Aceto also said that some defective thermostats were replaced over the summer. "The older thermostats were obsolete and ineffective, and we are replacing them with a newer model."

He said that the maintenance department is keeping a stock on hand, and will replace them as the complaints come in.

Aceto denied that the curtains were flammable, contradicting the report that the second Carle Hall fire was spotted when a student saw the curtains in flames. "We have had the curtains completely checked out, and they cannot burst into flames. The material is such that smoldering is all that can occur."

What action will be taken has not yet been determined. The written report from Underwriter's has not been received, and the college will act according to the report's recommendations, Aceto said.

THE MONADNOCK

Vol. XXIV, No. 2
Sept. 20, 1972

THE ELLIOT COMMUNITY HOSPITAL

The sign at the left will probably be replaced soon by one of the infamous KSC signs that dot the landscape.

Hospital to house KSC services staff

By JOHN BASTILLE
Monadnock Staff Writer

Elliot Community Hospital, (ECH) which now adjoins the college on Main St., will be the new home of most of the KSC student services staff by the fall of 1974, Robert L. Mallat, Jr., KSC director of physical plant said Monday.

The college is acquiring the hospital building for $1.3 million. The state legislature appropriated this money in 1969, Mallat said.

The Elliot Community Hospital will move to a new building on Upper Court St. and will be renamed Cheshire Hospital.

"The purchase of ECH involves 5 acres of land adjacent to the college with structure that provide floor space that we can easily convert to our own needs," Mallat said.

The purchase of the hospital is also a key factor in the college's physical expansion. Without the ECH building it would be very difficult to expand the campus southerly, Mallat explained.

By March or April of next year, the new Cheshire Hospital should be in full use and the present hospital vacated. This will clear the way for moving to begin by early next summer, Mallat said. The move should be more or less complete by the 1974 fall semester.

The ECH Nursing School, now in the south wing of the hospital building, will remain there for the present. The new Cheshire Hospital plans to lease these facilities from the college for at least four or five years, Mallat said.

All student personnel services will be housed in the newly acquired building. Included under this heading are the dean of men, dean of women, dean of students, registrar, directors of financial aids, placement, housing and admissions, and the reading center. Plans call for these services to be on the first floor, roughly where the hospital administration is at present.

The KSC Business Office will also go on the first floor, along with the college switchboard, which will use equipment now being used by the hospital's communication system, Mallat explained. Some of the hospital's laboratory and treatment areas will remain intact for use by the college, Mallat said. The college infirmary will occupy some of this space on the third floor and some in the west wing will be used for research purposes.

An enclosed bridge from the second floor of the KSC Library to the second floor of the hospital building will also be built, Mallat said. The Audio-Visual Department will be housed near the end of this bridge, within easy access of the Library.

The Computer Center, now in a separate building on Appian Way, will be moved to ECH, as will the offices of the Alumni Association, Mallat explained.

The college maintenance services will also move into the hospital building. These include the carpenters, plumbers, electricians, painters, and ground crew. The college security personnel will be centered there as well.

A new central shipping and receiving area will be housed in the rear basement of the hospital building, along with a central warehouse.

As of plans at present, there are to be no classrooms as such in the new facility, Mallat said. There may be space used for instructional purposes, but that would only be in special cases, such as that being the only place the necessary equipment was available.

Hale Building will still be the main center of the administration, Mallat pointed out.

Commons expansion to add 216 seats

By RICK HARTFORD
Monadnock Staff Writer

The KSC Commons will be enlarged and remodeled this year with construction expected to begin in late winter or early spring, Robert L. Mallat, director of physical plant, said last week.

The new addition should accommodate 1800 to 2000 students per meal against the 1100 students it now accommodates, Mallat said. The number of seats will also increase from 488 to 704.

The reason for the expansion, he said, was simply that the dining hall is overcrowded.

The hall will have 3963 sq. ft. of new floor space and the additions to the building will be on the east and west wings.

The original 1460 sq. ft. of space will be remodeled.

The building itself, and the new additions, were designed by Carter and Woodruff, Nashua.

