STUDENT UNION FILMS

Friday, February 9, 7:30 p.m., 101 Science & Arts. THE DEVIL'S WANTON—Directed and written by Ingmar Bergman.

The first film of Ingmar Bergman to be made from his own story, directed in the period of his strongest pessimism toward life and strongly fore-shadowing the later SEVENTH SEAL. The original title, PRISON (FANGELSE), sums up the director's view, toward modern life at the time he made the film; that life is a total hell from which there can be no salvation. At many points the film suggests comparison to the classic German films of the twenties, as well as to the French avant-garde efforts, particularly those of Cocteau.

Set in the surroundings of a movie studio, THE DEVIL'S WANTON is a powerful expressionist love story of a prostitute and a neurotic actor-writer. In telling it, Bergman has utilized a most distinguished and capable cast.

Tuesday, February 13, 7:30 p.m., 101 Science & Arts. LORD JIM—Starring Peter O'Toole, James Mason, Curt Jurgens, Eli Wallach, Jack Hawkins, Paul Lucas, Dalila Levi and Akim Tamiroff.

Written for the screen and directed by Richard Brooks.

A gigantic motion picture based on the great story by Joseph Conrad, Jim, a ship's officer, dreams of the day when his mettle will be tested and proved. In a moment of weakness he commits an act of cowardice and is banned from Western society.

Jim's search for a second chance takes him to the jungles of the East where a feudal warlord is terrorizing the peace-loving population. The opportunity to prove himself comes full circle as the spectre of his former cowardice is resurrected and his courage is tried once again in time of crisis.

Nixon Looks For Students

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Ron McCoy, National Chairman of Youth for Nixon, has announced plans to mobilize American college and high school students who support Richard Nixon. McCoy, a sophomore at Arizona State University and a past President of Boys Nation, stated, "Richard Nixon speaks for our anxious generation—concerned over the war in Vietnam, the urban crisis, and the very quality of American life. We are encouraged by the thousands of students who have already indicated their desire to speak up for him."

McCoy stressed the importance of political participation by people under 25, half of our population, in the election ahead. "It is clear that our generation will play a very large role in the political developments of 1968. Richard Nixon's experience, intelligence, and understanding mark him as the man for our times."

The principle activity of Youth for Nixon is the Program for Victory. Students will work together or as individuals without endless telephoning or ringing doorbells to recruit new supporters for Mr. Nixon. The Program for Victory will give each participant an opportunity to be of great assistance in the campaign and a chance to see the results of his efforts.

A major effort is also being made to establish Youth for Nixon Victory Teams at American universities and high schools. Victory Teams will be the primary focus for group activity for the group for group activity on the campus and can be composed of five or more students.

Additionally, Youth for Nixon will provide materials for those students supporting Mr. Nixon in Mock Political Conventions. Literature, posters, buttons, and other campaign materials will be available for these events.

All students interested in more information regarding membership in Youth for Nixon should write Ron McCoy at 1726 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Classrooms In Europe

Nine groups, each containing twenty to thirty selected American college students, will form seminars in various European cities next summer to study the language, culture and civilization of these countries during a nine-week stay. Designed for the serious student who does not plan to see all of Europe in a short summer, Classrooms Abroad tries to give him a more profound experience through a summer of living in one of the following cities: Berlin or Tubingen in Germany; Vienna in Austria; Vichy, Grenoble or Rouen in France; Neuchatel in Switzerland; Madrid in Spain and Florence, Italy.

Graded classes in small sections of six to ten students, each under the supervision of American and native professors, will deal with the reading of classical and modern texts, the daily press, contemporary problems, conversation and grammar. Students will also hear lectures on history and literature and meet with outstanding personalities. They will have full auditing privileges at the university in each of the selected towns and cities and will participate in all academic and social activities with German, Austrian, Swiss, Spanish and Italian students.

Members of Classrooms Abroad will live with private families in each city, eat many of their meals with their hosts and share the activities of their sons and daughters. They will have ample opportunities to meet young people from student, religious, and political organizations. Regular attendance at concerts, theatres and movies as well as visits to museums, libraries, factories, youth organizations and other points of interest are included in the program. Each group will follow its seven-week stay in a city or town with an optional two-week tour of German, French, Spanish or Italian areas. Since most programs end in mid-August, participants have a chance to remain in Europe for private travel after the program. "We have found through many years of experience that it is quite possible, even if you don't know a word of the language, to learn more than a year's worth of college German, French, Spanish or Italian in the course of a summer," says Dr.

