Friday afternoon.

Dearest,

To watch our precious son cuddle and drape around his old blue bunny is a sight to behold. That old stuffed thing sure is one of his favorites and I do have to smile at the way he abuses that innocent little bunny. Sometimes he even goes to sleep with it. At present he says mama, wee, duty, yay, dot, babee, noo, and his favorite daiddee. His cutest trick is when he climbs the ladder alone and sits near the sink.

I do love you so much, dearest, and you are my best love, most wonderful husband, ardent lover, precious mate and the most considerate and faithful human I know. If you do remain down South for that technical training, baby and I will be very, very happy to join you even if for only a short spell. Now I need a change at present is something only you Can understand and the main reason is that you only will do my heart so much good. Also I have been so lovable for you, my darling husband, and no one in Brooklyn or any other place can replace your feelings and consideration for me.

My sister Eleanor is here now and is going to the show with us to-night. I may drive into the city - I'm not sure yet. Your mom called and she and Jeff and A. K. Sarah was here again this morning and washed the fayer runner among other things. The bank returned my deposit book with ($80⁰⁰ - deposits) and also some more checks which I ordered.

All is well on all home fronts and your folks are not ~~annoying~~ ^{annoying} me. I don't know where you got that idea from but I sincerely try to be nice to them and no harsh words were ever exchanged between us ever. I'm really happy that Jimmie is a joy to them and that does ease up things a bit for all of us.

Keep well and until to-morrow, with that same love to you, I am

Faithfully yours,
 Florence