The total cost will be $250,000, and will be paid off by bonds, Mallat said. The retiring of the bonds will be paid by students fees, but will not necessarily increase the room and board fees. Whether the total cost will rise, depends on enrollment, he said.

Mallat said that the new arrangement is also needed to service the projected growth of the college, which is estimated to be 2800 to 3000.

The contractor will be picked by competitive bidding, expected to take place soon.

The existing assembly line-like serving arrangements in the hall will also be changed to "scramble feeding," he said.

Mallat said that the construction is planned to be finished by September 1973.

the commons ..

Scrambling the lines

By RICK HARTFORD
Monadnock Staff Writer

KSC- "Scramble feeding," is simply, "a system where you can get a lot of people through lines over a short amount time," according to Thomas Dowling, director of the Keene State Commons.

Scramble feeding will be the new serving arrangement that will be used when the extension and remodeling of the commons is completed.

Theoretically, there will no longer be a line leading into the street during meals. A student will be able to walk into the commons and go straight to the deserts, the drinks, the hot meal stand, etc. all of which will be separate. The student will be able to pick up what he wants instead of having to file past all the food selections.

Dana Lambert, assistant manager, described it as a system where a person "goes where the least resistance is." This means that one goes first to where there is the least crowd. Lambert said he had experienced "scramble feeding" arrangements before and said that there is "no chivalry" involved.

A "scramble" for the food? Dowling, however, seemed confident that the system would be greatly improved over the present one.

Popular items, such as hamburgers, may be split up into two stations, which would further decrease waiting time, he explained.

There will be some stations where the student will be able to serve himself, Dowling said.

The room and board-students pay now will not increase due to the new arrangements, Dowling said. He did say that he would like 10 cents more per meal, however.

Dowling asked for an increase through the school administration, but the New Hampshire legislature would not allow an increase in room and board fee in any of the state schools.

The commons is now getting 50 cents per meal from each student, Dowling said. This pays for food, labor, and supplies. He continued that the budget for this year is the same as the year before, with meat prices rising 8 to 10 per cent. Because of this, the meals may consist more of hamburger, than London broil, he commented.

ARA food service, one of the largest services in the country, is under contract with the commons.

With the additions, Dowling will receive a new dishwasher, a cooker, and o-

Film Society begins year with Karloff

The Fine Film Society, a campus organization dedicated to bringing rare, classic films to KSC students, will start its third year with nostalgia—the chilling Boris Karloff classics "THE MUMMY" and "THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN."

The Film Society started three years ago when Lawrence M. Benaquist, assistant professor of English, and several students formed the society to show rare films that haven't been seen on the commercial screen for over a decade, and that exerted a profound influence on the American screen.

The two 1930's horror films will be shown at the Waltz Lecture Hall, Sept. 25, at 7 p.m. Donation is 75 cents.

Other classics to be shown this year will be, "Z", "THE GRADUATE", "PAWN BROKER", "LONELY ARE THE BRAVE", and Zifferelli's "ROMEO AND JULIET." The schedule for the latter films will be announced.

The Fine Film Society is subsidized by a grant from the N.H. Commission on the Arts, financial aid from the class council, and by subscription and individual admission.

Benaquist mentioned that the Student Union gives no support to the Society, however, Douglas F. Mayer, director of student activities, said that when the Society started a few years ago he didn't have the funds for two separate film houses.

Well, sort of...actually, it's just a bunch of your typical KSC students filing into the Dining Commons to (strangely enough) eat.

ther equipment. A few more people will also be added to the staff, he added.

Asked if there has been any complaints about the service or food, Dowling said that when there aren't any other issues to complain about, the students will always get around to the food.

He said, however, that he took his service seriously and personally, and that his office is always open to "corrective criticism." He has already revised some of the menus according to student tastes, he said.

He has also introduced new and different dishes to the students, he said. He gave as an example, "fried cauliflower." He indicated this is a rare dish, which isn't offered in most restaurants. He balances different meals with common meals too, so students have a choice, he said. If students don't like the food, "let them come to me...I'll take it off the menu."