Critical Teaching Shortage NEA

WASHINGTON (CPS)—Officials of the National Education Association are concerned because many of today's top college students are not entering the teaching profession.

And they think it is time for the federal government to step in and start doing something about it. The government's role, according to NEA's 1968 legislative program, is to provide the funds to make it possible for local school systems to offer attractive salaries to top students.

"We would want to get every best student on today's campuses to come into teaching, and the only way we can do it is to provide adequate salaries," according to NEA president Braulio Alonso, principal of King High School in Tampa, Fla.

NEA announced this week that it will pressure Congress to approve a bold $6 billion "urgent needs" education program. At least half of the $6 billion, according to NEA officials, would be tagged for increasing teacher salaries and attracting additional qualified persons into teaching.

In addition to providing higher pay for teachers, the NEA program is "aimed at curbing a national teacher revolt and providing a comprehensive education program to stem the tide of summer riots."

Draft Deformations For Peace Corps
WASHINGTON—The Peace Corps has announced it will intervene on behalf of Volunteers seeking draft deferments for two years of overseas service.

Agency Director Jack Vaughn, concerned by mounting induction calls to Volunteers serving overseas, said he will take an "active role" in seeking future deferment cases before the Presidential Appeal Board—the court of last resort for draft reclassifications.

In the past the agency performed a largely informational function—advising Volunteers and trainees of Selective Service laws and procedures and confirming to local boards the fact of the Volunteer's service.

In future appeals, Vaughn will write letters to the board describing the circumstances in each case and urging board members to grant a deferment until completion of the Volunteer's overseas tour.

KSC's Watch
As Student
Is Attacked
Lawton Bourn

It has happened at most large colleges in the United States at one time or another but it shouldn't happen here. It happened four weeks ago to two Harvard students walking home in Cambridge but it wouldn't happen here. Apathy is rampant but not here. At Keene State College it has happened not once but twice! For the second consecutive year a student has been the object of an unprovoked attack on or near the campus. That such attacks should occur anywhere is bad enough but that the incident of three weeks ago should have an audience of passing students is sad.

About 4:15 on January 26, the last Friday of exam week, two fellows were walking through the parking lot between Fiske Hall and Butterfield. One of the two was obviously walking between buildings as he had on no jacket and his arms were full of goods. This was the victim of this attack. Four or five fellows jumped from a parked charcoal colored Corvair and began to beat this fellow mercilessly while his buddy and passing students looked on. Even when down on the ground this fellow received terrible kicks and stomps from these toughs. With one exception no one apparently did anything to aid this individual.

This type of incident poses some interesting questions for all of us especially those who witnessed the particular event in question. WHAT would you do if it was someone you loved and knew well? WHAT would you think if the unfortunate student was you? It could very well be you next time. How would you like to see people passing all around you while you're being attacked? In case you don't think such events occur when many people are around I'll give you some examples. Perhaps the most infamous was the stabbing of a young woman witnessed by 44 people who "didn't want to become involved."

Another would be the woman who gave birth to a baby on a sidewalk in New Bedford, Massachusetts, and a third would be the case of the secretary who was raped in clear daylight during office hours before the entire office. Fortunately for this woman one man managed to "come to" and captured her attacker before he fled. The list is endless and growing every day but I think you see my point. We don't have a campus police force, and I don't think we need one, but we do have self-respect and I do think we need that. . . I said that there was one exception to the apparent lack of concern. One person tried to get into Fiske Hall and phone the police but the doors he tried were locked. Although the attacked student remains unknown he might be interested to

FELDMAN CITES KING DEAL

TEACHERS' MONEY GOES TO COURT BUILDING

Bob Higgins

In an exclusive interview with the Monadnock, Saul Feldman, former Representative to the General Court of N.H. accused Governor John King of being responsible for the defeat of the $5,200 minimum teachers wage bill in the State Senate during the 1967 session. "The governor could have brought the bill (teachers wage bill) up but he realized that he couldn't get the money to implement it because it would jeopardize his own personal program," he said.

According to Feldman the Governor proposed the idea of the bill this session and was sympathetic to it; however, when the final showdown came in the Senate the Governor did not throw his full support behind the bill.

The Bill was brought to the floor of the House and was pushed through the house by the House Majority leader Marshal Cobligh (rep. Nashua). It then went to the Senate but was held up in the Senate Appropriations Committee and later dropped because of the lack of funds. Feldman said, "the Senate had no other choice then to not bring up the bill because they didn't have the money. If the Governor was as interested as he said he was, then he could have had the bill brought up and pushed it through the Senate."

