Trustees vote April 12

Tuition increase is imminent

An increase in tuition for students in the University System of New Hampshire, including Keene State College, seems imminent if the university's board of trustees approves a recommendation made last Wednesday by the trustees' Finance Committee.

means a neutral vote," he said this morning, "but I'm against it until they (university officials) can prove to me that they really need it."

Cole said, however, that he would support a smaller tuition increase and might support the currently proposed one, if it is really needed.

If approved April 12, when the university's board of trustees meets in Keene to vote on the tuition proposal, the hikes would increase KSC in-state tuition from $700 a year to $850, and would raise tuition for out-of-state students from $2,050 a year to $2,300. They would take effect in September.

The additional money would mean a total of $256,000 to KSC in extra revenue.

Thomson 'Take rights away'

Gov. Meldrim Thomson says he will ask the Legislature to strip the rights of the University of New Hampshire's board of trustees to raise tuition rates.

The move comes a few days after the board's finance committee recommended tuition increases for in-and out-of-state students at the four state colleges. The full board will vote on the recommendation later this month.

"The only answer to reasonable tuition for in-state students is to take away from the trustees their statutory authority to raise tuition and other student costs," Thomson said Sunday. "This we shall be proposing in new legislation."

Thomson blamed the trustees and its chairman, Richard Morse, for the increase. He fought Morse's election as chairman and warned his appointment would lead to tuition increases.

Fallat predicts

Weekend should be 'good'

Spring Weekend '78 should be "a good time for the students," Stephany Fallat, Social Activities Council (SAC) vice-president said Monday.

Fallat, co-ordinator of Spring Weekend, said that all but three recognized campus organizations are actively involved in Spring Weekend. These organizations will sell things at the Mardi-Gras Saturday afternoon, she said. The A.H.E.A. will be selling ice cream cones, the Biology Club plants and TKE kisses, she said.

The Mardi Gras on Saturday afternoon will be different from last year, Fallat said. They will serve free beer, both dark and regular, she said. Two bands will be featured, the Silver Star Steel Orchestra, sponsored by SAC, and the Imaginary Dance Band, sponsored by the Pub. The Silver Star Orchestra is a Jamaican band, Fallat said, and they play the kettle drums, and an adapted auto brake. The Imaginary Dance Band is a rock group.

The Anything Goes contest this year will be sponsored by Budweiser, Fallat said. If possible, she said, sometime in October SAC would like to sponsor an Anything Goes contest on campus, and send the winner to the state competition to compete with other colleges. From there, the winning team would be sent to the national competition in Tampa, Fla., for an all expense paid week, she said.

The Superstar teams, which will compete in the Anything Goes contest, are composed of six people, only one of whom can play on a varsity team of any sort, Fallat said. "I realize that it's not fair to the athletes," she said, "but they have other opportunities to compete. We hope that this will give non-athletes more incentive to compete."

Fallat, a senior, would like to see Spring Weekend extended to last a week next year. As for this year, she said, "I hope it's a good weekend and that people have a good time, but I'll be glad when it's over," she added.

Proposal on room draw dropped by CRC Monday

Kim Whitaker
Equinox Staff

The controversial room draw proposal for the 1978-79 school year was dropped Monday night in executive session of the Campus Residence Council (CRC), after some 55 students voiced their disapproval.

Under the proposal, students would have had the option of participating in Room Draw or Room Selection, said Carl Allen, director of residential life. In Room Draw, students would have been assigned a number according to their class standing, he said. Seniors would have been assigned number three; juniors, number two and underclassmen, number one.

In order to determine the appropriate sign up times for Room Draw, the students would have added his/her number to the number(s) of his proposed roommate(s), Allen said. "Two seniors (three points each) who want an Owl's Nest room would sign up at the time for those with number six."

What the majority of students objected to was the second option: Room Selection or what has come to be known as "Squatters' rights." Under the original proposal, Room Selection would have allowed student to sign up for his/her own room or a room on the same floor or house. If a student wanted to move from the floor or house he now occupies he would have to go through Room Draw.

Allen said the number system is more equitable than the process used in the past. "It encourages students to find a roommate and prevents a sophomore and senior of having a better chance at a room than two seniors."

With regard to Room Selection, Allen said, "The rationale behind Room Selection is that people in a room come to identify with that room." He also said that the process allows for continuation of an "established community" in which the student can return to in the fall.

Selectmen discuss formation of media committee

An ad-hoc committee to study the issue of setting up an advisory board for all student media organizations was established by the Board of Selectmen at last Tuesday's meeting.

The members of the committee are Board Chairman John Barbieri, and Parliamentarian Rich Emmel. In addition representatives from each media organization will be invited to serve on the committee, as requested by Student Body President Chris Callahan.

Barbieri said he thought the board should be set up to devise standards for student media organizations. An example would be the placing of stories in the Equinox.

He said a board should be set up because the media organizations have a tremendous amount of power. Then Barbieri added, "We're giving the money and thus we should not let the organizations run rampant."

Callahan said the advisory board should be broad in scope, but not too powerful.

Board Adviser Suanne Yglesias said the use of advertising revenue the media organizations receive would still be a matter for the Finance Committee.