There is no horsemeat in the dishes, he emphasized.

Dowling said the atmosphere at Keene is good and the "rapport has been excellent." Any grievances last year were worked out, he added.

Students come in all the time this year, he added. Some are "irate", but some come in with good suggestions.

He mentioned that any interested student could run for membership of the Dining Commons Committee. The committee consists of students, Dean of Women Ruth Keddy, and Dowling, and meets every other week in the commons during supper hour.

The students, "shouldn't have to live with something they can't stand," Dowling said, also saying he didn't want any riots because of the food.

Dowling came to Keene last January.

Six seats still empty

Eight students elected to Senate

Eight students were elected to the College Senate Monday night in the second balloting in as many weeks. Six Senate seats remain unfilled however as voter turnout was again low in some departments.

All but two of last week's races were invalidated by the Student Senate due to lack of voter participation.

Mass., a junior; Elementary Education—Larry Colby, a junior from Keene (will be Senator first semester); and Jeanne Schaffer, a junior from Newburgh, N.Y. (will be Senator second semester); and Home Economics—Melody Chase.

The two students whose elections were upheld last week are: Physical Education—Jean Murphy, a junior from Concord, and Music—Leslie Frazier, a sophomore from Hudson.

Senate seats are now vacant in Art, Foreign Languages, Science, Social Sciences (Secondary Education), Industrial Education and Special Education.

Department chairmen will announce dates for elections for these departments, Debbie Neuhauser, Student Senate president, said. The last two have scheduled elections for later this week.

The College Senate is composed of

Cunningham, Lyle, Hayn get Senate positions

By RON BOISVERT
Monadnock Managing Editor

Elections dominated the first College Senate meeting of the year last week with Dr. Richard E. Cunningham, Dr. Cornelius R. Lyle and Dr. Lloyd F. Hayn getting top offices.

Cunningham, a professor of English, was elected vice-chairman of the Senate and Lyle, an associate professor of English and journalism, was elected secretary. The Senate also voted its approval to the appointment of Hayn, professor of economics and chairman of the social sciences department, as Senate parliamentarian.

Joining Cunningham, Lyle and Hayn on the Senate Executive committee will be Dr. James L. Spangenberg, professor of home economics and chairman of the department; Stuart Goff, assistant professor of mathematics; Christopher R. Barnes, college librarian, and Debbie L. Neuhauser, Student Senate president. All four were elected at the Wednesday meeting.

"Upon reviewing the state's political situation, to expect a 30 per cent increase in state support for the UNH system is to aspire something which is not likely to be," Redfern said.

SMOKING RULES: A set of recommendations on smoking in college facilities was referred to the Senate Executive Committee.

The report, which was drawn up by Douglas F. Mayer, director of the Student Union, proposes that smoking be allowed in all classrooms which are well ventilated and free of flammable materials. Ash trays would be installed in these rooms.

Smoking would not be allowed, however, at dances, movies and in the gym when the bleachers are in use.

MORE ELECTIONS: Three faculty representatives were elected to the Student Faculty Hearing Committee. The committee hears cases involving student misconduct which could result in suspension or dismissal.

Elected were: Dr. Michael D. Keller, assistant professor of history; Harold E. Nugent, assistant professor of English, and Jeanne M. Eaves, assistant professor of home economics. The Student Senate will elect three students to the committee.

Finally, three faculty members were elected as observers to the UNH Board of Trustees. Elected as observer to the General Board was Dr. H. Peter Chen, professor of history and chairman of the history department. Dr. Michael D. Keller was elected observer to the board's Personnel Committee and David B. Andrews, instructor in psychology was elected observer to the Educational Policy Committee.

FEAC elections: Faculty members elected to the Faculty Evaluation Advisory Committee (FEAC) in elections held last Thursday are: Dr. Peter H. Jenkins, associate professor of psychology; Dr. Clyde W. Shepherd, Jr., associate professor of education; Francis L. Haley, associate professor of geology and geography; Dr. James G. Smart, associate professor of history; and Peter H. Batchelder, assistant professor of German.