There are other things involved that don't come to the surface when the issues are first examined, Feldman said. For instance Governor King wanted to have money appropriated for the construction of a new Supreme Court building; and House Majority leader Cobligh wanted to have money appropriated for a newly proposed Vocational Technical School, he said.

The House Appropriations Committee rejected the Cobligh request for $2.5 million for the construction of the technical building, but did appropriate $250 thousand for the acquisition of land for the site of the school.

After the defeat of the technical building appropriations, Cobligh and King called for a joint conference between the House and Senate Committee of Conference, he said. The meeting ended in full agreement; King got the $1.5 million for his technical building, Feldman said.

"The money for the Supreme Court Building and the newly proposed Vocational Technical Building for Nashua came from the future income of the new Rooms and Meals tax, and from no other source. This is money that could have been used differently by the three state schools, the University, Keene, and Plymouth, for very important and vital needs," Feldman said.

The technical school is not needed in Nashua, Feldman added, because there are adequate facilities in both Manchester and Concord which are not being used to capacity. Many students who would like to go to the technical schools cannot get in because of the stiff requirements, he said.

The new Supreme Court Building is not needed either, Feldman said. The judges never asked for it because they themselves felt that there was no need for it according to Feldman.

"I feel definitely that there was a deal made and it would have to be made with the knowledge of the Republican leadership in the House," Feldman said. But the governor wanted to go down as a supporter of the teacher's minimum wage bill, and Cobligh wanted his Vocational Technical School for Nashua. As the deal ended up, Feldman concluded, Cobligh would support Governor King's Court Building and King would support Cobligh's Technical School.

Feldman said that the money from the Rooms and Meals tax should have gone to education and other such important and worthy causes, but he added, instead the students get higher tuition fees and lower appropriations for education; while the Governor and Cobligh get their two dreams.

Isn't it interesting, he said, "that the University promised that if the Rooms and Meals tax went through that there would be no increase in tuition fees. Where is all the money going? Feldman asks, $4 million of it will go to the Court Building and the New Technical School.

Feldman posed one final question at the end of the interview. "Why all this terrible waste of money?"

Violinist To Give Two Performances

Francis Fortier, violinist, will give two performances at Keene State College as part of the 1967-68 Concert and Lecture Series. His first concert, a violin recital, on Monday, Feb. 19, will start at 8:30p.m. in Drenan Auditorium. He will be assisted by Judith Olson, pianist. "The Violin and the Dance" performance, on Tuesday, Feb. 20, will also start at 8:30p.m. in Drenan Auditorium. This concert will consist of a violin recital by Mr. Fortier and the ballet dancing team of Dorothy Fiore and Orlando Zavarco.

"A young artist with the promise of a great future" is violinist Francis Fortier, possessor of unique interpretive gifts in his wealth of ability. In addition this young artist has an engaging stage presence and has already won the highest praise wherever he has performed.

He has been invited by the Bureau Artique d'Athens Organisation Artique Internationale to perform in Greece. His debut in Athens is being planned for October 14, 1968, as well as other appearances in the provinces.

A concert engagement this past Fall in Italy has made it possible for an extended invitation to Mr. Fortier for a return to Italy in late August and September 1968, with performances being planned for Rome, Capri, Cortina, and Taormina.

August 12-18, 1967, Mr. Fortier was the featured artist at the Bar Harbor Festival, Bar Harbor, Maine. Dorothy Fiore also made an appearance to the Bar Harbor Festival as a ballet soloist.

Mr. Fortier appeared as soloist in 1967 with the New York State and Virginia Symphonies during his annual Spring Tour.

Dorothy Fiore, a student of Mne. Alexandra Danilova, Mia Slavenska and Leon Danielian, has danced with the New York City Opera (Lincoln Center), Philadelphia Opera and with the Hmaburg (Germany) Opera Company at the Metropolitan Opera, Lincoln Center.

Appoints Postponed To March 11

Dr. J. Henry Hastings of the Office of Student Teachers announced a change in registration dates for student teachers from the week of February 12 to the week of March 11. This postponement of one month was mainly brought about because of the difficulties in getting all evaluation sheets filled out in time for the deadline.

Dr. Hastings further added, "We feel we have to know a little bit about the student's background in order to place this individual in a teaching position where he will be comfortable, happy and successful." The day of the week and the hour for which prospective student teachers registered for interviews in February will remain the same for the week of March 11.