WKNH Station Manager Larry Minichiello said the radio station is under FCC regulations for public radio in which certain standards have to be met.

Charlie Moger of WKNH said the board should be set up to offer recommendations, but not do any arm-twisting.

There used to be a Publications and then a Communications Board for all media organizations. But it just fizzled out a few years ago, Board Treasurer Gerry DeLahry said.

In other action, a proposal to require student organizations to recruit new members at summer orientation was sent to the Student Life Committee and Student Activities Coordinator Suanne Yglesias for consideration.

Under the original proposal, made by Barbieri, incoming students would sign up with various organizations at orientation. Then the organization heads would write letters to all the interested students inviting them to the organization's first meeting in the fall semester. If any organization didn't attempt recruiting, their student activities funding might be jeopardized.

Barbieri said he made the proposal because currently student activities money is often allocated to small organizations. Organizations which often don't undertake many activities or are special interest groups.

Callahan said he would go through with the proposal so long as there would be no threats to jeopardize funding.

Yglesias said student government should also encourage small organizations to program events for the entire campus in any proposal.

Afterwards Barbieri decided to delete the section of the proposal concerning jeopardization of funds.

At the same meeting, the Board passed motions for allocations of Richard Emmel money from the Student Activities Contingency Fund on the Student Body Warrant for the April 18 meeting. The two allocations total $2,995.

DeLahry said the first allocation is $1,500 to pay for next year's operation and maintenance expenses for the Equinox, Kronicle, WKNH, Social Activities Council and Student Government. Expenses the College Administration decided Student Government must pay, beginning next year.

The second allocation is for $1,495 to buy an audio console for WKNH next year, DeLahry said.

Unusually heavy demands may require our setting reasonable quantity limits on some of the items in fairness to all customers.

CRC proposal postponed

expressed fear that underclassmen already living in Owl Nests or in singles on campus would sign up for those rooms again, depriving seniors of an Owl's Nest room.

This was the same fear that some members of the CRC had in March when the draft was first submitted to the committee. The CRC voted then to amend the original proposal allowing a "student living on a floor an opportunity to move to another room on the same floor with the following exceptions: 1) all single rooms on campus; 2) the following Owl's Nests rooms: the apartments, any loft room or any "L" shaped room.

The purpose of Monday's CRC meeting was to vote on this amendment, said Dianne Glaser, chairman of CRC. Because of the disapproval voiced by students the entire proposal was dropped and the amendment was not voted on, she said.

On Tuesday, a survey of room draw proposals is scheduled to be given to all students, including seniors, either by their RA or CRC representative Glaser said. On Wednesday, CRC members will tally the results of the survey and the room proposal with the greatest student approval will be used for next year, Glaser said.

Wiggin wins again Grad student gives math lectures

In a close election, Joanne Wiggin was elected to her second term as president of the Social Activities Council at their March 29 meeting.

Bruce Rajswasser, Bill Reed and Wiggin were nominated for the office. The 14 voting members present were divided on the first ballot, and no candidate received the necessary 51 percent of the vote. Reed and Wiggin received the most votes, and a second ballot found them tied. Each was asked to speak on why they should be president.

Reed, a junior who has been an active member for three years but has never held an office said he would like the experience.

Wiggin, a junior who will be leaving to student teach spring semester, said she is looking forward to serving again. This will also give her a chance to pass on her experience and knowledge of procedures to next year's vice president, who will take over the position when she leaves, Wiggin said.

In the third ballot, Wiggin was elected president by a slight majority.

Reed was elected vice president. He said working with Wiggin first semester will allow him to become president second semester with confidence and knowledge about the office.

Sophomore Jan Zirkelback who was elected secretary, said she is looking forward to next year as a good learning experience.

Kathy Leone was elected treasurer. She said she wants to get more involved with planning student activities and to help recruit new SAC members, and the obligation of an office is a good way to do it, she said.

Rajswasser, a freshman who has been production manager since January, was re-elected to this position.

Joanne Wiggin

Roger Memos was re-elected publicity manager. Memos, a junior, has held this office for five semesters.

Stephany Fallat, vice president, said she thought elections were quicker this year than last and she is confident the new officers will do a "superb job in coordinating next year's social events. From what I've seen this year, they are a hard working and dedicated group."

If sweaty palms, severe agitation and increased respiration are some of the symptoms that occur at the thought of solving a math problem, don't worry - there's a cure. Susan Auslander, a graduate student at Wesleyan University in Connecticut, is a teacher of algebra and pre-calculus at a clinic at Wesleyan which aids adults in math skills while combatting fear and anxiety.

Sponsored by the math department and the Paradox Club, Auslander spoke Monday afternoon on "Math, A Foreign Language I Never Understood." She said math should be considered a foreign language and should not be studied the same way one would study history.

One of the problems many people encounter is they allow their background and limited experience in math to determine their career choice.

At the Wesleyan clinic many students who are juniors and seniors, are enrolled in the program so their career options will not be limited, she said.

Auslander said the clinic operates in small class sizes of 10-15 students. In the algebra course, the emphasis is on problem solving and decreasing the anxiety of students in solving math problems. "It is necessary to set up an atmosphere which is not threatening to the student. The chairs are set up in a circle and students work in small groups," she said.