"The fundamental goal of the Special Education program is to provide training experiences of superior quality."

KSC Special Ed clinics are center of new major

A new Special Education major has found its way to KSC under the direction of Clyde W. Shepherd, Jr., associate professor of education.

The program, which was approved last August by the Board of Trustees, centers around clinics in the basement of Huntress Hall, one program for teaching mentally retarded children, and one for teaching disability students.

Michael J. Franklin, instructor in education and clinic co-ordinator said that special education students will also gain experience by working at Crotched Mountain, the State Hospital in Concord, and the Spaulding Youth Center in Tilton.

Franklin explained that the clinics will use diagnosing tests on the children to determine their disabilities. "Our job is to find out why a child is not learning a specific skill and devise a way to remedy that problem," he said.

Students majoring in the Special Education program must also be certified in secondary or elementary education, Franklin explained.

The program is supported by the government, Franklin said, and added that the funds "are geared towards support of the college students and the college program."

Franklin hazarded that the major will have anywhere from 100 to 200 students. An exact number is not yet available because some students are still in the process of changing their major.

"There is a problem now of knowing whether we're going to grow large or keep it small and keep the level of standards high," he said. We'd like to be attractive, but we're forced to be selective.

Working in the department with Franklin and Shepherd are Kenneth E. DeVoid and Russell F. Batchelor, both instructors in education.

KSC faculty receives 3.08 rating

The Keene State College faculty has been given a grade of 3.08 for the 71-72 school year, according to April's faculty evaluation results.

The professors, who were evaluated by the students in most classes, were rated on a 4 point scale.

However, it should be emphasized that the computer did not distinguish between a class of 2 and a class of 50. A 4.0 might therefore reflect a low number of students in that particular class, said Debbie Neuhauser, Student Senate president.

Although a good number of the classes were not evaluated, the evaluation was more complete than most schools, she said.

The evaluation is to assist professors in determining their efficiency rating, Neuhauser said.

"It also should help departments decide how their staff is doing, and which teachers are unfit to teach," Neuhauser said.

"And ideally, it should also help to determine who deserves or doesn't deserve a raise."

The Spring 1972 evaluation marks the

New testing center to open

A new testing center will open this year in the basement of Cheshire House.

The center will concentrate on vocational testing, special interest tests, and personality tests.

"It is a co-ordination of testing," assistant professor of education Sherm Lovering, director of the program, said.

"The administration felt that students finishing school should have an alternative because of the overload in the job market," Lovering said.

"At the beginning of the college year, a student can talk with his adviser, and with the aid of the testing center, determine alternatives if his field is closed," he said.

Graduate Record Exams will also be offered. Students previously have had to go to Massachusetts for the exams.

Other tests available will be high school equivalency tests, reading tests, achievement tests and police department tests.

The center will open soon, when the basement is set up, Lovering said.

The center will be open to the public.

BRITISH EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Students from St. John's College in England are spending four weeks at KSC learning American culture and leaving a bit of theirs. Their faculty leader is Graham Watson (second from the left).

Odd parking regulation

This year's parking regulations state quite adamantly that non-students attending seminars must mail advance for a parking permit.

We wonder how anyone who has never been on this campus, and who might be coming from somewhere far away, could possibly know about this peculiar rule.

We suggest that the Parking Office publish the regulations in the New York Times, the Daily News, the Boston Globe, and the Reader's Digest to make sure that everyone who might be coming to KSC has a chance to read them.

That way, no one can use ignorance as an excuse.

nudity on campus

September's issue of Playboy included a revealing (to use some of their humor) pictorial essay of nudity of college campuses.

Rumors that these pictures were shot at Keene State are entirely unfounded.

bird cage liner

This newspaper is beginning to look like a fraternity.

No one can recall the last time we had a female reporter or editor.

And that just isn't healthy, because you wind up with an all-male outlook on the world.

And look at the mess the world is in now.

So, the point of this dribble is that, if anybody wants to call this paper a male sexist bird cage liner, just remember that it isn't our fault.