The Monadnock

SPIRIT IN WHITE

Last semester (around Greek Week-end) the MONADNOCK acknowledged the emergence of a rare commodity at K.S.C.—Spirit! It was, however, as short-lived as bargain day at the book-store.

Once again the Monadnock appeals to the student body to begin the new semester with a revival of the new spirit. Although most students are "too busy" to involve themselves in campus means something to them.

Winter Carnival is just around the corner and if some new snow arrives, it would be nice to see the various campus houses and organizations building snow sculptures to keep vigil over the week-end.

Last year the three fraternities and the married students participated. Between 200 men in Huntress and 500 women in dorms, one would expect at least one or two other sculptures to be built.

The Carnival is only one facet affected by Keene's apathetic aborigines. We have organizations, councils, theater productions, and athletics. It's time we realized that our responsibilities go beyond class attendance, and reporting home each week-end. Statistics show there are three students outside the school waiting for your seat inside the school. This is not, however, justification for simply sitting around.

Editor's Note: Next issue the Monadnock will begin publishing an informative series of articles on drugs—the types abused, their effects, their dangers, prosecution of drug users on college campuses across the nation, and a view of the presence or absence of drugs on the Keene State College campus.

Vehicles in campus parking lots must have second semester identification stickers and must be parked in conformance with regulations. Violators will receive a parking ticket for the first offense and repeaters will be towed away at the owner's expense.

Recently interlopers in campus parking lots have pre-empted space for which others have paid, and there also have been problems caused by vehicles that interfere with snow removal. This is notice that enforcement will be more strictly and extensively carried out.

It's Snowing Alley Oop Editor:

The above title is what I propose for this year's Winter Carnival theme. I am not in favor of the theme that has been chosen (It's Snowing Charlie Brown) because it is too similar to UNH 1967 carnival theme (Snoopy's Wintertime Dreams) which was excellent back when the Peanuts craze was really big. But more important, using the Peanuts caricature is not original or very creative. Poor old Snoopy and Charlie Brown have been so over used that they are being worked to death—and we are contributing to this unobscure cause. (The Red Baron will have nothing on us!)

Just because we're a small state college doesn't mean we have to stick to the conventional. I don't like the idea of going to a school where they do things just like the big schools only a year later.

However, if breaking away is still impossible, and we have to stay with the funny paper and what was "in" last year, I will propose some additional themes other than my friend Alley Oop. Perhaps "Joe Paluka's Wintertime Dreams, or from Dick Tracy, "Sam Cachem in a Snowbank," or better yet "Waltz in White with Daddy Warbucks," with star a-go-go girl Anne Fanny.

At any rate lets leave Peanuts to Charles M. Schultz their creator and our Winter Carnival theme to our creative students.

Student Senate

by Don Nelson

The long lost ice-skating rink, when are the library hours going to be extended, who should handle next year's college handbook, and girls in Huntress Hall were among the more pressing issues brought before the first meeting of the K.S.C. Student Senate.

Following the opening of this initial meeting of the second semester by President Pat Corbin, the question of constitution ratification was the first order of business. A new organization, the Campus Student Christian Organization submitted its constitution which was ratified; an updated constitution to the Young Republicans Club was also passed.

In the first committee report, the skating rink was brought up again only to find there still is no place to put it. Mr. Kenny, faculty advisor, said he would help the committee find a home for the rink.

Brian Maynard, head of the Senate Finance Committee, reported that most of the proposed budget of campus organizations were in. The Finance Committee is compiling these budgets of future expenses in order to present President Zorn with the necessary information for the much-needed Student Activity Fee increase. President Zorn will, in turn, supply this information to the Board of Trustees for their approval.

The library hours question was discussed; the hours will be extended on a trial basis to ten o'clock with the hope students will make effective use of the time. Longer hours may come if this trial proves productive, along with possible 24-hour library hours the weeks before and the week of the finals.

The Handbook Committee reported on other handbooks they have obtained from surrounding colleges. This committee is advising the Senate on the feasibility of President Zorn's request that Senate assume the responsibility of writing or revising the college handbooks.

know that this one person has told me that he would be willing to testify if it so developed. I think that this one person has done much already to help this young fellow. ## Peace Corps

Since the Peace Corps service was created by President Kennedy on March 1, 1961, in order "to promote world peace and friendship," 25,000 Americans have gone overseas as volunteers. Ninety-six per cent of these people, (all over eighteen years of age) have had college degrees, although they are not necessary.