State secretary to speak here

William Gardner, New Hampshire secretary of state, will visit the KSC campus next Wednesday, April 1. Dr. J.B. Wolf, of the Keene State political science department, said Monday that Gardner will hold two public question-answer sessions.

The first session, from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., will be an informal question-answer period in the Student Faculty Lounge of the Student Union. The second session, from 2 to 4 p.m., will begin with a formal presentation by Gardner, Wolf said, and then be opened to questions.

Gardner, a democrat from Manchester, was a member of the state legislature before being elected secretary of state. His duties now include voter registration, overseeing election laws and the incorporation of businesses.

Take heart—There's good news at KSC

This is not the happiest time of year for KSC students. The April mornings are like January's; cold and dreary. Finals are quickly approaching, and most students are inflicted with "term paperitis." Also on-campus students face a hike in costs for operation of the Dining Commons because the food they are now "eating" is too expensive.

But cheer up; there's good news if you look hard enough. Here are some obvious examples.

Students start write-ins

Since the campus has been informed of the lack of students running for government positions, many have initiated write-in campaigns. Even a late response is better than a vacant seat. At least this gives the campus a choice for their representative. We are encouraged.

Greek Weekend is free fun

Despite bad weather and stolen chariots, Greek Week was a success. Moving away from the typical "blood and guts" competition between fraternities and sororities, the Greek organizations enjoyed lighter activities like water polo, foosball and beer chugging. The week's finale, a party at Phi Mu Delta, was free and open to the entire campus. We hope Greek Week continues in the same fashion.

Appian Way closing planned

Plans to close Appian Way to traffic in September are moving forward. A petition to close the "Main Street of Keene State," authored by Selectman Robert Owen and Student Body President Chris Callahan, has produced over 800 signatures.

Preliminary discussion with Robert L. Mallat, director of physical plant indicate he is for the closing providing emergency vehicles can still have access to the road. The Appian Way issue should be a priority item at this month's meeting of the college Master Planning Committee.

Room draw proposal canned

Fifty-five lobbying students Monday night proved that we all have the ability to speak out on our own living conditions. The students crammed into Student Union conference rooms A and B to protest a plan devised by the Residential Life Office to change the room draw system. Their arguments were successful in stalling any further action until a survey can be presented to the student body.

Those students protesting showed real responsibility; their actions prompted the only sensible result - to ask the student body what they would like.

Spring Weekend soon to arrive

Finally, there's this year's annual blowout Spring Weekend. SAC, in cooperation with many student organizations, will present a varied schedule of events including the annual talent show, Budweiser's answer to "Almost Anything Goes" and the Saturday night concert featuring, NRBO and the Atlanta Rhythm Section.

Oh yes—Tuition will rise again!

One final note - the Finance Committee of the Board of Trustees has voted 9-1 to increase next year's tuition $100 for in-state and $250 for out-of-state students at KSC. The full board will consider the tuition hike at their April 12 meeting at KSC.

And we are saddened to admit we agree with Governor Meldrim Thomson on something. He opposes the tuition hike; but for all the wrong reasons. Thomson wants to take the power of increasing college costs away from the trustees and making it the legislature's sole prerogative.

Sorry for those last two bits of woe. Being optimistic is one thing; being unrealistic is quite another. Keep smiling.

ANNOUNCEMENT

All on-campus advertisers please read this:

As most of you know, we now must have a purchase order accompany any request for ad placement. PLEASE FILL THOSE ORDERS OUT COMPLETELY. We must know dates, ad size, account number and who the order is from.

Art professor Jack Marshall recently proposed that the maintenance department should cover the hole in the side of the art building with a window instead of the cardboard that was there all winter. He said he thought a window would keep the heat in a lot better than cardboard does.

At the same time, he said, he thought maintenance would brick up the hole in the recently half-torn-down smokestack. It didn't work out quite the way he had imagined.

Instead, the hole in the building was bricked up and the smokestack had a new window put in. Marshall's reaction?

"Typical. I thought it was something that would happen in the Army or Washington, yeah, Washington. But it's typical of this place, too."

In commemoration of the first windowed smokestack in the entire world, probably, but KSC if not, the Equinox is going to sponsor a contest.

We solicit responses from all members of the college, be you students, faculty, "deep voice," the anonymous tipper, or even administration (they have imaginations, too. Look at the reorganization, who but someone with a vivid imagination could have thought of that?). The most imaginative response will be printed with the name of the winner next week. So get those answers in.

Oh yeah, the contest. "What can you do with a window in a smokestack? Winner gets a case of beer."

Our apologies to Paul Burke, candidate for senior class vice-president for not mentioning him in last week's issue.

The next Bloodmobile in Keene will be at St. James Episcopal Church, on Monday, April 10th.

Pie the face of your choice!

Thursday at 6:30 p.m. is your chance to Pie A Person (PAP) at the first of the Senior Class fundraisers. Successful bidders for each of the volunteer faces will be evaluated on pre-pie comments, form-including wind-up and wrist action, post-pie comments, and ability to not dribble pie on one's self. Audience acclaim will determine a winner who will be given the opportunity for a self-inflicted piecing.