Morality not always the most important factor

By ERIC MALONEY
Monadnock News Editor

When a discussion arises over the morality of a particular policy dictated by the Nixon administration, it rarely occurs to anyone that morality plays little or no role in the decision-making of the President.

It is necessary—or, rather, the administration's definition of necessity—that determines what the government will or will not do. If Richard Nixon's advisers decide that a certain action is absolutely necessary for the best interests of the U.S., then morality is no longer a question—the administration sees itself as having one and only one choice.

A good example is Bangladesh. The sympathy of the world lay with the East Pakistanis in their fight for liberation from West Pakistan, and few Americans with a conscience could find in themselves the ability to turn their backs to the thousands of starving women and children.

However, the administration chose to side with West Pakistan, who also had the support of the Red Chinese.

The reason was simple—President Nixon was soon to embark on his trip to China, and thought it absolutely necessary to side with the Communists, in order to avoid as much strain as possible between the two countries.

Campus Ministry asks aid

To the Editor:

Once again this year, the Campus Ministry will correlate the Big Brother, Big Sister program.

Working with welfare and other local agencies and services, the Campus Ministry helps college students meet children with special needs for love, attention, companionship, and sometimes tutorial help.

If you are interested in such a rewarding experience, contact Rev. Gemmell or Mr. Bernier at the Campus Ministry office, second floor, Alumni House.

This year groups will be limited to no more than 25 KSC students; therefore, the first 25 names received become the first group.

Assignments will be made as fast as local agencies can make names available.

Fay L. Gemmell

Similarly, Richard Nixon finds it necessary to maintain the war in Southeast Asia, to uphold America's honor and to convince the rest of the world that we are as strong as we ever were.

The fact that the war is entirely immoral, and that millions of innocent people are being killed, maimed, and driven from their homes, is irrelevant. President Nixon does what he deems necessary, for the survival of America.

The question, therefore, is not whether the Vietnam War is immoral, but whether its immediate termination will threaten the security of America.

If it does not, then it is this point that must be driven home to the American people before the war can be ended.

More importantly, concerned citizens must convince their fellow countrymen that what the administration considers necessary, is not always gospel. With the threat of repressive governing hanging over our heads, it will become easier for the administration to find it "necessary" to usurp the freedoms and liberties accorded to the people by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, to uphold that status quo.

If the government can continue to coerce its constituency to believe that the administration knows best, nothing will stop America from slipping into the bonds of a dictatorial, Orwellian state.

It all boils down to a question of whether the end justifies the means, regardless of the morality of the means. It is a question that had better be asked by a lot of people, and very soon.

THE QUESTION: Overall opinion of this person as a teacher. (Question 12 on the evaluation form).

NUMBERS: Each professor is rated on a 0 to 4 scale, with four being maximum (much like your grade point average). Each figure represents the results from one class.

WARNINGS: If only one or two figures are listed for a teacher, it may not mean that the professor has taught only one or two classes. It may mean that some of his classes were not evaluated.

Also, the computer results do not take into account the number of students in each class on the day of the evaluation. The reason for one 4.0, for example, was that there was only one person in the class on evaluation day.
In conclusion, take these figures with a grain of salt.

Owls take Tourney with win over New Hampshire

By PETE HANRAHAN
Monadnock Sports Editor

Before the largest crowd ever to attend a KSC soccer game, the host Owls captured the KSC Tourney championship with a 3-2 win over the University of New Hampshire. A total of 1,800 fans were on hand for Saturday's victory.

The Owls reached the finals by topping Southeastern Massachusetts 4-0 Friday afternoon. UNH had earlier defeated Marist 3-1, setting up Saturday's showdown.

For Keene State the victory was sweet. State colleges are simply not supposed to defeat state universities. Before the tourney began, it was obvious that Coach Ron Butcher's charges were itching to meet UNH in the finals. For the Owls, things just could not have gone better.

In the UNH contest Keene State's Graham Jones opened the scoring with a 30-foot boot from the left side. Two minutes later Jones scored again. A Mickey Rooney pass led Jones right through the guts of the UNH defense. Jones' initial kick was stopped, but Jones converted the rebound to give Keene a 2-0 lead, ending first-half scoring.