Thursday and Friday, February 9th and 10th, three Peace Corps volunteers visited the Keene State College campus, distributing pamphlets and making the Peace Corps Placement Test available to all those interested in it. These three were Tom Conroy, who spent two years in Bolivia working on a community development program; Don Downer, who just returned from Ethiopia where he worked in the field of education, and Maria Vieira.

Now back in the States, Maria, like Tom and Don, is a member of the Peace Corps Staff, and spends much of her time visiting various college campuses around the country, trying to interest students in the work of the organization.

Maria got back from Brazil, where she worked as an assistant nurse, in December 1966. While there she was stationed at a health post sixty miles from Rio de Janeiro, where she "kept shop" while the doctor was away—which meant every day but Tuesday and Thursday. She described the life as hard, due to the extreme ignorance and superstition of the large part of the population, but very rewarding.

While at Keene, Joanne Coyne, formerly a Peace Corps worker and currently a sophomore at Keene, welcomed the volunteers and helped them in their program, which included a showing of slides Thursday night. Joanne, like Tom Conroy, was active in the community development program of the Corps.

Anyone interested in applying should complete an application form, available at most post offices, submit it to the Peace Corps in Washington, then take the Peace Corps Placement or Modern Language Aptitude Test, which will be made available.

Pageant Plans Progress

The Keene State College Winter Carnival gets its official send-off a week from today, February 22 at 8:00 p.m. The official starting is the Miss Keene State Pageant. All contestants are students of Keene State and must be nominated by their classmates to participate.

This Pageant is the first step in Miss America competition. The winner of the Keene Pageant goes on to the Miss New Hampshire Pageant to be held in Manchester later this Spring and then, hopefully, on to Atlantic City.

KSC Singers Tour State

While most of the college community was on vacation during the recent break between semesters, this was not the case with the popular Keene State College singing ensemble, the Chamber Singers. Under the leadership of their conductor, Mr. Hugh Bird, the K.S.C. Chamber Singers extended their widening span of accomplishments by becoming singing ambassadors from the Keene State campus to the high schools of the state of New Hampshire. Several weeks of intensive rehearsals led up to the tour, which was successfully presented solely as a public relations effort by the college. In addition to over a thousand miles of travel, performing ten concerts in three days' time proved well within the capabilities of the members of this outstanding campus musical organization.

One of the featured highlights of the tour appeared in the person of Mr. Brayton Adams, Keene High School Junior and son of Dr. Mildred Adams of K.S.C.'s English Department. Young Adams' appearance proved to be one of the most popular features on the program, as he performed guitar accompaniments to several of the numbers sung by the Chamber Singers.

This coming Sunday evening, February 18, the campus community of Keene State College will have an opportunity to hear the excellent and varied program which was presented by the Chamber Singers on their recent tour. A special "at home" concert performance of the tour program will be presented in Parker Hall's Drenan Auditorium on that date at 7:30 p.m. As usual, this concert will be open both to the college community and the general public free of charge.

The program which will be performed by the prominent K.S.C. musical organization this Sunday evening will include Negro Spirituals, folk songs from the Appalachian region of our country, selections from the Broadway musical comedy, "My Fair Lady" and many others. Make plans now to attend this special performance by K.S.C.'s Chamber Singers. The appearance this Sunday evening promises to be one of the outstanding highlights of good musical entertainment offered on this campus during the present school year.

Fraternities Begin Rush

The I.F.C. smoker-held at the Student Union February 5, 1968 began the eight to nine week long pledge program by defining rush procedures and introducing prospective pledges to fraternity life. The three days following, Alpha Pi Tau, Kappa Delta Phi, and Theta Chi Delta respectively, held private smokers to acquaint pledges with the fraternity of their choice.

Preliminary sign-ups beginning the five week observation period began on Monday, February 12. Final sign-ups will take place Monday, February 19. Thursday, March 14 the bid meeting will be held and the list of bids will be posted Friday morning. Friday, March 17 at 7 p.m. the actual "Initiation Week" will get under way.

Motions passed by the I.F.C. in December concerning rush procedures are as follows:

1. An eight to nine week pledge program will be adopted and will begin on February 5, 1968.

2. Active initiation will begin on Friday, March 15, 1968, at 7 p.m. and end on Sunday, March 27, 1968, with it understood that no pledge be subjected to active initiation of longer than six days.

3. All complaints which can not be settled with the fraternity shall be brought before the I.F.C. and all fraternities shall make the pledges rights aware to him before the pledging period begins.

