Florence, sweetheart:

I love you just as much to-day, only more so than yesterday, and half as much as I will to-morrow, when I will love you twice as much as I ever did before.

Please forgive to-day's shorter than usual letter, but after being tied up the early part of the evening because of company duties, (signing a payroll and having my clothing checked for stamping (rubber)) I have been studying for an exam to-morrow. Received no mail from you to-day, but since I received two yesterday I re-read both of them and felt sure all was under control with you and Sunny Jim. Had a letter from Mandy King, and Bob who thinks he may be washed as a bombardier due to his eye trouble, but you know everything.

happens for the best. He and Fren are quite well and happy, and seem to be not too worried over the situation.

I feel fine, getting along ok at school, which incidentally is located in camp, and not Fort Washington, Md. as Don seems to think. There is one up there that takes 2 months, but I don't expect to go there. I live in some barracks, and get a jeep ride daily to and from classes. Riding in a jeep is fun, and makes me feel like a soldier, if you know what I mean.

There is plenty for me to write about as usual, but my time is short to night. I hope you won't mind, and I will positively do better over the week-end. Hope you and Jim are well, happy, and love daddy, who misses and dreams about you all day and night. Stay well, sweetheart, Kiss Jim for me, and I'll kiss you in mind, with love in my heart always.

As ever,

Gg.