Midway through the second half, UNH halfback Jim Tufts booted home a deflected shot, cutting the KSC lead to 2-1. For Keene, Graham Jones continued his scoring heroics by breaking the UNH defense and drilling his third goal of the day past the UNH goalie.

With four minutes left, UNH scored when Joe Mardock found a loose ball near the Keene net and belted it past Keene goalie Brad Steurer. The Owls held on from this point to capture the tourney title.

Friday's win over SMU was highlighted by a brilliant shutout performance by KSC goalie Brad Steurer. Steurer's most brilliant save came on a penalty kick in the second half. At this point KSC held a slim 1-0 lead. The SMU kicker faked Steurer into the air while drilling a ground-level shot directly toward the center of the net. With a last-second extension of his foot Steurer deflected the ball away from the Keene net. In the next few minutes KSC iced the game on goals by Mickey Rooney, Mark McEvoy and Klaus Webber.

KSC Harriers lose to UVM

Coach Bob Taft's cross country team was soundly whipped by the University of Vermont on Saturday. The Vermonters won by grabbing nine of the first ten places, steamrolling a promising Owl team in the process. Freshman Bob Brown shined for Keene, taking sixth place. Only Brown's performance prevented a perfect score for Vermont. The final tally was 15-48.

Taft made no excuses. His team was soundly trounced by a superior squad. But he does think his team has a lot more strength than it showed in this early season meet.

Brown led the way for Keene, while Glenn Braunhardt and Captain Pete Hanrahan were finishing 11th and 12th, respectively. Freshman Rocky Stone was KSC's fourth finisher, showing a lot of promise, while veteran Keith Martell was fifth man for the Owls.

Don McCarthy, a promising freshman, had a disappointing debut as he developed leg cramps and had to drop out of the race. McCarthy was amongst the leaders before cramping prevented him from continuing. Senior Tom Keegan, recovering from a knee operation, showed considerable progress in finishing seventh among KSC runners.

All in all, seven Keene State runners averaged 5:30 or better per mile. As one Owl veteran put it, "Yes, we are encouraged by our speed at this point, but who likes to lose."

Today the Owls travel to Kingston, Rhode Island to meet URI. Saturday they will host Lowell State and Norwich University at Robin Hood Park.

The Keene State College Rugby Club opens its second season of competition this Sunday (Sept. 24), with three former English players on hand in addition to a host of returning veterans. Game time is 2 p.m. against the Concord Rugby Club.

The Britishers are Ian Leech of Plymouth, England, a senior who advanced to the second of three trials for the national English schoolboy team in 1969; Colin Willcocks of York, England, an exchange student at Keene State, and Mike Roden, a professional musician.

Among the veterans will be Brian

Rugby Club opens at home Sunday

Cowley, a native of Scotland, now living in N. Swanzey, who has 16 years of rugby experience including play with the Cardiff club in Wales, and the Royal Air Force club. He also captained the Wolverhampton club at the age of 15.

In addition, Dr. Joseph V. Stewart, assistant dean of the college, will be at the key position of second row in the scrum. Dr. Stewart, new to the college this season, coming to Keene State from Pacific University on Oregon, has played high school rugby in Canada and is a veteran of college play at Stanford and the University of Rochester.

"We'll have last season's leading scorer returning is Jack Larareo," Stephenson said with a grin. Larareo, a senior from Florence, Mass., and a hooker on the club, scored KSC's only try (goal) last year as the Owls were able to post only a 0-4 record.

"However, I feel strongly that we'll be greatly improved this season," Stephenson said. "We'll achieve our first victory and could well have a fine season, although experience is vital in rugby."

Rugby is played with 15 men on a side: 8 forwards and 7 backs. Play begins with a kick-off and the ball must be carried, kicked or lateraled. Forward passing is prohibited, and substitution is not permitted.

Last year's team was "a new one with mostly inexperienced players," Stephenson said. He described himself as a relatively experienced player with some 60 games behind him. "This is a lot of experience by American standards, but it's nothing to most Englishmen," he said.