4. The term "Hell Week" will be referred to in the future as "Initiation Week" in all published records of the I.F.C.

5. The observation period should provide an opportunity for the fraternity and pledge to observe each other, during which the character, maturity, and individuality of the pledge is judged as well as the aspects of the fraternity to the pledgee. The development of attitudes, expectations, and criterion of said fraternity should be led in the proper direction during this time.

6. After final sign-ups on February 19, 1968, pledges are not permitted to change to another fraternity pledge program and all rushing procedures end on that date.

Sue Crosby Ambassador

Miss Susan Crosby, of Manchester, N.H., has been selected as the 1968 Keene State College Ambassador for the Experiment in International Living. Soon after the close of school this coming June, Sue will be preparing to spend the summer in Denmark.

A $500.00 scholarship is being given by the Student Senate to Susan for her trip with further financial aid through the community program.

Miss Crosby is a participant in many campus activities: Women's Council, Class Secretary, cheerleading, and has displayed outstanding qualities of leadership and congeniality.

When asked what she hoped to attain from this trip, Miss Crosby replied, "Just to meet new people and see new places, hoping to teach them a little of America and to learn a lot about them."

The people of Denmark certainly offer fulfillment of all the goals Susan hopes to accomplish. We wish her sincerest congratulations on receiving this honor.

McCarthy Greets Crowd At Keene Airport

And In This Corner

by Harold Colburn

(Editor's note: This is the first in a series of articles on presidential candidates for the New Hampshire Primary election. The Monadnock will present objective information on the views and platforms of the major candidates. Just prior to the Primary the Monadnock will announce its choice of the candidates.)

"There will be no speeches touched up with emotional jingoistic slogans voters have been nurtured on, no applause lines sprinkled through his speeches, no false issues dreamed up by flak men to turn this or that minority group on and as little as possible of the traditional hoopla-marching bands, straw hats, screaming fans." This is the description of Senator Eugene McCarthy's upcoming battle for President as described by Paul Wieck in the New Republic.

This new campaign strategy should prove to be very interesting—no beautiful girls like the Romney girls.

His lack of color is beginning to hurt. Many of the people attending a $25 a person talk, many of whom were in the movie business, missed the color so much that they forgot to make those checks for $500 to $1000 that they were capable of making.

The battle between Johnson and McCarthy will most likely be another "Choice—not an Echo!" The only problem is that it appears that the administration is unwilling to have a choice or even the discussion of peace in Vietnam. Democratic National Committee chairman, John Bailey, has reportedly said in a letter that "we Democrats know who our candidate is going to be—Lyndon B. Johnson."

The same John Bailey refused to let Senator Eugene McCarthy appear before the January 8 meeting of the Democratic National Convention. His excuse was that only "procedural" matters were to be discussed.

On January 9, to give another example, The District of Columbia Central Committee barred a peace referendum and a presidential preference contest from the primary ballot to be held on May 7.

Still yet another incident occurred in Fresno, California. State Chairman Charles Warren named a Democratic Advisory Committee with task forces to study various issues. The foreign policy task force came out 15-10 in favor of an anti-Vietnam statement. Then up popped "Vietnam Position No. 2" added to the report. It seems that of the number of delegates who didn't attend the task meeting the majority were enough to support a pro-Vietnam statement. This sounded possible since Warren said that there were 50 members in all. Harry Ashmore, chairman of the Democratic Advisory Committee, was surprised as he thought the task force consisted of 35 members. Warren, according to the "New Republic", enlarged the task force from 35 to 50 so as to make the pro-Administration majority.

Although the color isn't supposed to be in his campaign, there should be a lot of action. McCarthy is being watched by more than just college students. If he should win a few of first primaries he will gain more of the support from Democrats skeptical of Johnson.

In closing, a couple of the campaign signs seen in Chicago are interesting: "Is Lyndon Johnson A Bad Dream?" "If America Needs Lyndon, America Needs Help," and "Bye, Bye Birds."

May Sarton, poet and novelist from Nelson, New Hampshire, came Sunday, February 11, 1968, to library conference room for an informal discussion about her work. Her coming was an effort on the part of Sigma Pi Epsilon (principally writers) to the campus for the purpose of broadening individual horizons.

Many questions were asked, several related to the problem of revision in the writing of poetry. With twenty books behind her, Miss Sarton has a vast background from which she drew her answers. She read from several of her books of poetry and in certain cases she explained the original idea from which her poem was born. She stressed that it is considerably more difficult to write a book of poetry than it is to write a novel. She also mentioned that it is becoming increasingly difficult to publish poetry—but she made it clear that anyone who is good will be published.