Among the approximately 30 volunteer faces so far are: administrators J.J. Cunningham, Dean Ronald Herron, faculty members Dr. Michael Keller, Dr. Steve Smith, Dr. Joseph Rousseau; Resident Directors Polly St. Hillaire, Steve Kirsch, Carol MacKenzie; Resident Assistants Bob Zimmerman, Nancy Brubaker, Paul Burke, Dianne Glaser; Security Officer Clay Foster; Alpha President Ed Smith; and Student Body President Chris Callahan. There are but a few of the respondents to invitations to participate.

Please come to the Mabel Brown Room with cash and/or checkbooks in hand, prepared to bid for the face of your choice. PAP NEEDS YOU to make this an unqualified success. Thanks.

Jon Harris
Senior Class President

MS Dance Marathon profits over $3,790

To the Editor:

A dance marathon for Multiple Sclerosis was held here at Keene State in late January. The money turned in totals $3,790.18.

This money will be used for research in finding a cure for the many young victims affected by this disease.

I would like to extend a very sincere thank you to the 40 students who participated in the marathon, and also the people who sponsored these dancers.

Sincerely,
Debbie Pelletier
Co-Chairman of MS Dance Marathon

Hogan asks for support from Seniors

To all members of our class:

The time has come that we must begin to organize our class for the senior year. It is up to you members of our class that we have a fulfilling year to remember. I am a candidate for class president, and if I am elected president, I will see to it that our class will receive my fulltime loyalty. I do understand that this is an important position to hold, and that is why I made an effort to individually speak with all members of our class. As president, I will gather our class together for a great year.

If elected class president, I will remain on campus for the summer months and I will also be a dorm resident throughout the Senior year. My door will be open to everyone. But before I fulfill my hopes, I need your help. Again, I ask you to support me in this election.

Hopeful,
Joseph Hogan

Candidate's efforts supported

Why has Joseph Hogan campaigned so hard in this election?

Why does he make it an effort to speak to every member of our class?

Why does he want the important job of being our class president?

Because he is concerned! That's why!

We the students in the class of 1979 recognize Joseph Hogan's hard efforts to become our class president and for that reason we hereby express our public concern for him and we ask all other members of our class to consider voting for him April 6.

Student clarifies Conference objectives

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter regarding the Conference on Women and Alcohol to be held at KSC on April 15. As a student who enjoys alcohol myself, but more importantly as a concerned human being, I feel it is important to clarify what I see as the objectives of this conference.

The use of alcohol plays a large part in our culture, yet many of us are unaware that alcoholism has become a leading health problem. It is a disease which destroys lives and touches each and every one of us in some way. This conference is meant to serve an informative, educational and awareness raising function. It is not meant to judge or moralize about anyone's drinking habits.

We often tend to see things in dichotomies; right or wrong, good or bad. I'm hoping that we can be open enough to take advantage of this conference as an excellent educational opportunity.

Sincerely yours,
Debbie Rader
Conference Committee Member

'Wipe out entire KSC population...through their stomachs!'

To the Editor:

Alright, we live up. The secret is partially out so you might as well know the whole story.

Yes, our new coffee is laced with Mexican herbicides. Yes, our service is deliberately slow; we want to raise your blood pressure. Yes, we burn any food that a healthy looking person orders. Yes, the brownies are laced with Ex-Lax. Yes, we fry the french-fries ten hours ahead of the time you will be coming in, dying for fresh, hot fries. No, we have no idea what is in the soup, all the cans are unlabeled and slightly rusty. Yes, we have

Blood Drive shows increase over 1977

To the Editor:

At the blood drawing on March 27 and 28 a total of 330 pints were donated - 152 on Monday and 178 on Tuesday. This is a good increase over the 273 pints donated a year ago in March 1977. On behalf of the students, other donors and many volunteers who gave of their time and blood to make this a successful drawing.

We still have a goal of 400 pints for the two days and hope when we return to KSC in October this will be met. I know with your help we can do it.

Sincerely,
Donna Rossiter
Blood Program Chairman

an economic adviser who lets us know when raising our prices will hurt you the most. And finally, yes, at 11:30 every day we prime for the lunch rush with fifteen minutes of meditation aimed at slowing down our metabolisms so that we can drive you to distraction waiting for your food.

That's all of it. We fully confess to all of our misdeed. However, we feel you should know the reason for our actions.

It is simply that we work for the C.I.A. Yes, we know it's far-fetched but it's true. Our assignment is to wipe out the entire campus population of KSC.

The Dining Commons is in on it too. We were told to complete our assignment as efficiently as possible without arousing suspicion, so we decided to work through the stomachs of the population.

We have to wipe out the campus before our leader, Uncle Mel, becomes president so he can use it as his personal playground.

We apologize for the inconvenience of our little plan, but unfortunately it must be done. Now that you understand our reason, you might feel more kindly toward us.

SOUND ROOM?

When you hear "Sound Room" you have to think of audio lab first. You see, we at Audio Lab were the first people to have a fully functional sound room in this area. Our deluxe switching networks allowed you, our listeners, the flexibility of comparison shopping. At Audio Lab you have always been able to hear any set of speakers with any amplifier or Am-Fm stereo receiver! And, you can also hear any of our turntables or tape decks. Yes, we must admit that we have set the pace for proper stereo shopping, and we did it over 7 years ago!