English boys begin to play the sport with organized teams at about the age of 12 to 13. "There aren't very many college-aged Americans with 10 years of training and experience with the game," he said.

"The game," he said, "is a lot different from football. It's faster, the action is continuous, and the action is much more spontaneous than football."

"Rugby is a social sport. It's not like football where you're a number, and an opponent and that's all. There's a lot of rivalry on the field, but when the game is over, it's over. Then the home team throws a party for the visitors, and you get to know people as individuals."

This "comradery" he said, "is the most important aspect of the game. The English know a sportsmanship mist' Americans haven't learned yet."

The schedule this fall: Sept. 24 Concord R.C., Sept. 30 at Johnson State, Oct. 7 at Norwich (A and B teams), Oct. 29 at the University of New Hampshire, Nov. 5 University of Massachusetts (A and B teams), Nov. 18 Springfield R.C. (A and B teams).

The Owls put the ball in the net four times in Friday's win over SMU. Keene went on to win the tournament with a 3-2 victory over New Hampshire.

Disrespect proves nothing

By PETE HANRAHAN

Patriotism is out of style. In contemporary America, a person who claims to be patriotic is likely to be identified with murder and war. However, the fact that it is out of style does not detract one iota from the ideals involved.

By conversing and slumping during the playing of the national anthem at Munich, U.S. 400 meter medalists Vince Matthews and Wayne Collet let the whole world now that they were completely indifferent towards being American. When interviewed, the athletes claimed that they saw no reason to stand at attention, as they did not believe in the words to our national anthem.

If principle did not allow Matthews and Collet to respect the American flag and anthem, how did it allow them to accept medals on behalf of this country? If American Olympic citizens had not contributed hard earned money to the American Olympic budget, neither of these athletes would have been fortunate enough to travel to Munich and compete in the games. The shirts that Matthews and Collet wore bore the letters "U.S.A." in bold print. How could they, in conscience, wear such jerseys?

With their exhibition on the victory stand, Matthews and Collet clearly did not represent the United States on the Olympic team. Neither did they represent their race, which they were apparently attempting to do. To be accurate, the shirts of Matthews and Collet should have read "us" and not "U.S.A."

LOUNGING IN A FUTURE PUB?

KSC Student Senators have suggested the use of the Commuters Lounge of the second floor of the Student Union for a new "21 club". The club would serve alcoholic beverages to members of the KSC community and their guests who are 21 years or older. The Student Union Board, the College Senate and the Board of Trustees must still review the idea.

Student Senate calls for on-campus pub

By RON BOISVERT
Equinox Managing Editor

A motion calling for the establishment of an "over 21 club" on campus was passed by the Student Senate Monday night.

The club would serve alcoholic beverages to members of the college community 21 or older and their guests. It should be located in the Student Union, the Senate motion stipulated.

The club would be self-sufficient, not relying on support from any student funds, Debbie Neuhauser, Student Senate president, said.

The fate of the club remains to be reviewed by the Student Union Board, the College Senate and ultimately the University Board of Trustees, however.

The Plymouth State College Student Senate passed a similar proposal last year which was tabled by the Board of Trustees until this fall.

The sentiment within the trustees is favorable to the PCS proposal, David Gagne, KSC student and member of the Board of Trustees, said.

Neuhauser reported that discussion between PSC, New England College and the N.H. State Liquor Commission has shown the Commission in favor of the on-campus clubs.

"We don't want to raise the Union fee, but we don't know how to prevent it," he said.

Increased funds from the college and from enterprises like an "over 21 club" might help keep the Union fee down, Mayer said.

The present commuters lounge on the second floor of the Student Union was volunteered as a possible location for the proposed club. Other students suggested that areas now operated by the KSC bookstore be used.

Mayer said after the meeting that he was "not sure it was realistic to hope to get the bookstore area for the club."

The Student Senate has hired a local lawyer to investigate any legal problems with an on-campus club.

"If all goes well we could have an over 21 club by fall 1973," Neuhauser said.