The next Sigma Pi Epsilon speaker scheduled is novelist Thomas Williams, of the University of New Hampshire. He will be here on Wednesday evening, Feb. 21, and he will speak in the amphitheater of the S.A. at 7:30 p.m.

R.J. Gets Tanked

The latest addition to the Biology Department in the Science and Arts Building is a marine biology aquarium. Marine biology is the fastest growing, yet one of the least known fields in biology; with this in mind Keene State College is taking its first step into this fascinating portion of biological science.

The new aquarium, which will cost close to $3,000 when in full operation, has a 150 gallon capacity—80 gallons "visible" above, while 70 more are being filtered, aerated, and cooled below. The tank was activated this weekend by members of the biology club. The only inhabitant of the aquarium is a lobster—Homerus americanus—"R.J." for short, whose function for the next month will be to regulate the salt water equilibrium of the tank before any marine environment can be established.

Doctor Guder and Steve Skibniowsky check "R.J.'s" new $3000 home.

Owls Win 103-89

by Bernie Hartshorn

Wednesday, February 7, the Keene State Owls, opened their second semester basketball season by facing the tall and once victorious team from Fitchburg State. Playing on the home court, our young, but anxious team, coached by Mr. Ken Jones, started the first period with a rather cold attitude, which in turn led to a score on the boards that put Keene at the short end of the rope by 15 points.

The picture changed shortly after; the once dead and spiritless student spectators came to life. But I guess they certainly had a good reason to show some dedicated spirit. By the time the half-time whistle blew, the Owls had come from behind and accumulated a 16 point lead, boasting of a 61-45 score. However, one can't get too carried away with a lead of this type, especially when Keene State is in front and showing signs of victory. More than once this year we have led throughout the entire game and somehow, to the disappointment of both the fans and players, have ended on the bottom of the pile.

But the home squad kept hold of the lead, hit with accuracy both from inside and outside, and built their impressive lead to a margin of 25 points at the mid-point of the final quarter. The boys from Mass. couldn't be underestimated, however for before everyone realized, the visitors put their very effective all-court press to work and gradually brought the score difference to a tie. We continually lost control of the ball, either by careless passing, missed shot, or failure to penetrate the tough defence set up by Fitchburg. Thus the score showed the after effects. With three minutes left Keene had witnessed their once brilliant lead diminished to within only two points; a time out was called, and coach Jones gave the last pep talk of the evening. He must have said the right thing, for then on, Keene State kept complete control of the ball the remainder of the game, and when the final whistle blew, had defeated Fitchburg 103-89.

Special attention should be given to the ball players who made the victory possible. Alex Mavrogeorge, high man for KSC with 26 points, did nothing more than keep the team alive. With his brilliant ball control, scoring, and his ability as a playmaker, Keene won their fourth game of the year before a capacity crowd, that was more than thankful for his performance. Brian Abbott and Ken Loughlin were close behind sharing second position with 25 points for our team, but every member, who either entered the game or remained on the bench as supporters, deserves recognition, especially Dan Ring, who came into the game in the second period, showed excellent rebound control, and added 14 points to the final score.

The spirit displayed by the student body, especially after the ball started to roll, seemed like a good addition to KSC sports events. This, I strongly believe is very important in order to have a winning team on any campus. Here on our campus evidence of improved sports is definite and it's about time the students take that role which is so necessary in order to have an effective athletic program. Better results will appear in the end... If everyone shows the spirit that was displayed at the Fitchburg Game.

KSC Ranks Above Mean

As the American necessity of education becomes more acute, the role of smaller colleges, such as Keene State College, becomes more significant. Pressure is brought upon these institutions to upgrade their academic standards and entrance requirements. This pressure is due to the demands of the community and the large amount of new applicants.

In the immediate case, Keene State College has fared well under this pressure. The increased enrollment has led to stricter entrance requirements, enlarged academic staff and facilities, and more demanding scholastic standards.

In the initial semester of the 1967-68 academic year 99 students achieved academic honors. 67 students made the Dean's List, 32 made the President's List. This latter figure is an increase of 67% over the same period last year. The total figure is 6.1% of the student body which is an increase over last year's 5.8% of a smaller student body.

On the other side of the academic ledger is the dropout or failure. Enrollment from the first to the second semester of this year dropped by 173 students. There were also 46 new admissions of which 25 were returning to Keene. This figure and the previous one point out that 194 students failed to return to Keene State this semester. This statistic is divisible into three categories:

1—Withdrawal for personal reasons. This category includes those people who were unable to return for home, health, or fiscal reasons.