Today Audio Lab has two stereo system listening areas, but the best is yet to come! It is our new "High End Room." This third listening area will feature purely "state of the art" Hi Fi. We can't wait to set an even newer tempo for Hi Fi here.

Greek Week goes on despite stolen chariots

Jenn Younie
Equinox Staff

Greek Week is the time when fraternities and sororities demonstrate to the campus what they are about. It was a success despite being marred by bad weather and stolen chariots which caused the cancellation of some planned events, George Edwards, Inter-greek Council President, said.

Chariot races were scheduled for Saturday at noon, but were cancelled because four chariots from Tau Kappa Epsilon, Phi Mu Delta, Alpha Pi Tau and Kappa Delta Phi were stolen.

Edwards heard a rumor at Friday night's mixer in Randall lounge that they would be stolen, so he and several others left to investigate.

After a quick search the Keene police were notified and Officer Steven Waal responded. Since then three chariots have been found, all in a two or three block radius of the fraternities. Sigma Rho Upsilon also owns a chariot but it was not stolen, Edwards said.

According to Waal, the case is still under investigation. Edwards said that chariot races are one of the traditions of Greek Week. "It's really unfortunate it couldn't work out," Edwards added.

The week began with opening ceremonies at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday on Fiske lawn.

On Saturday there was a Greek picnic at the college camp from 1 to 10 p.m. Organized events were cancelled because of rain, Edwards said, with softball, frisbees and a marathon blackjack game in their place.

According to Edwards, there were two reasons why more events were not opened to non-Greeks. First, some members feel Greek support from the campus has declined quite rapidly in the last year. If the campus doesn't want to support us, they feel they should not go out of our way to help them.

Edwards said this is too "isolationist." The reason the final party was open was an attempt to move away from extreme isolationism.

The second reason was, "traditionally, Greek Week has been 'cut-throat, blood and guts' competition between houses," Edwards said. He said this was unproductive, so lighter activities were planned this year.

According to Edwards, this change in the mood of Greek Week helped to cut down on animosity between houses. "This week did more to bring Greeks together than anything in recent years," Edwards said.

The Inter-Greek Council picked up half of the bill for the week, and the individual houses payed the other half. This is why the events were free, Edwards added.

Exotic Jimmy Buffett shines through in 'Son of a Sailor'

Colleen Mullen
WKNH Staff

Jimmy Buffett hasn't just been wasting away in Margaritaville for the last year. He's found his salt shaker and is now in search of something to put it on, he and a crew of the Coral Reefers have been in quest of the immortal "Cheesburger in Paradise."

Mr. Jimmy Buffett is now "appearing in the trials and temptations" of "Son Of A Sailor," accompanied by his "highly acclaimed musical band." "Son Of A Sailor" is Buffett's 7th album (including the soundtrack of the movie Rancho Deluxe). "Son-Of-A-Sailor" is in the true Buffett style of clever, zany lyrics and Florida folk rock melodies.

I say true Buffett style and by that I mean he hasn't changed much over the years. And lack of change isn't necessarily bad. Jimmy Buffett has been consistently good. Now running the risk of contradicting myself, there have been some subtle changes. The song "Fool Button" for example is somewhat overproduced and verges on the other side of commercialism.

If someone else fell victim to the evils of a mixer it would cause irrevocable damage to their career. But the Jimmy Buffett we've all grown to love, the Jimmy Buffett who spends his life sailing to exotic places like Cane Garden Bay, Trinidad, and Haiti, comes shining through and this mortal sin can be forgiven.

In listening to this album one can't help but fantasize what it would be like to be a crew member aboard the Euphoria II. Imagine sailing around the Caribbean, watching the sun set into the crystal blue horizon, listening to the soft tunes of "Son Of A Sailor," "The Coast of Marneilles" and "Manana."

"Please don't say manana if you don't mean it/I have done your lines for so very long/Don't try to describe a Kiss concert if you've never seen it/Don't ever forget that you just may wind up being gone/And I hope Anita Bryant never does one of my songs."

Musically, the album is quite good. And had it not been for the slip-up in production, "Son Of A Sailor" would have warranted a five star review. But working strong with four and a half, the album features a multitude of musicians, Steve Goodman, The Coral Reefer Band (Ted Krehel, Harry Dailey, Jay Spell, Keith Buttery, Fingers Taylor, Mike Utley, and Ferrell Morris, The Reefers, The Muscle Shoals Horns, and The Sid Sharp Strings.

Hopefully Buffett won't succumb to the Elton John syndrome that happens to so many other talented musicians. Hopefully he'll keep shining through efforts to promote his career.

Correction

We wish to correct an error made in our last issue concerning Parent Association funding for student organizations. Kappa Delta Pi, the honor society for education students, received $300 rather than the reported $200 grant. Reason for the error was incorrect secretary minutes used for the story.

Authors speak at child lit. festival

Seven authors/illustrators shared their knowledge of their profession with approximately 150 people at a Children's Literature Festival, Saturday, in Spaulding Gymnasium. The free event was sponsored by the Spaulding Potter Charitable Trust and Keene State College, under the direction of Dr. David E. White.

