State emerged from the period with a commanding 5-2 lead.

Tower scored his second goal of the night 33 seconds into the period, and KSC ended the scoring at 10:38 as Dave Guilderson was sent in all alone behind the defense with a beautiful pass.

Tower scored his fourth and final goal at 9:34 of the final period. The Men's Team came back only 37 seconds later, as Ham Chase scored his second goal. The Men's Team began to pressure Keene in its own end, and KSC goalie Fred Manning made a number of fine stops to keep the Men at arm's length.

With 4:04 remaining, Glenn Braunhardt jammed in a loose puck to end KSC's scoring. Dick Lawson of the Men's Team scored late in the period for his second and the game's final goal.

The game was fast and clean, as was evidenced by the fact that no penalties were handed out.

Coach John Summers was very pleased with his team's work.

"The lines were working better together, and the passing has improved," he said.

"I was particularly pleased with the play of the forwards, who were hustling back to help the defense against break-aways."

Summers said that although there were two or three standouts on the team, the other players are improving rapidly.

"We'll do better the more we play together," he said.

The team is young, with only four se-