2—Withdrawal for academic reasons. This heading takes into account those students who left the institution for a combination of personal and academic reasons. For example: difficulty in curriculum arrangement, academic difficulties, personal loss of interest, low academic achievement due to the lack of maturation, pressure to succeed from outside sources, and over-emphasis on the dollar or social value of a college education by parents, relatives, or high school administration.

3—Academic dismissal: This category includes those students who are unable to meet the minimum requirement of academic achievement demanded by the institution.

4—Graduation: 36 students completed their degree requirements in January 1968.

The first two categories accounted for about 60% of the enrollment decrease. The semester dropout rate at Keene State fluctuates between 80 and 100 per year. The third category, academic dismissal, accounted for the remaining 40% of the decrease. These statistics are somewhat representative for state college today. The number of students in this category is almost equal to those achieving honors.

Academic dismissal occurs when the student fails to keep his cumulative average above the required minimum for two concurrent semesters. When this average drops below

McCarthy Cites 4 New Civil Rights

by Dana Sullivan

On Thursday, February 15, Senator Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.) spoke in Spaulding Gym, saying that the 1968 election would provide a triple referendum.

The Senator said that during the Administration of John F. Kennedy American prestige abroad had reached a new high and there was confidence that the economy could grow without the stimulus of war. But the present administration has allowed the U.S. to become a "stalled society" in not keeping up with the demands of the time. Our overseas relations have been paralyzed by our participation in the Vietnam war.

The Senator proposed a new set of "civil rights" which go beyond the civil rights guaranteed by the Constitution but which are in keeping with the present situation.

1—The right to a decent job. There is no economic reason for any American to be unemployed.

2—The right to an adequate education. Everyone should be educated to their fullest ability.

the required minimum for the first time, the student is placed on probation. During this period of probation the student must raise his average above the minimum or remove his name from the probation list. Failure to do so may result in academic dismissal.

8% of the present student body are now on probation. Although this figure appears high it is below the national average of 10%. This figure also is down 30 from last semester.

In review, Keene State College's academic perspective is good. The percentage of honors and dropouts or failures is not out of line with comparable institutions.

'Ma' Malsch Retires After Nine Years

House Mother "Had That Extra Understanding" Dean Gendron

"She did her best to be fair at all times..." "She helped us to overcome the many difficulties in adjusting to college life..." "Her door was always open to us..." "She made Huntress Hall as much of a home as humanly possible..." "She treated us like we were her own children..." These statements were made by men of Huntress Hall about their House Director, Mrs. Allie Malsch.

Mrs. Malsch, better known as 'Ma' Malsch, retired this week from nine years of service to Keene College. Whether her title was "House Director" or "House Mother"; over 1500 men come under her supervision in those years and most would utter the same words as quoted above if given the opportunity. She loved her work and loved the men she worked with. "I have always been treated very kindly by the men of Keene. I enjoyed being with them and working with them for nine years," she said.

She made many friends here and two of them were her employers. Fred L. Barry, Financial Aids Director and former Dean of Men, said: "I wish every happiness for Mrs. Malsch. I want to thank her for a job well done. She had that extra understanding of a fellows' problem which resulted in a better solution than I, as Dean, could have accomplished alone." The present Dean of Men, Ernest O. Gendron, said, "Mrs. Malsch has served the men of Keene State College in countless ways during the past nine years. First, last, and always her concern has been the individual and his maximum adjustment to the college community. Keene State College has been a better place to live and learn because of her efforts."

Monadnock Hall was her home for seven years. When Randall Hall was completed and the men were temporarily moved to Huntress Hall, she moved with them. She and her husband, Otto Malsch, insisted on being with the men. The fortunate ones on this account were the men because she knew how to handle them. It is difficult to pinpoint her talent. She was part psychologist, part sociologist, part counselor, and all heart.

The main reason for her retirement was health. She intends to cure herself in the accepted way of retirement—she is leaving for Florida in two weeks. She and her husband plan to spend six to eight weeks in the Sunshine State visiting old friends and relatives. When they return it will be to their home in Fitzwilliam.

"Ma" Malsch

"Ma" Malsch has lived in a world of men—and remained a wonderful woman. One of those who was under her charge during her first year at Keene State expresses well the feelings of many—Ernest O. Gendron says, "Best wishes and fond memories go with her from the faculty, staff and students of Keene State College."