Three panel presentations and autograph sessions made up the day's schedule. First, Trina Schart Hyman, art director for "Cricet" magazine, Robert McClung, author/illustrator of information books, and Emille McLeod, editor of Unicorn Books for Dutton, discussed "Writing Books for Children."

Hyman, McClung and McLeod agreeing that a good book will appeal to both children and adults. McLeod said the illustrations, not the subject, make it a children's book. McClung added that pictures can explain hard words to children if a story is too difficult for them.

White asked if authors work closely with illustrators on their books or not at all. Hyman responded that if an author is confident about his work, he will let an illustrator draw the story the way he sees it. McLeod agreed saying, "A book usually becomes the artist's story after the author gives it to the editor."

McLeod decides what stories are published by asking herself several questions: Do I like it? Can I identify with the hero or heroine? Does it make me feel something? Do I believe it? and Will children learn something from it? Referring to the price of books today, McLeod said, "Parents will spend $12.95 for a doll and refuse to pay $5.95 for a book."

The panelists ended the discussion by answering questions from the audience.

The second panel presentation was on "Illustrating Books for Children." Participating authors/illustrators were: Ed Emberley, winner of the 1968 Caldecott Award for "Drummer Hoff"; Paul Galdone, who, with his wife Joanna, has published "The Tailypo" and other books; Trina Schart Hyman; Steven Kellogg, whose books include "Much Bigger Than Martin" and "Can I Keep Him?"; and Wallace Tripp, winner of the Boston Globe Book Award for "Grampa's Grig Had A Pig."

White asked if illustrators preferred to work closely with authors or alone. Galdone said, "I don't like to work with authors because most of them don't have a sense of graphics." Kellogg said a good editor should keep an author and illustrator apart. "They should be left alone to work their magic."

White asked, "Which comes first, the pictures of the story?" Kellogg explained that the written idea is expressed first, but it is visualized in the author's mind at the same time. Emberley added that illustrators are more than just picture men, they are book designers. "Sometimes the illustrations are an excuse for making books," he said.

Giving advice to budding illustrators, Hyman said, "Know what you're capable of, know how to make text and pictures work together on a page and show you can make a character constant throughout a book or story." Tripp said a portfolio should contain a few landscape drawings and "have pictures that relate to children."

Panel presentations and autograph sessions made up the day's schedule.

White asked if knowledge of kid and don't care to." Emberley children is necessary to be an agreed that experience with children author/illustrator of children's books. Hyman answered, "I enjoy kids, but doesn't hurt, but it isn't necessary. "What kids like and what they need is many excellent books have been complicated and you can go broke written by people have never seen a trying to find out."

Tracksters take seven places

Brian Harrison
Equinox Staff

It was a good day for the Keene State College men's track and field team Saturday in their first meet of the 1978 season.

Keene posted two wins, four second place finishes and one third place finish at the Westfield Relays held at Westfield State College in Westfield, Mass. Although no team scores were officially kept, KSC tallied 69 points to easily place among the top five of the 12 teams present. The top six finishers in each event received points: ten for first, eight for second, six for third, four for fourth, three for fifth and one for sixth.

Peter "Craig" Gawlak was the first winner of the day for KSC, capturing the 3000 meter steeplechase with a time of 9:45.6. Gawlak, running the event for the first time, displayed a superb jumping technique in clearing the 30 barriers (24 three foot barriers and six water jumps) during the race. Tim Eno, who led the race until making a big splash in attempting to clear the first jump, recovered to finish third (10:07).

The Owl's two mile relay team of Paul Trocki, Steve Lavorgna, Gawlak and Kurt Schulz posted Keene State's second win (8:18.5). Schulz running the final 880 yd. leg of the race, regained the lead for KSC early in the first lap, and pulled away for the win.

Another relay team, the distance medley unit of Joel Stefanski (880 yd.), Trocki (440), Lavorgna (1320), and Schulz (mile) grabbed second place (10:31.8). Trocki (50.0) and Schulz (4:20.1) clocked sterling times in running their legs off the relay event.

Kevin Haddock was second in the six mile run setting a school record (30:48.0) in the process. The old record was held by Sean Cummings (31:08.0). Other Keene runners who placed in the event were Cummings finishing fourth (31:11.0), and Brian Harrison sixth (32:14.0).

In the field events, Keene notched two second place finishes. John Jensen was second in the javelin with a toss of 176 feet, 4 inches.

Jensen's throw set a school record breaking the old mark (173' 2") held by Pete Adamovich. Trocki grabbed second in the high jump (6' 2") and Brad Süver was fourth in the shot put (41' 7").

Coach Robert Taft was pleased with Keene's performance in the meet which was a healthy improvement over last year's showing. He was especially content with Gawlak's and Haddock's performances; along with Trocki's 440 time and Schulz's mile time in the distance medley. He called these impressive performances for this early stage of the season.

Saturday Keene travels to Fitchburg, Mass. to compete in the Fitchburg Invitational.

Mad Dogs take third consecutive title in hoop

The Mad Dogs are proving to be the UCLA of the men's intramural basketball league.

The team took a 57-51 decision from the Aardvarks to win their third straight title and forth in five years in a game played at Spaulding Gym Monday night.

