George, dearest,

November 22, 1944

It's Thanksgiving and for the second time we're not together having the usual feast. Although they invited Jim and I, my heart wasn't up to it and we spent part of the day with my family. But, Mom and Pop came here for a short visit this afternoon and then left for L. I. Harry was with them and sends his best regards. Bob looks well and we didn't have a chance to talk much. He and I started to bowl after he awoke. I hope he keeps me a longer visit before he leaves N. Y.

Baby and I are just fine and miss you mad and want each day. We'll keep on being good soldiers until the end of the war. Just don't worry about us.

Whether we mailed today and we spent several hours outdoors with Bob and Jim and Ruben. Billy Ruben called and is fine. His best to you, as always. Dad is home and had a nice time today with a dinner. I suffered here and brought to Selma's. Jim doesn't mind. I won't allow it. All my love to you, dearest and a kiss from me and my family Jim.