In the consolation contest, Steve Brown's 21 points led the Celts to a 71-47 runaway over the Swishes.

The championship game was a close affair to the final buzzer. During no time did a team lead by more than eight points in the game. That advantage belonged to the Mad Dogs in the late stages of the ballgame.

The Mad Dogs scored many key hoops throughout the evening by isolating Rick Scott underneath. Sometimes he was so wide open that it would be as much as two seconds before somebody picked him up. By then it was too late, as he would have the ball and position for the easy lay up. Scott scored 17 points on the evening.

The early part of the game was close. One stretch saw the lead change hands six times until, with 4:20 left in the half, the Mad Dogs were able to take a 25-20 advantage. They went into halftime with a 31-26 advantage.

The Aardvarks came out fighting. After the Mad Dogs scored the first basket of the second half, the Aardvarks scored six unanswered points to bring the Mad Dog advantage to 33-32. That was the closest the Aardvarks would come.

Although down by as many as eight points at times, the Aardvarks would score a couple of quick hoops to get back into striking distance. But the Mad Dogs would always take the moment away with a couple of baskets of their own.

It was a very physical game with 38 fouls called.

For the Mad Dogs, three others attained double figures besides Scott. They were Trevor Franklin (12), Keith Clark (12), and Tom Parsons (10).

The Aardvarks had a balanced attack of Paul Sibley (13), Chet Brach (12), Dennis Jenkins (10), and Mike MacDonald (10).

The Aardvarks played the game without the services of big man Pat Keeler, who was out with a broken leg.

P.E. forms communication committee

"This organization has evolved from a lack of communication between the faculty and students in the department." That was the opening remark Karen Booth made at the Organization for Student Concern in the Physical Education Department, Wednesday night. Booth, a physical education instructor in the department, went on to say, "The group began out of a need to know, but it is much more than the griping session it once was."

After three meetings the organization decided an Executive Council was needed to organize the meetings between the faculty and students. Nominations and elections to the Council were held Wednesday night. Elected were: Trish Sheehan, chairman; Linda Jennison, co-chairman; and Judy Cramer, secretary. Karen Booth was elected as the organization's advisor.

The first formal meeting will be held April 13 at 7 p.m. in Spaulding Gymnasium. Dr. John Cramer, chairman of the Physical Education Department will present the changes that have taken place in the department. Elections for student representatives on the following committees will also take place: smoking, dress-code, student evaluation, recreation management and curriculum committees. Only faculty members will vote on these positions.

Also to be discussed is the end of the year "wrap-up" activity for physical education majors and a welcoming barbecue for all freshman, transfer and returning physical education majors in September.

This meeting is a very important one and all physical education majors and physical education faculty are strongly urged to attend.

Softball to begin; crowded schedule and facility

It is the 16th day of spring at Keene State College. The sun and warm temperatures have melted two snow from the fields and there is an air of ease about with students realizing the homestretch is not far ahead. For the women's softball team however, the hard work and long hours of practice have only begun. Their season begins April 11 with a home game against the University of Massachusetts at 1 p.m.

The team has practiced only three times outside due to snow and rain-soaked fields. "The amount of practice we've had indoors can not compensate for the amount needed outside," Coach Cathi Savoie said.

The team will play nine games in three weeks. Their regular season ends April 29. It will be an intense schedule with games against such schools as University of New Hampshire, University of Southern Connecticut and Springfield College.

In preparation for the upcoming season, the players have been taking physical measurement tests administered by athletic trainers under direction of Head Trainer Doug Sebald. A skin fold test which determines the percentage of body fat, and a vertical jump test which determines leg power have been administered. These tests, combined with a maximum strength and height and weight test were administered at the beginning of the pre-season to determine the type of program each individual needs.

The tests will be retaken at mid-season to learn the progress a player has made and to determine how the conditioning program and practices have affected individuals' physical abilities. At the end of the season, the tests will again be taken to determine how effective the program has been overall. The test results will be used for next year's returning players.

There are several returning players this year. Linda Jennison is returning with a larger repertoire of pitches which include curve balls, risers and sinkers. Penny Merritt, Donna Bunnell, Jo Little, Mo Tracey, Valerie Comerford, Joyce Dinelle and Chris Landry are also returning. The added depth from Freshmen Terry Citik and Lynne Duchesne and the versatility of newcomer Jo Hallquist strengthens the team defensively.

Cathi Savoie is not worried about the team's defense. It is as strong as last year's. The offense however, bothers her. Savoie said, "It is going to make us or break us." She feels the speed and knowledge the players possess in baserunning is good, but the hitting abilities of her players need improvement.

In the past, all home games have been played at Wheelock Park. This year will be different however, with the games being played on the

A-Field. This does not exactly please Savoie to the extent one might think it would. "I am not pleased with the facility we have out there at all," Savoie said. Savoie sigh cited poor maintenance and the close locations of the baseball and lacrosse fields, as the reasons for her discontent. The closeness of the Ashuelot River also presents problems.

Savoie added, "I refuse to travel anymore. It is not safe. There is no access to the training room, there has been a loss of spectator attendance and we have lost time in traveling."

The women's softball team is coming off a 6-and-4 record last season. Savoie feels it will be a very difficult season for the team this year.

Men's tennis team features five vets, four new

The 1978 Keene State College men's tennis team will feature five veterans and four new faces under the guidance of first year coach Chuck Wolbers.

Wolbers fills the spot left by Ted Kehr who is leaving after coaching the team for four years. Last year's team posted a 2-5 record under Kehr.

Senior Buddy Walsh heads the list of veterans. Walsh returns as the team's number one singles player. The team's other seniors are number six singles player Kevin O'Hearn and Kevin Savage. Savage began working out with the team last week and can break into any one of the second to eight spots on the team. Sophomore Jay Stone, number two singles player, and junior Mark Floryan, number seven man on the team, are the two remaining veterans.

Four freshmen make up the team's rookie contingent. John Richardson and John Kirwan fill the number three and four singles spots. Number five man is Bill Vincette with Jeff Buckman in the eighth spot on the team.

Wolbers is pleased with the team's attitude and desire to play the game. This is evident in the daily four hour workouts Monday through Friday.

"I think we have a team with a lot of potential," said Wolbers in stressing the importance of the freshmen in fulfilling this potential. He added that team members must get over their bad habits which lie mainly in their stroke techniques and fundamentals such as serving and footwork. The emphasis in workouts have been on these areas.

The team's main goal for this season is to reach the 500 mark during the regular season. This would qualify the team for post-season tournaments such as the New England Small College Athletic Conference and the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) district five. Post-season action could be extended if any team member can qualify for the NAIA or National Collegiate Athletic Association national tournaments.

Wolbers added that it is tough to set a specific goal in tennis other than to improve a player's stroke technique and all-around game.

The season will begin on April 2 with a match at New Hampshire College in Manchester, N.H. The team will play an 11 game schedule ending on April 24 at New England College.

One thing that will hurt the Owls chance for a winning record will be the fact that the team was unable to play indoors during the winter months. A number of teams KSC will meet in the regular season such as Rhode Island College and Plymouth State College have extensive indoor workouts behind them.

Finance Comm. rulings

SAC cut most-$4085....

The finance committee of Student Government continued, this week, to reduce budget requests from student organizations.

They cut the Social Activities Council's (SAC) budget request for next year from $21,200 to $17,115 last Tuesday. The total cut of $4,085, so far, is the largest for any organization at the hearings. Wednesday, the committee considered the requests of the Special Education club and the American Home Economics Association (AHEA).

Many cuts from the SAC budget applied to items concerning the Spring Weekend Concert for next year. First, the headliner was reduced $500 from $7,000 to $6,500. Agency fees (from $800 to $750), police (from $200 to $120) and radio - newspaper advertising for the concert were also reduced. Finally damages for piano moving were completely eliminated, (from $20 to $0).

The item for dances received the largest reduction, $1,500 (from $3,000 to $1,500). In addition, Fall Weekend (from $1,300 to $1,000), movies (from $1,200 to $700), lectures (from $1,200 to $800) and advertising for the dances and lectures (from $300 to $150) were reduced.

Hospitality under office expenses (from $150 to $100) and the contingency fund (from $100 to $25) were also reduced. Finally, an item for a programming workshop at Brandeis University was completely eliminated (from $170 to $0).

Committee member Ben Minsk

Finance Committee Chairman Gerry DeLabry said afterwards he cut the request a great deal because SAC will have a sizable contingency fund carry-over for next year.

SAC President Joanne Wiggin said she is happy the request was cut to approximately $17,000. But, she added, the committee cut a lot more than SAC thought it would.

She also said SAC realizes the committee only has so much money to work with in the total Student Activities Budget. In fact, DeLabry praised SAC because it didn't put up a big fight when its request was reduced, she said.

SAC will have carryover

Finally, SAC can probably rely on its contingency fund and any money made on this year's Spring Weekend Concert for some of the cuts, Wiggin said.

.... SPED-AHEA sliced $175

The committee cut the Special Education Club's request a total of $25 from $290 to $265. All of the cut came under the line item request for organization activities which included field trips and children's activities.

Special Education Club President Ellen Welch said afterwards she was satisfied with the request as cut by the committee so long as there was just a small cut.

Then the committee considered the American Home Economics Association (AHEA) request.

The line items included $100

In the pre-calculus course, logarithms, trigonometry and graphing is studied with less emphasis on problem solving, Auslander said.

"The counselling component of the clinic is a support system for students," she said. Students go to a counsellor and work through their frustration at solving problems. They are also encouraged to write down their feelings while working on problems, both positive and negative, she added.

"We don't emphasize the right answer." After a problem is given to the students and has been collected, the group solves the problem and also goes over the wrong answers to see why they were wrong, Auslander said.

"All questions are answered. No questions are neglected. They can only lead to further understanding," she said.

Auslander suggested the best approach to solving problems is, before going on to a new page, make sure you completely understand the last one. "Math books leave out explanations and assume things about the reader that isn't necessarily true. The missing details can be worked out with a pencil and paper," she said.

If a student does not understand a problem, she suggests leaving it for a time and returning to it after doing something they enjoy. "Over time, the light will come. It is a foreign language and" will not be crystal clear at the beginning."
